While Some Cursed, Others Played

KINGSTON — Hold on to your hats'. Today's 17-degree temperature at 5 a.m. set a new record for April 12 in Kingston, according to the City Engineer's The previous low was 26 set in 1967.

Sunday's 22-degree temperature plus 15 to mile-an-hour winds established a new record for April 11.

While gardners and fishermen might have found the cold uncomfortable, youngsters found kite flying a breeze. Sailing one aloft on Merilina Avenue, left, is nine-year-old Chris Long, assisted by four-year-old Jennifer Mannello who took advantage of gusty winds that prevailed throughout the day and night.

Shoppers who flocked to Kingston Plaza Saturday saw the sunniness as a welcome opportunity to get their cars washed. And, Edson School's Art Club seized the opportunity to do the washing and raise funds for a trip to a museum in New York City.

Meanwhile upstaters battled snow storms in the City of Rochester and the Adirondacks.

"It better not be like this next Sunday or I won't be able to wear my new Easter hat," said a Rochester woman as she swept snow from the hood of her car Sunday. "It wasn't made for snow- and neither am I when it comes in the middle of April.

Cool temperatures are promised for tonight but Tuesday's weather will be more seasonable.

Results of Freeman Survey:

They Want Able-Bodied Off Role

KINGSTON—Most of the people contacted in a recent survey by the Freeman had little to say about the Ulster County Legislature's call for a 25 per cent reduction in welfare appropriations next year, but nearly all of them were willing to talk about the people who are receiving welfare assistance.

Practically all of them felt that something should be done about able-bodied people who draw welfare assistance without working. Despite protestations from social services workers and other officials that most welfare recipeints are deserving, the majority of those contacted by the Freeman feel that welfare rolls are overloaded with people who shouldn't be there.

Mrs. William Spring of 38 McDonald Street, Saugerties, said: "People on welfare have more than lots of the people who work for a living. I think welfare could be cut. They are living higher than the people who work for a living. It's sickening to go and vote with all this going on."

Fred Zimmerman of Lake Drive, Rifton, isn't sure how he feels about the cut proposed by county legislators. "Some people need it (welfare), others don't" he said. "If we could just create some kind of public work for them, it would help."

Zimmerman suggested that welfare recipients could be used to clean up along roadways, to cut brush, and to do other public work, much along the lines of the Civilian Conservation Corps created by Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal in the 1930s.

"Let them earn some of the money they get," he said.

Mrs. Mary Jane Avery of Ashokan also feels that many people who are getting welfare assistance are not entitled to it, although she could offer no alternatives to the present system.

Bernard Simon of Mountainview Avenue, Hurley, thinks the proposed 25 per cent reduction in welfare costs next year would be a good idea.

"Welfare costs are getting out of hand, we have to start cutting back somewhere," he said.

"We should have welfare, but there has to be a limit, and I think we are reaching it. We can't throw people out on the street, but we have to call a halt somewhere."

Asked for specific suggestions for welfare reforms, Simon said he felt New York has become a "welfare paradise" for people from less affluent sections of the country.

"New York shouldn't take in people from other sections of the country," he said. "They should crack down, not make it so easy for people coming here from other places to go on welfare."

Mrs. Alice Linzey of Clarendon Avenue, interviewed as she babysat for her sister, Mrs. Frank T. Petersen of 87 West Pierpont Street, also thought that there might be merit in the legislator's suggestion for a reduction in welfare costs.

"I think it might accomplish something," she said. "It makes me mad when I see someone sitting on his or her fat butt for years, drawing welfare. If they would eliminate some of the able-bodied people from the rolls, there should be somewhere they could go to work."

Mrs. Linzey also suggested a public works program to utilize the manpower available on welfare rolls. Cleaning streets and other work on public properties could be used to get some return for welfare money, she feels.

Patty Fears Reprisals

SAN FRANCISCO—Newspaper heiress and convicted bank robber Patricia Hearst faces her sentencing, scheduled for later today, by Federal Judge Oliver Carter with more than just a normal fear of the unknown.

Her defense attorneys say Miss Hearst fears that being placed in one of California's prisons would make her an easy target for radical assassins. Albert Johnson, one of her defense attorneys, points out that there is no shortage of radicals in California's prisons.

West Bank Elections

NABLUS, Israeli-occupied Jordan — Tens of thousands of Arabs voted across the occupied West Bank of Jordan today in local elections expected to reveal new strength for militants committed to establishing a Palestinian state.

Early voters came out despite morning rain and spirits rose to a carnival-like level outside 155 polling places as the skies cleared at noon.

Occupation authorities said 18,810 ballots were cast by 11 a.m., 5,897 of them by women, who had the vote for the first time.

Hope in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Fighting that raged through Beirut and its suburbs all night died down early today, giving hope the country's latest truce might again take hold. On the eastern front, Syrian armored columns were reportedly advancing through the Bekaa Valley.

The latest battles erupted Sunday despite a leftist agreement to extend the 10-day-old cease-fire until the end of the month.

Mortar, rocket and artillery duels between leftist and rightwing militia factions left at least 35 dead and 55 wounded in Beirut. The sounds of battle, which echoed across the city all night, finally died away in the worst suburban troublespots early this morning.

One Is Forced Down

TEL AVIV, Israel — Israeli jet fighters today forced a Saudi Arabian air force plane with three American crewmen aboard to land at Ben Gurion airport near Tel Aviv, the military command said.

The plane was a Hercules C130 passenger plane carrying one Saudi Arabian pilot, the three Americans, and 23 passengers including a number of Saudi Arabian soldiers, a spokesman said.

The command said the plane was violating Israeli air space over the Mediterranean coast near Rosh Hanikra on the Lebanese border at about noon (5 a.m. EST).

Test for Candidates

NEW YORK — NBC technicians and newswriters who claim they are being locked out by the network have decided to test presidential candidates who want labor support.

The 1,700 employes, members of Local 11 of the National Association of Broadcast Employes and Technicians, Sunday sent a telegram to major candidates of both parties, asking them not to appear before NBC's cameras.

"Anything you do or say — live, on film or tape — is in fact a crossing of our picket lines and a defeat for us in our attempts to end the lockout and negotiate a contract," the telegram said.

A 'Hip' Drunken Diver

TOKYO — A drunken plumber attending a cherry blossom viewing party in Southern Japan suffered light injuries when he entered a hippopotamus cage and dived into a pool shared by two female hippos, police said today.

A police spokesman said Hideyuki Sato was hospitalized with minor cuts and bruises after he was found unconscious and wearing only his shorts in the hippo cage of an amusement park in Oita City on the southern island of Kyushu.

Cunningham to Appear

NEW YORK — State Democratic Chairman Patrick J. Cunningham and three fellow party officials, acting under a court order, were scheduled to appear today before a special grand jury probing the alleged sale of judgeships in the Bronx.

Special state anticorruption prosecutor Maurice H. Nadjari has described Cunningham in court papers as "the principal at the center of the corrupt marketplace of judgeships" in the Bronx.

Scheduled to follow Cunningham before the Nadjari panel are City Councilman Jerry Crispino of the Bronx; Gerald Esposito, a Bronx district leader, and Paul Victor, the party's law committee chairman in the borough.

Seek NYC $$ for Bridge Detour

OLIVE — With the desperately needed Traver Hollow Bridge reconstruction three years away, and an interim detour a "must", Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-l0lst Dist., suggested Sunday that once an alternate route is designed, "we will lean on New York City "heavy" to get the money to build it."

Failing that we will pursue other areas, Hinchey told a gathering of New York City, town, county and state officials during a bridge workshop session at Town of Olive Library.

Demands that New York City Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Robert Low level with local officials and reveal just what the city will do in the way of designing and financing the detour route met with non-committal answers laced with promises of "good neighborliness."

Low did promise however that if a design is made available to the city, he will recommend that the city fund the detour construction but he "didn't know if the city has the legal obligation to pay for it."

Two temporary alternate routes which would permit West Shokan and Boiceville residents access to each other's areas without an extra 14-mile trip, were suggested, one to the north and one to the south of the present 1911 deterioriated span which has been closed since last summer.

Hinchey called a meeting for Wednesday in Kingston with county, state and city officials to take a look at the proposed detour routes so that a proposal may be advanced to the city.

He evidenced concern for some residents who have removed barricades from the bridge and have begun to use it again. "It should not be encouraged," the assemblyman warned.

Concrete proposals for constructing a detour came from several quarters with Ulster County Acting Highway Superintendent Richard Gray offering the loan of a bridge and the use of highway department personnel to construct the bypass "if" funding were made available.

Another offer came from Paul Keller, regional forester for the Department of Environmental Conservation, who said DEC would provide the expertise if the city put up the funds.

He noted that DEC and the city has surveyors, that DEC is expert at designing forest truck trails, whose unpaved surfaces are maintained with graders. Keller suggested that a determination be made as to where to locate the detour, north or south of the bridge and that estimates be secured.

"New York City has an obligation," he said, recalling that it has $750,000 earmarked for the Traver Hollow improvement and "I can't conceive of its not being able to build a detour for a lot less."

Low and George Mekenian, deputy chief engineer for the New York City watershed, pointed out that the funds initially earmarked for the Traver Hollow Bridge replacement would not necessarily apply to the detour construction.

Gray estimated the cost of the detour at about $100,000 if the county did the job. A local contractor has also offered to build the road for about $32 a foot or $118,000.

Low agreed that an "interim road makes sense," but Olive Town Attorney John Lynch questioned the reliability of New York City when it comes to paying its bills to Ulster County and asked whether the city could pay money for the detour.

Mekenian said, "no", explaining that it would he necessary to go to the city's Board of Estimate because the scope of the bridge plans had changed, since the initial repair instead of replacement proposal was made.

"Will you present the detour plan to the Board of Estimate?, Lynch asked Low. "I will recommend it," he replied.

Other determinations were made. Gray said that under no circumstances should the temporary detour be considered for permanent status. State regional construction engineer Albert J. Bauman said the state has no obligation to fund the detour but could provide expertise. Keller indicated that four weeks would be needed for a survey and Legislator Ernest J. Gardner, R-Dist. 5, said the county could build the detour in three to four months.

Saying there is no question that it will be three years or more before the bridge is opened, Hinchey urged that a detour be opened up "as soon as possible." He said he felt some good points had been made at the meeting . He will meet with Keller, Gray, Department of Transportation representatives and Proper in order to expedite the detour plans. Citing the estimated $120,000 cost, Hinchey concluded that "it is reasonable; we can come up with the money somewhere."

When Low was asked to stipulate when he would be able to come back with a city offer of funds, he said that if he threw a date out, it would probably come back to haunt him. Mentioning something about "60 days," he promised to act in good faith.

The Prof Came In With a Cold

NEW PALTZ—Laurence Salomon hasn't accomplished much so far in his one-man protest against program and faculty cuts that include him at the State University College at New Paltz.

About all he has to show for a week in front of the administration building is a head cold. His lonely vigil began April 5 with a visit to the office of Peter Vukasin, academic vice president, for some information. Told that it was against the law to remain in state buildings after hours, the African studies professor spent Monday night in a sleeping bag in front of the building. The resulting head cold has moved him to confine his picketing to daylight hours when he isn't busy with classes.

Salomon carries a placard calling on Dr. Stanley Coffman Jr., the New Paltz president, to reinstate seven tenured and one untenured faculty members phased out by budget cuts, calling for "No further education for apathy," and asking Coffman to submit the matter of a five-year renewal of his post as college president to a ballot by the college community.

The placard also admonishes Coffman to do "no more stonewalling—answer the questions."

One of the questions to which he refers is one he asked in an open letter in the college paper, asking Coffman what local campus conditions must be met for him to agree to work for restoration of the African studies program. Salomon said he was told by Coffman's assistant, Gail Gallerie, that Coffman "has no plans for answering your questions."

Salomon also asked Vukasin if he would have the dean of liberal arts make available a written memorandum on his recommendations for retrenchment and his reasons for them.

"I was told he would not make the memorandum available because if lawyers got hold of it they might involve the state in litigation involving millions of dollars," Salomon claims.

He was told that the dean would speak to him on the matter and has not yet made up his mind whether he will settle for a verbal report or insist on the written memordandum, Salomon said.

Salomon is particularly incensed over the African studies cutback because Coffman did not consult with the department before giving it the axe.

"President Coffman established a committee to recommend what programs should be cut," he said. "The committee did not recommend that African studies be cut, but he cut it and did not cut others that had been recommended."

Salomon said that on March 8 he had been summoned to Coffman's office along with other colleagues scheduled to be cut. "Coffman informed us that he had decided to cut two positions in African studies and that the decision was final," Salomon said. "We had no opportunity to plead our case with him. I am trying to find out on what basis it was decided to cut African studies other than low enrollment, the only reason given to us."

Salomon said he cut in African studies is particularly harsh because of a program in which he has been involved.

"I have been working on a series of slides dealing with African history," he said. "I recently returned from 15 months in Africa and Europe, bringing back 20,000 slides. Added to the 5,000 I already had, they comprise the largest collection of still photographic material on African history anywhere in this country.

"I had just began to document the collection when the axe fell. The collection is of no value now, because they are pictures without documentation. It is sorely needed because African studies lacks the photographic background that European or American history has available."

Patty Believes Prison = Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst fears that a prison sentence for her bank robbery conviction would make her an easy target for revolutionary assassins behind bars.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter was to sentence the newspaper heiress today, after a plea by her attorneys to keep her out of prison.

Carter could sentence Miss Hearst under the Federal Youth Corrections Act which contains lenient punishments for first offenders under 25 years of age. Or he could merely place her on probation.

Miss Hearst, 22, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph Hearst, was convicted March 20 of being a member of a Symbionese Liberation Army holdup team which got $10,690 from a Hibernia Bank branch in San Francisco.

Maximum sentence for the bank robbery charge was 25 years and for a charge of using a firearm in the commission of the felony 10 years.

Johnson said that as a result of published reports his client would become an informer on radical activities she would be safer out of prison but "under controlled conditions of security, including bodyguards."

He said she often has expressed fears of terrorists' reprisals against herself and her family.

The seven-woman, five-man jury which convicted Miss Hearst told reporters they decided against her because of her refusal to discuss what occurred during most of her 17 months with the SLA and because she never attempted to flee from the terrorist group even though she had the opportunity.

Miss Hearst was abducted by the SLA from her apartment near the University of California campus Feb. 4, 1974. The bank robbery occurred two months later.

Federal probation officers, before making recommendations to Carter, interviewed Miss Hearst several times while she was in custody in San Mateo County Jail at nearby Redwood City.

Government investigators said Miss Hearst may have rented a garage in Sacramento, Calif., for a getaway car in a bank robbery in which a woman patron was killed.

A news report last week said she told authorities who participated in the robbery, at Carmichael, but that Steven Soliah, 27, was not involved. Soliah himself is on trial for the stickup.

Soliah was taken into custody last Sept. 9, when Miss Hearst and three other SLA members were found in San Francisco. He had been living with Miss Hearst.

On Wednesday in Los Angeles she will enter a plea on charges of robbery, kidnaping and assault as a result of a shootout at a sporting goods store.

Authorities said she fired a weapon to help SLA members William Harris and his wife, Emily, in their escape. No one was injured.

Johnson said she would plead innocent to the charges.

Only Once Is Not Enough

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The smiles vanished from the faces of White House press secretary Ron Nessen and spokesman Peter Kaye of President Ford's national campaign organization.

They turned and fled from a pack of White House reporters bunched in the rear of the West Texas State University gymnasium in Caynon, Tex., where Ford spoke Saturday night to 4,000 persons.

Their dismay sprang from the press corps' reaction when Ford, on cue, said, "Any government big enough to give you everything you want is big enough to take away everything you have." Reporters clapped, whooped and cheered.

It was something like the 60th time Ford has used the line in his presidential primary campaign. Each time it has brought cheers from the audience. And to reporters, who have heard it so often, familiarity has bred glee to relieve what otherwise might be boredom.

It is one of several oft-repeated Ford phrases which the press corps regards as old if homely friends to be greeted with the cheers that give hives to Nessen and Kaye. Another is the maxim that a politician should "promise only what he can deliver and deliver all that he promises."

Ford is at home with such wording. The "any government that is big enough etc." line dates back to his vice presidency. Any woe with words appears to stem from prepared speeches written by other hands.

No one in the White House cares to remember the moment in North Carolina when Ford rose before thousands of teenage members of the Future Homemakers of America and said they should be proud to stand up anywhere in the world and say they are future American homemakers.

The line did not gain luster when North Carolina became the only primary the president has lost to Ronald Reagan. None of the speechwriting team claimed credit.

That team has been shuffled more than any other office in the administration. A few weeks ago it again was changed, with at least four writers departing and Robert Orben becoming chief writer under Robert Hartmann, Ford's White House counselor and chief speech writer.

Striking In 'Belt'

LIBERTY (UPI) — Following a breakdown in contract negotiations, more than 200 employes of the posh Grossinger's resort hotel near this Sullivan County community voted Sunday to strike today, following a breakdown in contract negotiations.

A management spokesman said the hotel would remain open for business over the Passover weekend. He said the hotel was in the process of hiring replacements. Some 500 additional employes are not members of the union, he said.

Mark Grossinger Etess, assistant to Paul Grossinger, president of the resort, read a statement Sunday claiming the union has failed to negotiate in good faith for a contract to replace one which expired Feb. 28.

Etess said acquiescene to demands of local 76 of the hotel and restaurant workers union would have meant "economic suicide — yet the union has never budged from these demands."

The hotel's management claims the union has made into strike issues demands that "provide no benefits to our employes — insisting, for example, that we add to the bargaining unit all of our non-union personnel who, we believe, want nothing to do with this union."

The Grossingers' statement said the hotel's management had made six offers, the last of which, rejected Sunday, "was substantially better than the contract which was accepted by a 5-1 majority by the employes at the Concord," another Sullivan County resort hotel.

'1776' Headed For RVHS

KYSERIKE — In the spirit of the Bicentennial year, the Continental Theatre Company will bring the musical, "1776" to Rondout Valley High School for one gala performance May 1 at 8 p.m.

Drama critic Clive Barnes of the New York Times has said of this live stage production: "On the face of it, few historic incidents seem more unlikely to spawn a Broadway musical than that solemn moment in the history of mankind, the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Yet "1776" most handsomely demonstrates that the people who merely go 'on the face of it' are occasionally outrageously wrong. For "1776" is a most striking, most gripping musical."

What Barnes recommended without reservation as a musical of "style, wit and passion," also elicited superlatives from critic Richard Watt Jr., who wrote: "In this cynical age, it requires courage as well as enterprise to do a musical that simply deals with the events leading up to the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Still, "1776" makes no attempt to be satirical or wander off into modern bypaths. The result of the courage and confidence in this conception is a brilliant and remarkably moving work of theatrical art."

those who join the audience at Rondout Valley High School can look forward to being a part of one of the area's most brilliant presentations in celebration of the Bicentennial year. Tickets for the May 1 staging are priced at only $4.50 and may be reserved by calling the District Office of the school.

DELEGATES TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS firmly state their opposition to signing the Declaration of Independence. Scene is from the lively and witty musical, "1776," coming to Rondout Valley High School the night of May 1.

'Gardens for Nutrition'

HIGHLAND — In less than eight weeks as many as 300 families from a six county area of the Mid-Hudson region will begin planting the first seeds in a garden project organized by the Multi-County Community Development Corporation, a feeding and nutrition advocacy agency centered in Highland.

The project, called "Gardens For Nutrition," is the brainchild of Mrs. Anne Waldman Van Anden a 30 year old mother of two, who organized a similar "Garden For Nutrition" plot project in Rockland County a year ago, under the aegis of the Rockland County Mental Health Association.

According to Mrs. Van Anden, who is the MCCDC garden project co-ordinator, the program hopes to attract 50 families apiece from Dutchess, Orange, Rockland, Sullivan, Ulster, and Putnam counties, with June 1 targeted for seed planting. The project, Mrs. Van Anden said, is designed to supply adequate and nutritional food produce through a self-help type program for low-income families, the unemployed, and the elderly living on fixed-incomes — although participation in the project will not be restricted only to these groups.

Presently, she explained, either donated private or unused public land is being sought for use in each of the six counties, in addition to donors of tools, seeds, and other needed materials and equipment.

"We're hopeful that community involvment this year will be as good as it was last year," Mrs. Van Anden commented, crossing her fingers.

Families participating in the project will receive a plot of land to farm, tools, seeds, a "Vegetable Gardening Handbook," and the satisfaction of growing their own food to help feed themselves and their families. A 20 foot-square parcel of land can supply a real abundance of vegetables to a family of four, she pointed out — and for all this, families participating in the project will be charged the sum of $1.00.

A year ago, Mrs. Van Anden and the Rev. Edwin Barton, of the Thiells Methodist Church, organized a similar "gardens for nutrition" project in Rockland County, which saw 45 families take part in the project until its completion. The program then was conducted through the Rockland County Mental Health Association, which provided $500 in "seed" money to help start the program. Total expenses for the project came to $753.37, Mrs. Van Anden said, but the project was able to raise $702.20 through fund-raising activities, with the Mental Health Association agreeing to absorb the difference.

But community involvment and committment significantly helped to ensure the project's success, Mrs. Van Anden noted.

Anyone wishing to learn more about the gardens for nutrition project, she suggested, should contact the MCCDC Nutrition Project Co-ordinator, Ms. Susan E. Keesler, 21 Grand Street, Highland.

Dear Abby: Pros 'n Cons Of Past Advice

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to that wife who "prettied herself up" and laid down on the sofa with nothing on because her husband called and said he was bringing her a surprise was silly!

Husbands often bring home unexpected company. To find his wife stretched out on the sofa without a stitch on when he opens the door accompanied by two business associates would embarrass any man with an ounce of brains.

In recent years it seems that more people are obsessed with the idea of parading around naked. I guess maybe they don't realize that most folks look a lot better with something on.

Sure, I think the husband should forgive her, but maybe he has taught her a good lesson for being so vain and self-centered.

I'll bet if the situation had been reversed, and the wife came home with two of her lady friends to find her husband stretched out on the sofa naked as a jaybird, that wife would have been furious.—PUZZLED AT YOUR ANSWER

DEAR PUZZLED: You could be right, but my mail has been running 50 to one in favor of the wife. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A wife wrote that her husband had called, saying he was bringing home a "surprise" for her and asking her to fix a pitcher of martinis. She thought it was the diamond earrings she had wanted for Christmas, so she prettied herself up and stretched out (sans clothes) on the sofa as a "surprise" for him.

Abby, that husband must be crazy! How lucky can a man be to come home with two business associates to a pitcher of cold martinis and a wife stretched out naked on the sofa! He must be the envy of his entire company. I can't understand why he should be upset with her. SHE should be upset with him for putting her in that embarrassing situation. That husband should hotfoot it to his local jeweler for those diamond earrings.

She gets my vote for being an ideal wife, and if you won't tell MY wife, I'll make her those earrings myself!—PENNSYLVANIA JEWELER

DEAR ABBY: I'm with you! That husband who came home to the wife who wanted to surprise him because he said he was bringing HER a surprise had no right to be furious with her. He owes her not only the earrings, but also a matching necklace, finger rings and a Mediterranean cruise!—R. S. M. IN COLUMBUS CONFIDENTIAL TO LUCY: It's not always better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all. It depends upon what you've lost.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26 cents) envelope.

Calories? We'll walk those off in no time'." says Jim Thompson, right, a registered walker in Zonta Club's upcoming Walkathon '76. Lou Mariotti, third from left, manager of Dunkin' Donuts, and Bob Wirth, manager of Kentucky Fried Chicken, will donate some of the goodies to those who complete the walk on Saturday, May 22 from 10 a.m. until noon. Zonta members, Louise Greenwald, left, Betty Madonna and Frances Turck, sample the goodies beforehand, confident of reducing the poundage come May 22. All proceeds from the event will benefit the initial funding for the new Chronic Hemodialysis Center to be establlshed at Kingston Hospital. Those wishing to participate should contact Mickey Duncan, Kay Sullivan or any Zontian. (Freeman photo)

HVP's New Music Director Will Conduct 'Lizzie Borden'

NEW YORK— Pallo, Hungarian conductor who was recently appointed music director of Hudson Valley Philharmonic (effective July l, 1976 through July l, 1979), will conduct the New York City Opera's revival performances of Lizzie Borden at the New York State Theater, April 22 and 25.

This production is directed by Nikos Psacharopoulos designed by Peter Wexler, costumed by Patton Campbell, with lighting by Hans Sondheimer. During the 1976 spring season, Mr. Pallo also conducted performances of Carmen, Die Meistersinger, Die Fledermaus and Lucrezia Borgia. On April 20, he will conduct The Masked Ball with the New York City Opera.

Each season the orchestra performs in Kingston, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie.

Final Program of Season Tonight

Problems Affect HVP Concert; Schumann Symphonic Etudes, Highligh

By O. Linclon Igou

KINGSTON—This past weekend the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra gave its final program of the season, concluding with a Kingston performance tonight in the Community Theatre. Your reviewer attended the concert in the Community Theatre. Your reviewer attended the concert in Newburgh where the orchestra received and enthusiastic welcome after Concertmaster Edward Simon discoursed on some of the financial problems facing the Philharmonic.

There were indeed several visable and auditory evidences of difficulties confronting the orchestra and the society which directs its activities. The "Society gratefully acknowledges the generosity of the musicians who are donating their services to this concert," read the program. For whatever reason, of forty-seven string players listed, a fairly accurate count showed only twenty-six actually on the stage. This reduction in the body of string tone available does not make for an effective presentation of a work of the proportions of the programmed Beethoven piano concerto. Of course, the orchestra does not heve on its roster sufficient woodwind players ever to follow the custom of doubling on those parts in a large share of the orchestral repertoire from Beethoven on, a common practice even a century and a half ago.

Still further evidence of the state of the budget was the programming, which called for a solo performance of Schumann's Symphonic Etudes by a pianist who normally would have played only a concerto with the orchestra, improbably followed with a short, popular, solo encore. Thanks to the major assistance of the soloist, the orchestra presumably had to donate less time to preparing for its share of this concert, which consisted of a short Suite of Stravinsky (arranged by the composer from a group of earlier four-hand piano works), the Beethoven concerto, and Prokofieff's Classical Symphony. Unfortunately it must be reported that all of the factors cited above affected the quality of the performance.

The Stravinsky Suite by any other composer might have been termed inconsequential, but his rhythmic involvement, especially in the third movement, the parade of solo timbres in the second (a remote intimation of the much more compact scoring to come in the later Le Histoire du Soldat), the repeated ostriato figure in the last movement, and the unexpected, abrupt endings—all of these present a series of reminders of the remarkable versatility of this musical Picasso.

Misha Dichter, soloist in the G-Major Piano Concerto of Beethoven, proved himself to be a technically facile young artist, although there was all too little persuasive dialog between soloist and orchestra, especially in the first and last movement. Yet this dialog is at the necessary core of a concerto, even if a true and exciting rapport is established in all too few performances of works of this kind. It is not clear who was at fault. Mr. Dichter appeared to be pitching his playing at the level of a full symphony orchestra which, one must admit, is really necessary for a proper performance of this, the most difficult of Beethoven's five piano concertos. Nevertheless, the soloist seemed either unable or uninterested in trying to scale his playing to the level of this particular orchestral ensemble. On the other hand, the vast share of the orchestra's comments on matters of musical moment were lost, most often in the woodwinds, but also in the strings: for which the orchestra's leader must also assume a share situation of the responsibility.

The slow movement was from an entirely different piece of cloth. True, the orchestra did not have to be concerned with many of the problems posed in the first movement, but this relatively short movement, scored only for piano and strings, was noteworthy in demonstrating that the soloist and orchestra could indeed converse together successfully. Actually, the scoring is such that dialog is inevitable, but all the same, it was a happy exchange and a highlight of the performance.

The third movement which moves along at a good clip was paced at a minimally acceptable tempo, but again, lost string and woodwin lines greatly diminished the hoped-for effectiveness of an exchange of musical ideas. Nevertheless, the audience found Mr. Dichter's and director Luis Garcia-Renart's performance impressive and applauded enthusiastically.

The high-light of the evening, without any question in your reviewer's mind, was Mr. Dichter's solo performance of the Schumann Symphonic Etudes. Here, on his own, one was aware from beginning to end of this young artist's command of all the resources of his instrument, and of his innate sensitivity in combination with a proper understanding of the organization and intent of the music, to the maximum use of those technical resources. Scarcely an eye moved from the stage as he painted a musical canvas which ranged from pastels, at times close to an impressionistic delicacy, to the dramatically intense primary colors of a rich Lisztian keyboard orchestra. Lines moved in and out, back and forth, with noteworthy and consistent clarity, yet the whole performance was so effectively knit into one unit that one was not torn and pulled, exhausted, by the end of the work. How many universes away from the composer's popular Traumerie this is, and what demands it makes! Mr. Dichter responded to them admirably, and the standing ovation which he received at the work's conclusion was totally deserved.

The final selection, Prokofieff's Classical Symphony, was not a happy choice at this time. The symphony is a fragile, transparent one, as its title suggests, but the orchestra was not up to the precision required. Violin bowings were frequently uncoordinated; their high notes were uncertain; and again the woodwinds often failed to cut through the strings—at times the result of failure to observe dynamic marks in the strings as opposed to those called for in the winds. At other times the absemce of a true pianissimo in the stings (a situation which prevailed throughout the entire evening) was especially unfortunate, since this work thrives on just such delicate nuances. At one point near the end of the symphomy, for example, there was almost no perceptible distinction between a string pianissimo and a forte immediately following. Mr. Garcia-Renard obviously is not unfamiliar with the composition but he did not yet have it ready for a professional presentation on Saturday evening. Hopefully, the fall season will bring a return to better days in many respects.

Growing Disbelief

Dear Editor;

I have read with much interest and growing disbelief the letters sent to you from out of the county by Stanley Christman and John Smigel, representatives of an organization calling itself the "Constitutional Rights Associates Inc."

The organization's name is in itself a mockery, for what could be more in keeping with our constitutional rights and heritage than preserving that great land and its resources, and that is exactly the purpose of the proposed Catskill Park Commission. The Commission would be authorized to develop a land-use plan and an economic development program which would preserve the natural beauty of the area and guide development in a coordinated manner.

One can argue against doing anything for the Catskills, for maintaining the status quo. Recognize, then, that you are arguing to maintain factors which support the highest unemployment rate in the state — 13 per cent in Ulster County, 17 per cent in neighboring Sullivan County. Translate that into human terms, and you have one-fourth of the available work force unemployed.

What we are trying to do is focus attention on the Catskills and the west side of the Hudson River, an area which has never received recognition from the state government. We have potentially the best recreational facilities in the state; ironically, people from the Catskills travel to vacation in the Adirondacks, because our own areas have not been adequately developed.

The only developers who would be hurt by such planning will be those who want to gouge the earth, the unscrupulous, the greedy. The only people who will be helped by such planning will be all of us and our posterity.

Sincerely yours,

Promises Are No Good

Dear Editor:

Everbody has to do their part by helping your state and local government. Promises is no good. There is all kinds of garbage along the railroad tracks in Kingston. Have those who are on welfare and on SSI, pick up the garbage along the railroad tracks. Give them some work to do. That would save tax money. I know a lot of people who are on welfare and SSI who won't work as long as they get a free handout. This is a hazard to our community.

We the people of Ulster County must do something to save our tax dollars. I don't think we need, a new high school.

What I think we need, is dedication to save the tax dollar so the working man and woman or our Ulster County can help the poor. That is what our government is all about.

Build camp sites in the city parks, have Bible gospel parks, have a Billy Graham Evangelistic Association come to Kingston.

We need a vocational school to teach a trade. The old vocational school on Grand Street, Kingston, would be just right for us, all. The old Kingston Police Department on Broadway, use that for the police. Let them repair the building. Repair the high school, the same. No wonder our taxes are so high in Ulster County because they want to build all the time. That is not saving money.

We need to bring money into our city. The mayor of Kingston uses too much money to fix the city up. What we need is somebody better than Mr. Koenig to run our local government. We need somebody like myself or somebody else who can run a city.

I think Mr. Nelson Rockefeller could do a better job than Mr. Koenig and also the police in Kinston are not doing their job. They are sleeping half the time in back of the hotel. People tell me this.

I, Mr. Raymond Van Nostrand, P.O. Box 82, am a member of the legislative advisory committee of assemblyman.

Grossly Uninformed

Dear Editor;

This is in response to a letter from Ms. Gail Zeig in which she attempts to "restate a few basic facts" about the abortion issue. Unfortunately Ms. Zeig, like millions, is grossly uninformed.

This safe and simple operation she is speaking of is butchering millions of women who are ignorant of what an abortion can do to them. Of course the worst complication from a legal abortion is death. The mortality rates per 100,000 for several countries: Finland, 66; Denmark, 41.4; Sweden, 39.2; Great Britain, 30. It is important to realize that these figures are for legal abortions done by doctors in hospitals or clinics. Of course statistics done in the U.S. are not valid because women travel from state to state to have abortions, return home and are then treated for complications. These are rarely reported. Other major complications from abortions are sterility, subsequent habitual miscarriage, tubal pregnancy increase, post abortion infection, perforated utereus and abdominal pain. Post abortion infection is one of the common causes of death in criminal abortions and yet 27 per cent occurs in legal abortion. Ms. Zeig so proudly and so wrongly states that in 100,000 abortions only two deaths occur. And yet, of course, she is speaking of maternal deaths not of the innocent unborn.

She says the Supreme Court "upheld the basic constitutional right of individual liberty upon which this nation was founded." Our country is in poor shape if it was founded based on the liberty to kill its young.

Sincerely,
Ms. Margaret Whelan

On Gun Control

Dear Governor Carey:

I read with horror of your latest intentions to restrict the constitutional right to bear arms and defend one's business and family.

Automobiles kill thirty times as many people in a given year as do firearms. Does this mean that automobiles should be outlawed?

Experience has proven that gun control does not reduce crime; but strong crime penalties and strict enforcement do. Gun control does not keep guns out of the hands of criminals; it merely disarms the decent and upstanding citizenry.

Government interference with personal freedoms, and ever-encroaching bureaucracy, have merely served to prove its (Governments') own incompetence and impotency time after time, at the cost of personal freedoms. I respect the office of Governor of the State of New York very highly; but I also regard the United States Constitution more highly than I regard any politician. No amount of liberal rhetoric or biased media scare campaigns will give you the moral right or the political ability to ignore our constitutional right to bear arms.

Government interference with personal freedoms, and ever-encroaching bureaucracy, have merely served to prove its (Governments') own incompetence and impotency time after time, at the cost of personal freedoms. THEREFORE, I hereby urge you to abandon this and all other efforts at implementing the unrealistic, utopian idea of gun control. This is America, not a police state (so far). Kindly inform me as soon as possible as to whether or not you intend to continue in your efforts along these lines. If so, my many interested friends and myself will let you know our reply at the polls. There are many of us who cherish our God-given rights as guaranteed by the Constitution which you have sworn to uphold.

Yours for a

A West Hurley Mother . . .

To: THE HURLEY TOWN BOARD

As a concerned mother, I look around this town to see what is available in recreation for our children. The more I look, the less I find. The only accessible place to meet or to congregate has hardly any resemblence to being a park. It is the potholed ball field situated on Wall Street next to the firehouse. Before sending my children there, however, I always make sure that they have had a drink before leaving. You see, there isn't even a water fountain there. As for a basketball hoop, there is none. Outrageous'. Because of this, teenagers are bored and restless looking for something exciting to do. Can you blame them'. Have you the Town Board ever thought of our children or are you selfishly thinking of just yourselves. Is it too much to ask that we have a modest recreational facility for our children to be able to congregate and socialize in a healthy manner? Why should all the towns surrounding us have what any normal, healthy town should have, and not us'. We in West Hurley, who are heavily taxed, have nothing to show for it. Please reconsider this badly needed recreational facility being offered at Oehlers. It's time that we stop being so conservative and cheap and start being more progressive. As parents of young children, we feel that the time is now'. Let's put it up for referendum.

Victim of IRS

WASHINGTON—In Karl Bray's last letter smuggled out of a Federal penitentiary a couple of weeks ago, he said he had no hope of getting out on his appeal bond before April 15th, tax day - his enemy, the IRS, would see to that. At this writing, his whereabouts in the Federal prison system is unknown to his friends and sympathizers, who incline toward being angry, honest and ineffectual right-wingers of a Whig or Libertarian persuasion.

Bray seems to be of that sort, insofar as one can tell by reading the clippings on his case from The Salt Lake City Tribune and by intuiting: a literal-minded Libertarian who can't get it . through his head that the Constitution does not mean what it says.

The man's troubles began in June 1973, when he put full-page ads in the Salt Lake City newspapers disputing the government's right to impose wage and price controls and daring the authorities to take after him for saying so. The IRS, which had the responsibility of administering the control program, immediately demanded to see Bray's books.

If Bray had any sense he would have quietly capitulated, produced his books and records and apologized to the IRS. They can wreck you so easily. They can take your car, your bank account, everything you own without even going to court.

Honesty is no defense either. They can always show you did your taxes wrong, because it is almost impossible to do them right. The IRS's own figures show that 74 percent of middle-income returns prepared by outfits like H&R Block are incorrect, but the greater the expertise of the tax preparer the more likely the possibility of mistakes. Thus 75 percent of middle-income returns prepared by accountants are wrong, 78 percent prepared by lawyers, and, get this, 79 percent prepared by the IRS itself are incorrect.

Which is but another way of saying there is no right way of preparing your taxes. You are always wrong. How can it be other? If nobody understands the regulations, nobody can obey them. When a law is violated daily by millions of people or a law is so complicated that millions of people can't obey it, the way is open for selective enforcement. Since the authorities can't hope to prosecute all the violators, as with marijuana or prostitution, selected lawbreakers are picked out. Wherever there is selective enforcement there is corruption, there is using law enforcement to get somebody for some other extraneous reason.

Bray ought to have known that, but there is a certain type of right-winger who doesn't realize that in a Democracy you do what the officials tell you to do. Instead he wrote a book called "Taxation and Tyranny" (impudent title) and got into more trouble. According to a UPI dispatch from Salt Lake City printed in "The Los Angeles Times" (all we've got is press clips on this fellow), the IRS subpoenaed Bray's bank account to get a list of all those who paid for a copy of the book by check.

The next year, 1974, we find Bray being convicted of a Federal misdemeanor charge of "illegal possession of Internal Revenue Service seizure stickers." The judge gives him the maximum six-month sentence after an IRS undercover agent testifies he heard Bray say, "Seizure notices would be put on cars and property in the local (Salt Lake City) area and it would be good publicity and would cause irate citizens to call the IRS." Bray's supporters contend that the stickers were Xeroxes that anyone could tell weren't genuine, but don't you sleep better for knowing the IRS has undercover agents to spare for infiltrating minuscule right-wing meetings in Salt Lake City? What chance does anybody have and why won't one of these 10,000 rampaging, vote-maddened politicians tell us if elected he will bridle the IRS? So what if he's lying?

Bray apparently is immune to that emotion. The following year, 1975, finds him defiantly back in the prisoner's dock. This time they have him up for claiming 15 dependents on his W-4 form, 14 of whom are largely imaginary. They also have him for refusing to fill out his income tax form. Like a lot of right-wingers, Bray believes that being compelled to fill out the form is a violation of his Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination. He does not understand that the Federal bench has recently ruled that the only unconstitutional act the rest of the government has committed in the last 100 years is to fail to give the judges large enough and timely enough pay raises.

In this trial the prosecution also accuses Bray of writing irritable irreverencies on his tax return like, "Go straight to hell... Do not pass Go... Do not collect $200." Poor boy, he didn't understand that the IRS considers $200 an insultingly low figure.

After the jury convicted him, the judge denounced him, saying Bray "comes awfully close to preaching insurrection against the government... That is lawlessness." It'll also get you a two-year sentence and a $10,000 fine. On top of which the judge, one Willis W. Ritter, said he was going to have criminal contempt charges filed against Bray for accusing his honor of accepting a $20,000 bribe.

You'll always get a stiffer sentence for trying to make the government live by its own laws than for trying to overthrow it. So we cannot expect to see Karl Bray and question him out of prison walls for some time. Still, if the Salt Lake papers have it right, he is a minor hero in Utah where, evidently, tax defiance is slowly gaining the respectability that draft defiance had a few years ago.

The Mystery Remains

WASHINGTON — The aura of mystery which surrounded Howard Hughes while he was alive still lingers after his death.

We have determined that the famous recluse, rich beyond comprehension, died of the symptoms of a neglected pauper. He spent his last days in the penthouse of one of Acapulco's most fashionable hotels. Yet he lived in unbelievable filth.

He commanded a $2 billion financial empire. Yet he refused to let aides attend him, shunned human contact, neglected his own physical needs. Most of the time, he was in a catatonic stupor.

Last week, he turned up in Houston, a "shriveled" and "emaciated" corpse. Sources privy to his condition say his frail, 90-pound body was dehydrated and covered with sores.

The Internal Revenue Service has started an investigation to determine whether this shrunken hulk of a man controlled his own affairs. There is evidence that he may have been incompetent and incapacitated.

Should this be established, the authorities will demand to know why a guardian wasn't appointed to manage his affairs' Every last dollar will be traced to determine whether his associates siphoned off any of his fortune.

In an attempt to unravel the Howard Hughes mystery, we have sent reporters to Acapulco, Houston and Los Angeles. We have spoken to every source we could find who might have had contact with Hughes.

We have pieced together the portraits, strangely, of two quite different Howard Hughes. The contrasting descriptions have been furnished, moreover, by equally reliable sources.

The first Howard Hughes began to emerge in the 1960s. Most of the time, he was rational, even brilliant. But he had irrational periods, which began to last longer and longer. He also developed a strange phobia against microbes.

Once, he contemplated purchasing a house in the Los Angeles area. He ordered his security forces to seal off six prospective homes, permitting no one, not even the owners, to enter. Not until these houses had been free of human contamination for three months would Hughes inspect them'

By 1964, his aides already had started to worry about his mental and physical deterioration. Sometimes, they couldn't get him to sign papers that were vital to his own interests' In a sworn statement, former aide Robert Maheu has told about discussing the problem with Hughes' chief of staff, Frank W. Gay, at Los Angeles' Bel Air Hotel'

"Frank W. Gay discussed with attorney Edward Morgan of Washington, D.C., and myself the advisability of initiating a plan whereby effectual control of the Hughes Tool Company might be worked out by a very selective group of a few individuals," Maheu attests, "in the event certain physical or mental problems should arise insofar as Mr. Hughes was concerned."

Gay stated, according to Maheu, "that he feared Mr. Hughes' mental condition might cause him to crack up at any moment and he wanted to be in a position so as to take advantage of such an eventuality."

Morgan recalled the discussion but not in any "sinister context." According to Morgan's recollection, Gay wanted to protect Hughes from himself and insure stable management of his interests.

Not long afterward, the eccentric billionaire disappeared into a Las Vegas penthouse. He would permit no one to come near him nor to clean his immediate surroundings. Thus the man who feared germs was soon wallowing in his own filth'

Witnesses report that Hughes became "an emaciated invalid with white hair down to his shoulders, shaggy eyebrows, a straggly beard and grotesquely long fingernails and toenails."

Dr' Harold L. Feikes, who was summoned to the penthouse to give Hughes blood transfusions in October 1974, reported to the sheriff that Hughes was in a catatonic state with a dangerously low hemoglobin count.

Yet the following month, the phantom billionaire vanished from Las Vegas. He was reported thereafter to be lodged in a series of penthousss in Nassau, Managua, Vancouver, London and Acapulco.

On Feb' 17, 1972, Hughes was hauled aboard a boat in the Bahamas in a stretcher-like wheelchair. The skipper, Bob Rehak, said Hughes had hair down to his shoulders, a stringy beard and yellowed, curling toenails about two inches long. Other witnesses have given similar descriptions.

Yet astonishingly, a different Howard Hughes was seen by reputable witnesses during this same period. U.S. Ambassador Turner Shelton, invited to meet Hughes aboard his executive jet, described him as "about six feet, three inches tall, very thin, weighing from 140-150 pounds, graying hair and neatly trimmed Van Dyke-type beard."

Apparently the same trim, distinguished man with the Van Dyke beard was seen in London by Nevada's Gov. Mike O'Callaghan and Gaming Board Chairman Phil Hanniflin. They had made a detailed study of Hughes, so they would be sure they were dealing directly with him. He answered every question with precise accuracy, recalling obscure, trivial details from his past.

This second Hughes was clean, alert, affable. He shook hands firmly, with no apparent fear of human contact. Was he the same man, with unkempt hair and toenails, who had become a hermit in his own luxurious penthouse? Or was he a double, who had been carefully coached on Hughes' background?

We have established this much. In the 1960s, a movie actor named Brooks Randall was hired occasionally to impersonate Hughes. This began as a ruse to deceive process servers. We have been unable, however, to locate Randall who was last reported in Colorado.

With Cool Vengeance ...

This spring the U.S. Supreme Court will tell five Southern states whether they may reinstate capital punishment as fitting punishment for murder. It is not a simple issue. Be assured that the High Court will be criticized no matter which way its judgment falls.

Capital punishment was struck down by the Court in 1972. Opponents of legal death hoped that the nine Justices would denounce it as "cruel and unusual punishment." The black-robed men sidestepped that phrase by claiming that death sentences were unevenly applied in the several states.

As an example, coercive rape might be punished in New York State with a one- or two-year sentence; in Florida the same crime could mean death in the electric chair.

Since 1972, the attorney generals of Texas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and North Carolina - each of whom want a death penalty on the books - have reached common agreement on an "even" law. Other states are watching the battle unfold before the Supreme Court, and if the new statutes are upheld, it will be copied in the East and Midwest.

GROUNDS FOR OPPOSITION

I have been opposed to capital punishment on two grounds: I was assigned to watch many executions; statistics tend to show that the threat of death does not inhibit potential murderers.

Two thousand years ago, man had no jails. The punishment for all crimes was death. In Rome, a citizen driving a chariot from the Alban Hills to the Senate would see, along the roadside, about 600 men dying on crosses.

In Palestine, all serious violations of God's law were punishable by stoning to death. In the Orient, heads were chopped off. At one time, Great Britain punished pickpockets with public hanging. More pockets were picked during the execution than on other occasions.

And yet, I waver in my belief. Crime in our streets is out of control. Our prisons are jammed. Criminals out on bail for one violent crime commit another. Some filling stations and bars sustain three and four holdups each year.

The big fight against capital punishment is not coming from liberals this time. Lawyers for the NAACP are in the forefront. They claim that a disproportionate number of blacks are sentenced to die.

Disproportionate to what? Blacks represent 11 per cent of our population. FBI statistics show that blacks are arrested for 41 per cent of all cases of aggravated assault, 57 per cent of all murders, and 62 per cent of robberies.

It is not racist to point to the inarguable fact that 11 per cent of the population perpetrates more than half the murders. Nor is it out of order to note that a great deal of black crime is directed against black people.

The U.S. Solicitor General, Robert H. Bork, has filed a brief in support of the Southern contention that the electric chair and hanging should be a part of our culture. New statistics, he says, prove that the death penalty is a deterrent to murder. The old ones never proved It.

LIMITS TOO NARROW!

If death stops crime, why limit it to murder? There are plenty of precedents in common law depicting hanging as fit punishment for all crimes of violence.

Armed robbery, assault with a deadly weapon, breaking and entering with threats to the lives of occupants - why not? If we must kill legally to stop illegal killing, let us protect our citizens from knives, guns, lead pipes, baseball bats and other barbarous attacks.

Kill them with cool vengeance. Let us deter all criminals from scaring us to death Hold all executions in the big dining halls of our state prisons. Attendance by convicts must be mandatory.

Let them see what lies ahead on their road. Why go part of the way? If my opposition to capital punishment must melt against the heat of the majority of citizens - so be it. But go all the way.

Why not mandatory life terms for three-time recidivists? I can forgive one crime. Maybe two. Nothing can persuade me that a convict who has been found guilty three times will reform.

Put him away permanently. Abolish the parole commissions, which are in business to undo the work of juries and judges. Put the criminal to work behind bars so that he is not a burden to the taxpayers.

Reluctantly, I concede that I was wrong. Toughen the laws and allow them to apply equally to all malefactors. These days, it's them or us . . .

John Chamberlain

Kissinger's Wrigglings

Henry Kissinger has been doing a powerful lot of wriggling lately. His State Department has accused Ronald Reagan of departing from the facts when he said Kissinger was willing to settle with the Soviet Union on a "second best" basis, which would inevitably result in the Communists taking over most of the strategic spots on the globe.

The question of veracity, of course, is not between Reagan and Kissinger; it is between Kissinger and Adm. Elmo R. Zumalt Jr., who claims to have heard it from Kissinger's own lips that the U.S. was a declining power that could not hope to wrestle world leadership from the Communists.

The wriggle on Zumwalt might be convincing if there weren't wriggles about a lot of other things. Currently Kissinger is trying to get out from under on ths so-called Sonnenfeldt doctrine. Helmut Sonnenfeldt, a State Department counselor, had allegedly let it be known to the West Europeans that the best way of avoiding war in Europe is to promote an "organic" relationship between Poles, Czechs, Hungarians and the Soviet Union itself. Kissinger has made light of Sonnenfeldt's defeatist briefing of U.S. European ambassadors, saying it has all been misconstrued by a junior foreign service officer.

Storm Signals

The Kissinger wriggles are a diversion: they fudge the fact that Ronald Reagan is exactly right when he says that the U.S. has slipped to Number Two in its military capabilities. Speaking before the House Committee on Armed Services recently, Eugene Rostow, the Yale law professor and former State Department official who represents the Coalition for a Democratic Majority, made it plain that the Soviets are far outdistancing this country in the crucial matter of atomic missile throw-weight. Citing Paul Nitze's doubts about the Vladivostok Salt II understanding, Rostow told the Congressmen that the new Soviet SS-19s have three times the throw-weight of the U.S. Minuteman III, and the new SS-18s seven times. With at least a three-to-one superiority over the U.S. in throw-weight, the Soviets may be tempted to doubt the Americans have a second-strike capacity capable of remaining in being to reply to a devastating surprise attack on the military installations of the continental U.S. Big wars, in the past, have always resulted from such uncertainties, and Rostow is rightly perturbed by the picture of a U.S. that dawdles about the B-1 bomber, which could make up for some of the missile throw-weight that Kissinger has given away.

Rostow's Coalition for a Democratic Majority is, of course, presumed to be in Sen. Henry Jackson's corner, but there is no reason why Ronald Reagan can't make use of the Rostow figures.

Rostow is appalled by the inability of the U.S. to do anything more than remain mum about Lebanon and Libya, which seem to him more important than Angola.

On the same day that Rostow was testifying in Washington, Dr. Uri Ra'anan of the Fletcher School of Diplomacy at Tufts was complaining to Senators Humphrey and Case that the latest Sadat "break" with the Soviet Union could be pure window dressing. Sadat has said the failure of the Soviets to supply him with arms replacements means that the Egyptian armaments will soon be "junk."

Red Reality

but from Cairo published press sources that the New York Times could read if it would, Dr. Ra'anan has learned that the Russians have sent 1,000 tanks, including 500 of the most advanced T-628, to Egypt since 1973.

Moreover, 30 Soviet MIG 23s went to Egypt last year, along with some advanced SU 20 swing-wing planes. SCUD missiles capable of hitting Tel Aviv from the Suez Canal forward area have also been sent to Cairo. All of this equipment is new; it won't be "junk" for a long time to come.

Once before, in 1972, Sadat "broke" with the Soviet Union. It was all a hoax, as was later revealed by Abdul al-Satar al-Tawilla, editor of Rose al-Yusuf, the official organ of the Arab Socialist Union. Sadat himself gave his blessing to the book in which the Cairo editor boasted of the way the Egyptians camouflaged their preparations for the Yom Kippur War of 1973.

Could it be that we are being hoaxed all over again by the "departure" of the Russians from Cairo?

Angola May Be New 'China' for Soviet

It is possible but highly improbable that the fate of Angola will be all settled by the time these ruminations on the subject reach print. Our so often confused and ill informed government seems to have been singularly disinterested when it all began, while the Russians apparently saw clearly and promptly the immense importance of this so long ignored, big and potentially big rich chunk of Africa and its coast. Angola (it came as a surprise when I looked it up) is twice the size of Texas and has a thousand miles of coast land—and was, when its liberation came, totally unprepared for becoming its own boss and is almost totally undeveloped. Now, suddenly it is up for grabs in the major power world.

The stake of the Russians in turning it into a colony under its control and our stake in developing it into a truly liberated Western oreinted democracy would seem to me to have been self-evident to any thoughtful internationalist.The Russians' experts certainly recognized the opportunity but our Kissenger-led State Department appears to have been bemused by the Middle-East muddle—and hypnotized by the illusion of detente—that it hadn't taken the time to do its homework. All it could think of was approving the covert operations which Congress so promptly stepped on. What else could Congress do—so late in the game and with all of us still in shock from the catastrophy that the originally covert operations in Indochina turned into?

As a betting man, I see no choice now but to put my wager on local factions backed by the Russians—whose military equipment I can't see the still primitive majority of Angolans being able to counter. A John F. Kennedy, for better of worse, might have called the Russian's hand, as he did in the Cuban missile crisis, with a "stay out or else . . . " ultimatum. But would an uninformed and unsophisticated American electorate have backed him up? Again, after Vietnam I doubt it.

So where do we stand now? All I can see, looking over the international chess board, is to recognize the fact that the Russians have taken another piece and then to reanalyze our game with them in the light of this fact.

If you'd like a cheery note, remember that the Russians once appeared to have captured the queen-size piece of Asia, which is China—only to find that it is still on the board playing against them.

To have a military dictatorship of the minority swallowing Angola, to change the metaphors, is not to have to accept the fact that they will be able to digest it. International politics is not quite like chess. When you capture a chess man, you remove him from the board. Angola isn't transplantable to Russia's border and the Russians may find, as they found in China, that they are not as welcome as "liberators" as they expected to be.

So if we won't be so silly as to turn all black Africa against us by a-lying ourselves with white power in South Africa, things may not turn out so badly after all.

The Campaign Answer Man

By Arnold Sawislak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Campaign Answer Man is back in town and we've asked him to drop by to give us an analysis of the issues that have dominated the 1976 presidential primaries so far.

Question: Sir, we've heard a great deal about detente during the last few weeks. Would you define detente for us and tell us just what the controversy is about?

Answer Man: Delighted. Detente refers to Dr. Kissinger's dental work. The big issue is whether the secretary of state was in violation of the Buy America Act when he had a cavity filled in Smolensk.

Question: Well, what are the positions of the candidates on this issue?

Answer Man: As you might imagine, Gov. Carter is most vitally interested in the issue of dental health. He has pledged to reduce the secretary's teeth from 32 to 11, but declines to say whether Kissinger's incisors or molars would be the first to go.

Sen. Jackson takes a hard line on the issue. He pledges to bite the Russians if they remain recalcitrant. Rep. Udall has a joke he tells about dentists. Gov. Reagan has come out firmly against electric tooth brushes and the President has called in an orthodontist from Grand Rapids to advise him on the matter.

Question: The economy seems to be a major issue. What are the candidates saying about jobs?

Answer Man: Well, each has his own program. Sen. Jackson plans to put the unemployed to work building airplanes. Rep. Udall would have them filling strip mines. Gov. Reagan would hire 200,000 unemployed people to investigate welfare chiseling.

Gov. Wallace would institute a program hiring welfare mothers to shred guidelines and dump them into the Potomac. Gov. Carter promises to tell the truth about the issue. And the President says he, for one, isn't going to panic.

Question: Is there much concern about mass transit?

Answer Man: This could become a hot issue. The President is preparing a program to provide subway cars to Dalhart, Tex., Anaheim, Calif., and cities in other states with late primaries by repossessing the Pelham line in New York City.

Sen. Jackson favors a new technology — moving commuters to their jobs on airplanes, while Gov. Carter leans toward submarines. Gov. Wallace plans to take the bicycles away from the college professors and giving them to steel workers in Gary, Ind., and other people who can park them straight.

Question: Well, how important will these issues be in determining the nominations and the election? We hear all the time that image and personalities are dominating the campaign.

Answer Man: Not so. Rep. Udall, for one, denied that both in New York and Milwaukee, after his one-on-one matches with local professional basketball stars. And Gov. Carter simply dismisses the issue with a smile.

Question: So we won't be hearing about charisma in this campaign? Answer Man: Now that Gov. Shapp is out of it, we've seen the last of charisma.

Predictions a Bad Mistake

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although not a veteran practioner of the trade, Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina is an astute politician.

He proved that to President Ford's chagrin and Ronald Reagan's surprise when he delivered North Carolina for the former California governor in the state's GOP presidential primary.

So his views on Reagan's campaign strategy are worth noting.

"The worst mistake the Reagan strategists have made," Helms said shortly beforethe North Carolina primary, "has been the expansiveness of their predictions."

At the outset of the campaign, the Reagan public policy was to claim a victory if he could run 40 per cent in New Hampshire against an incumbent President. This was the figure duly put forth by former Rep. Hugh Gregg, his Granite State campaign manager.

But when the soundings started sounding better, Gregg could not resist and started prediciting 45 per cent. And then Meldrim Thompson, the irascible governor and Reagan backer, jumped that and made it 55 per cent.

So when Ford narrowly edged Reagan in New Hampshire, it was scored as a victory for the President rather than a good showing by a candidate challenging a sitting chief executive.

He started off by predicting that Reagan would beat Ford by a 2-1 margin and jumped that to 3-1. Even after Reagan lost in New Hampshire, the ebullient Thomas was promising a "landslide" 55 per cent and adding — for good measure — that Reagan would sweep all but perhaps one congressional district.

Reagan, of course, is not the first political candidate to suffer from great expectations that wind up unfulfilled.

Edmund S. Muskie decisively beat George S. McGovern in the 1972 New Hampshire presidential primary. But Muskie was perceived as a loser because he fell short of the percentages his campaign aides predicted and McGovern was seen as a winner because he topped the figures he was putting out for public print.

And there are people today who think they remember that Eugene J. McCarthy beat Lyndon B. Johnson in the 1968 New Hampshire primary. He didn't but he ran so strongly against an incumbent, the impression was that McCarthy thrashed Johnson.

For all practical purposes, McGovern ended Muskie's candidacy and McCarthy chased Johnson into retirement on the basis of those New Hampshire results.

Neither McGovern nor McCarthy even reached 40 per cent of the vote but Reagan who took 48 per cent of the vote and came within less than 1,000 votes of winning inflicted no damage on Ford.

Having failed to stop Ford anywhere and perhaps at Helms' insistence, there were no victory predictions in North Carolina.

Helms said it would be a "tough pull" and expressed concern about the "great masses" of undecideds.

For his part, Reagan said he would settle for a close second and talked about winning primaries down the road where "our chances for victory are greater."

As a result, when Reagan beat Ford in North Carolina, it was recorded as an upset and an important victory for a faltering campaign.

And it was Ford — who breezily predicted victory three days before the primary —who was saddled with the expansiveness of his own predictions.

Divying Slices Of Budget's Pie

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., wants to cut $500 million in defense spending from next year's budget and add $100 million for juvenile justice.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., wants to add $2.5 billion for jobs, health, meals for the elderly, community development and rural water and sewer projects.

Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., wants to slice $6.8 billion from funds for natural resources, community development, education, health and welfare.

Those were among the proposals being made today as the Senate debated a $412.6 billion 1977 federal budget recommended by the Senate Budget Committee. It is $17 billion more than President Ford requested.

This year for the first time Congress is voting on how national priorities should be divided among broad categories in the overall budget. Though its decisions will be targets only, they will carry much weight when specific appropriation bills come to the floor.

President Ford asked Congress to increase defense spending next year but to slow down the growth of many social welfare programs.

The Senate Budget Committee approved nearly all his defense request. It recommended social welfare spending higher than Ford proposed but still below the level of current programs plus inflation.

JFK Loves Arousing Guesswork

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Times said today disclosures that President Kennedy and two major Mafia figures had close friendships with the same woman had aroused extensive speculation.

In the first of a series of three articles on the subject, the newspaper said the speculation had been stimulated because mafia figures John Roselli and Sam Giancana maintained the relationship with Judith Campbell (now Mrs. Judith Exener) "at the very time she was having an affair with the president."

Though both men were involved in the Central Intelligence Agency's abortive plots to assassinate Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro, the Times said a report on the plots by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence referred only briefly — slightly more than a page in the 349 page report — to Mrs. Campbell.

In interviews with current and former Justice Department officials, participants in the CIA plots and underworld figures, the Times had found:

— "Several recommendations were made within the Justice Department in 1962 for a thorough investigation of Mrs. Campbell's Mafia ties, but no inquiry was ever conducted.

— "Sam Giancona and John Roselli boasted to fellow gangsters about sharing the affections of a woman who was seeing the president.

— "While the Senate committee found no evidence that President Kennedy knew about the CIA-Mafia plots to kill Mr. Castro, the possibility appears high to some former Justice officials that Robert F. Kennedy, the Attorney General, told his brother about the plots in view of what he learned about the relationships of Mr. Giancana, Mr. Roselli and Mrs. Campbell in 1962 and early 1963."

Riggs' Son Found Dead

MANOR HAVEN — (UPI) — The unemployed son of Bobby Riggs, the flamboyant tennis hustler, has been found dead in a Long Island rooming house, authorities reported.

Nassau County police said James Riggs, 22, was found dead in his bed at a Long Island address by his roommate Saturday evening.

Police said a "narcotic implement" was found nearby the body. But they would not say if Riggs' death was caused by drug use. Homicide detectives said there was no indication Riggs was slain.

The spokesman for the county medical examiner's office said the body was identified Sunday by James' brother, John. An autopsy had been completed, the spokesman said, but the cause of death was "pending until toxicological and microscopic examinations could be made."

Shotgun Ambush

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two armored car guards making a cash pickup at a Times Square movie theater today were shot and critically wounded by four masked gunmen who were waiting in ambush for them, police reported.

Police said the guards, members of the Purolator Security Inc. armored car company, were rushed to St. Clare's Hospital for emergency treatment of shotgun wounds.

A hospital spokesman said one guard had been shot in the chest and the other in the stomach. Both were listed in grave condition.

It was believed the gunmen escaped without any money.

Floyd Wanted Masters Title In Neat Tidy Package

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Ray Floyd knew he had the Masters won, but he wanted to wrap it all up in a neat, tidy package.

"I knew the tournament was mine Saturday night," said Floyd after his runaway eightstrike victory Sunday. "I didn't believe anyone else could catch me. But, I didn't want to do it sloppily."

He didn't.

Floyd had a steady 2-under-par 70 in the final round, good enough for a four-day total of 17-under-par 271 that tied the Masters record Jack Nicklaus set back in 1965.

"I honestly wasn't thinking about the record at first," he said. "But I did start thinking about it when I went 17 under with my birdie at the 15th hole.

"I knew I had the tournament won, providing I didn't break a leg or something, so I figured why not go for the record, I had my chances. I had a chance at 16, hit the ball right at the flag at 17, and, although I hit a squibbler at 18, I had a shot at a birdie putt there, too."

Floyd parred the last three holes and thus missed setting a new 72-hole mark. But he already had a good four-days work in the bag. He set 36 (131) and 54-hole (201) records and his 14 under par showing for the par fives at Augusta National was a stroke better than Jimmy Demaret's next-best showing back in 1950.

"My play on the par fives was the secret of my success this week," said Floyd. "I figured the way the course was playing that if I hit the ball well I'd have a chance to birdie all of them."

He did better than that the first three days, getting 11 birdies and an eagle in 12 chances, but birdied only one of the four par-fives Sunday.

"I didn't really have very good chances for birdies on the two par-fives on the front nine," he said. "But, I thought I had one at 13 where I lipped out."

Floyd, who raised his earnings for the year to nearly $55,000 by picking up $40,000 in the Masters, had three birdies and a bogey in Sunday's round.

The bogey came at the parthree fourth hole where he missed the green. He got that shot back on the fifth hole by placing a three-iron shot three feet from the pin; ran home a 20-footer at No. 12; then sank a 15-footer at No. 15.

"I was very pleased with my round, of course," said Floyd. "My goal was to have a good round. Under the circumstances, considering my lead and the wind, I feel it was as good a round as I had all week."

Floyd shot a 7-under-par 65 in Thursday's opening round to take a one-stroke lead, widened that to five strokes with a 66 on Friday, and then moved eight strokes ahead on Saturday when he birdied the fina l hole for a 70.

"That's when I knew I had the tournament won," he said. "I'm a human being, I get nervous. But, I felt I handled it pretty well."

Young Ben Crenshaw, winner of two back-to-back tournaments earlier this year, had a 67 Sunday, the best score in the final round, for a 9-under-par 279 that earned him $25,000 second-place money.

"I didn't have that much pressure," said Crenshaw. "I was so far back, I was playing for second place. I'm tickled to be second. It was the first time I ever broke 70 at the Masters."

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, favored to win his sixth Masters championship, had his second straight 73 Sunday and wound up tied for third, at 282, with Larry Ziegler, Floyd's last-round playing partner.

"There was no denying Ray," said Ziegler. "At the start of the round there was always the chance that he might play badly and someone else might play good. But nobody had a chance to catch him after nine holes."

Ziegler said Floyd "showed his confidence" at the first hole when he drove behind a pine tree, hooked a seven-iron to the fringe of the green and got his par.

Former U.S. Open champ Hale Irwin, former Masters champ Charles Coody and Tom Kite all had 285s and former Masters champ Billy Casper had a 287 as only eight golfers from the original Masters field of 72 were able to beat par for the full four rounds.

Sunday's victory was the seventh in 13 years on the pro tour for the 33-year-old Floyd, who used to have more of a reputation as a playboy than as a golfer.

It also was his second major victory. He won the PGA Championship in 1969, the year he also won the American Golf Classic and the Greater Jacksonville Open, then he didn't win again until last year's Kemper Open.

"I didn't use to take my golf seriously," said Floyd. "Frankly, I didn't like golf, it was just a way to make money. But, that's behind me now. I'm married and the father of two and I'm now determined to become a good golfer.

"I'm tired of being a mediocre player. I want to win a lot of tournaments, especially the majors."

Sonics In Right Spot For Playoffs In NBA

By United Press International

The Seattle Sonics will be just where they want to be when the National Basketball Association playoffs open this week—at home.

The Sonics overcame a determined Portland effort in their regular season finale Sunday 132-131 to finish in second place in the Pacific Division and earn the home court advantage in their best-of-seven quarterfinal showdown with the Phoenix Suns.

The Sonics will thus shoot for their 17th consecutive home court win Tuesday in their opening confrontation with the Suns. The Sonics, who own a 31-10 home record compared with a 12-29 road mark, were last defeated here by the Suns on Feb. 8.

"It couldn't happen to a better team," announced irrepressible Slick Watts following his club's critical victory over Portland. "They really played well. That's the best I've ever seen Bill Walton play."

It was Watts, along with backcourt mate Fred Brown, who ignited a fourth quarter rally which saw the Sonics erase an 11-point Blazer lead in the final seven minutes. Brown, who equaled Walton's game-high 33 points, scored 12 in the fourth period and Watts added 15.

Seattle went ahead to stay on Tommy Burleson's two free throws with 53 seconds left but needed a free throws from Burleson and Watts to secure the win.

Walton staked the Blazers to a 34-26 first quarter lead with 15 points, five rebounds and four assists. But with Walton sidelined with three fouls in the second quarter, the Sonics struck for 40 points and a 66-61 halftime lead.

Walton added 12 points in the third quarter as the Blazers went back in front 94-92 and overall hit 14-of-17 shots, grabbed 14 rebounds and added six assists before fouling out in the final minute.

Celtics 103, Bullets 99

John Havlicek scored a season-high 38 points in Boston's last regular season contest to break a four-game losing streak. Paul Silas added 17 and Charlie Scott and JoJo White 15. Elvin Hayes led Washington with 24. Boston draws a first-round playoff bye while Washington plays Cleveland Tuesday.

Braves 99, Kings 98

Bob McAdoo garnered his third straight scoring crown, scoring 34 points to complete the season with a 31.1 average. McAdoo also grabbed 12 rebounds while Ken Charles added 20 points and John Shumate 17 points and 15 rebounds. Nate Archibald topped Kansas City with 27 points and Scott Wedman had 22. The Braves' playoff opener is in Philadelphia Thursday.

Bulls 111, Bucks 77

Tom Boerwinkle, Mickey Johnson and Cliff Pondexter combined for 75 Chicago points to end a three-game losing streak. Midwest Division champion Milwauke meets Detroit in its first playoff game Tuesday.

Rockets 122, Hawks 111

Joe Meriweather scored 25 points and Rudy Tomjanovich added 24 for Houston in a battle of two non-playoff teams. Dean Meminger had 24 for Atlanta, which fell behind by as many as 20 points several times in the second half.

Knicks 103, Cavs 78

Butch Beard led a balanced New York attack with 16 points. Dick Snyder led Cleveland, which meets Washington Tuesday in its first playoff contest, with 13 points.

Jazz 112, Pistons 105

Pete Maravich scored 31 points and added nine assists to carry New Orleans past Detroit. The Pistons had seven men in double figures, led by 15 points each by Bob Lanier and Curtis Rowe.

French Connection Reconnects

By UPI

The French Connection has reconnected.

So much trouble that the "French Connection" line only scored twice in the three games, two of which went into overtime, and had but three assists. Last year, the three forwards scored 18 goals in 17 Stanley Cup playoff games and added 25 assists.

Sunday night, however, the trio could do no wrong. Robert scored his first two playoff goals this year and Perreault and Martin each scored once and had two assists for an eight-point spree as the Sabres won 5-3 over the New York Islanders in the first game of their best-of-seven quarterfinal series.

"Some nights it seems everything is going your way," said Robert. "You can't make a mistake. I guess tonight was just one of those nights."

Sabres Coach Floyd Smith noted his team "had a little something to prove. The Islanders had beaten us the last two times in our building and we wanted to go out out and play a real solid game. That's what we did."

Robert and Perreault scored in the first period and Don Luce tallied 19 seconds into the second period against Glenn Resch, who compiled the NHL's second-best goals-against average during the regular season.

"I think the one that really broke their back was the third one," said Robert. "They seemed to give up after that."

"The goal Luce got at the start of the second period was a big factor," agreed Smith. "Before they could even get going they were three down instead of two down."

Buffalo goalie Gerry Desjardins made a bad clearing pass to New York's Billy Harris in the second period for the Islanders' first goal but Martin increased the margin to 4-1 less than four minutes later on a power play goal.

Resch was replaced by Bill Smith after the second period and New York's Bob Nystr9m cut the score to 4-2 on a power play goal 6:19 into the final period. But Robert's goal 67 seconds later insured the Sabres' win.

"When we play physical, we make things happen," said New York Coach Al Arbour. "When we don't, we just don't operate at all. We didn't play physical. That's our game and they took it away from us. The two overtime games they won certainly gave them a lift."

In the other quarterfinal round games, both home teams won 4-0--Montreal blanking Chicago and Boston beating Los Angeles. Defending champion Philadelphia begins play tonight at home against Toronto.

In World Hockey Association playoffs, New England edged Cleveland 3-2, Calgary outlasted Quebec 8-4 and Winnipeg overtimed Edmonton 5-4.

Canadiens 4, Black Hawks 0

Montreal's Larry Robinson and Peter Mahovlich each had a goal and an assist as Ken Dryden chalked up his fourth career playoff shutout. Dryden made only 22 saves, the hardest against Ivan Boldirev early in the game. Rookie Doug Jarvis and Jim Roberts also scored for Montreal.

Bruins 4, Kings 0

Jean Ratelle, who scored twice while Boston had a man advantage and also had an assist, and Ken Hodge hit power play goals 23 seconds apart in the first period to aid Gilles Gilbert's second career playoff shutout. Gilbert stopped 21 shots in the second period.

WHA

New England advanced to the East Division final round with its third straight win in the best-of-five first round series after trailing 2-0 ... Calgary scored six goals in the third period in a game halted for more than an hour by a benchclearing brawl in which Marc Tardif was carried off the ice unconscious and a Cowboy player will be charged with criminal assault ... and Ulf Nilsson stole the puck from an Edmonton player to score an unassisted overtime goal for Winnipeg.

Take It From Pete Rose, Reds Are Awesome

By UPI

Awesome.

That's the word Pete Rose uses to describe the Cincinnati Reds and it would be difficult to think of a better one.

How else would you describe a team that has won three straight games, is averaging 11 runs per game and has two players in its lineup batting .636 and .563, respectively?

The Reds made it three wins in a row Sunday when they whipped the Houston Astros, 93, with Pete Rose going 4-for-6 and Joe Morgan 2-for-4. The Reds scored a total of 33 runs in the three games; Rose has a .563 batting average, and Morgan is hitting .636.

The Reds scored two runs in the first inning on a single by Rose, a walk to Ken Griffey, a double by Morgan and Tony Perez' infield out. They routed Joe Niekro with a four-run burst in the fourth inning when they built their lead to 6-0.

Pat Darcy pitched perfect ball for five innings, but was relieved by Pat Zachary in the sixth after yielding two hits and a walk. Zachary retired the last two batters in the sixth and Will McEnaney pitched the ninth.

The San Francisco Giants defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers, 6-4; the Atlanta Braves beat the San Diego Padres, 4-2; the Pittsburgh Pirates topped the Philadelphia Phillies, 8-3; the Chicago Cubs downed the St. Louis Cardinals, 8-5; and the Montreal Expos nipped the New York Mets, 7-6.

In the American League, it was Boston 6 Baltimore 2, Minnesota 4 Texas 3, and Oakland 10 California 7. Kansas City at Chicago, Detroit at Cleveland and New York at Milwaukee were postponed due to poor weather conditions.

Giants 6, Dodgers 4

Pinch-hitter Dave Rader's pinch-hit double climaxed a four-run eighth inning rally which lifted the Giants to their victory over the Dodgers. Mike Marshall was the victim of the rally aided when leftfielder Bill Buckner and rightfielder Joe Ferguson lost wind-blown flies. Reliever Randy Moffit, who pitched one inning of hitless relief, was the winner.

Braves 4, Padres 2

Pitcher Dick Ruthven drove in three runs with two singles and received credit for the Braves' win with relief help from Roger Moret and Pablo Torrealba. Ruthven singled in Atlanta's first two runs in the second inning and drove in a third run as the Braves went ahead 4-0 in the fourth.

Pirates 8, Phillies 3

Richie Zisk and Rennie Stennett knocked in two runs each as the Pirates kayoed Steve Carlton in the fifth and went on to beat the Phillies. Carlton retired the first 10 batters, but the Pirates took a 2-0 lead when Manny Sanguillen singled, Al Oliver walked and Zisk doubled. Bruce Kison went five innings for the win, with Bob Moose pitching the last four innings.

Cubs 8, Cardinals 5

Bill Madlock singled in the tie-breaking run and Andy Thornton and Steve Swisher followed with sacrifice flies as the Cubs rallied for three runs in the ninth to beat the Cardinals. Manny Trillo had three hits for the Cubs and Bake McBride, Mike Anderson and Vic Harris had three each for the Cardinals.

Expos 7, Mets 6

Nate Colbert, who always seems at his best against the Mets, drove in two runs with a homer and a single as the Expos dealt former American League great Mickey Lolich a loss in his National League debut. Lolich, acquired from Detroit for Rusty Staub, allowed three runs in two innings and committed a damaging error. Jerry Grote drove in two runs for the Mets.

Johnson's Hunch Paid Dividends

By UPI

Call it intuition or call it luck, manager Darrell Johnson's decision Sunday to overlook the law of averages resulted in the Boston Red Sox netting their first victory of the season.

Denny Doyle's three-run double climaxed a five-run third inning and Fred Lynn belted his first home run of the year as the Red Sox defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 6-2, behind the pitching of veteran Luis Tiant and reliever Reggie Cleveland.

The victory enabled the Red Sox, the defending American League champions, to salvage the final game of the three-game series.

"Cuellar throws that screwball to the right-handed batters so I assume that's why I was in the lineup today," said Doyle. "Not being in the starting lineup every day is out of my hands."

Lynn, named the AL's "Rookie of the Year" and "Most Valuable Player" last season, continued his hot-hitting with a home run and a double. Lynn now has six hits in his last nine at-bats.

Lynn doubled to open the explosive third inning. After Jim Rice singled Lynn to third base, Carlton Fisk's single scored Lynn and a single by Carl Yastrzemski scored Rice. After Rico Petrocelli coaxed a two-out walk to load the bases, southpaw Mike Flanagan replaced Cuellar and was greeted by Doyle's double, which barely eluded first baseman Lee May, scoring Carlton Fisk, Yastrzemski and Rico Petrocelli.

In other games Minnesota edged Texas 4-3 and Oakland outslugged California 10-7. Detroit at Cleveland, New York at Milwaukee, and a doubleheader between Kansas City City and Chicago were all postponed due to adverse weather conditions.

Twins 4, Rangers 3

Dan Ford's solo home run in the ninth inning broke a 3-3 tie and gave the Twins their first victory of the season. The Rangers had battled back from a 3-0 deficit before Ford's blast off Jeff Terpko, the fourth Ranger pitcher, snapped a two-game losing streak. Five-time American League batting champion Rod Carew also doubled twice and scored twice for the Twins. A's 10, Angels 7

Sal Bando ripped a two-run homer to highlight a four-run first inning Oakland outburst and Bill North singled in two runs in the eighth frame as the A's outlasted California for a sweep of the three-game series.

After surrendering eight runs in the first three innings, the Angels battled back, scoring three times in the fifth, twice more on Orlando Ramirez's two-run single in the sixth and two more on Bill Melton's homer in the seventh. But Oakland came back with two runs in the eighth inning to decide the contest.

Pearson Just Stayed In Front

Baker's Ford had grabbed the lead with 255 miles gone in the race and, except for pit stops, had dominated the race. But Benny Parsons spun out coming out of the fourth turn late in the race and the drivers had only 17 laps to go when racing resumed.

The caution allowed Pearson to close on Baker. Pearson passed him with 16 miles to go in the race and then kept his Wood Brothers Mercury just far enough ahead to win.

"I felt like I might could have caught him without the caution, but I don't know that I would have passed him," Pearson said. "I was running as hard as I felt like I could run and hold the car.

"I guess I was running as fast as I could."

"The left front fender got crumpled and created what amounted to an air pocket between the fender and the hood," Baker said. "When I hit top speed the drag created by that air pocket was like putting on brakes.

Finishing third was Parsons in a Chevrolet, followed by Lennie Pond in a Chevrolet and Dave Marcis in a Dodge.

Playoff 'Crowd' Irks Kevin Loughery

Kevin Loughery, veteran of 11 seasons with four teams in the National Basketball Association, a "basketball junkie," who "would go to high school games if there was no college or pro game around," was disgusted, almost beaten.

"If I was a player, I'd prefer to go down there and play against 10,000 screaming fans, even if they're all cheering against me, rather than 5,000 of our fans at home. There's no homecourt advantage here. This is the worst playoff crowd I've ever seen."

There was an announced attendance of 5,769 at the game.

There is a franchise dying here. Loughery was not so upset about New York Nets losing to the San Antonio Spurs, 105-79, Sunday—the worst loss by the Nets all year. That was only a playoff game. The first round American Basketball Association series is now 1-1 and there will be at least three more games. Loughery was talking about his job, his mainline interest: basketball.

"I'm totally disappointed," Loughery said, the thin whine of disgust in his voice. "Sometimes when a team isn't as sharp as you'd like them to be, a crowd can give you a lift. But the ABA has lost a lot of credibility and we're suffering. We've got the most exciting player in the game and one of the best teams and we get crowds like this on a Sunday, our best day.

"Maybe we should stop making excuses. Maybe they don't want us. Maybe we should stop fooling ourselves. But it's really too bad nobody cares."

San Antonio's George Gervin cared enought to play with a soft cast on his broken shooting hand and score 22 points. James Silas cared enough to leave his bed on crutches and come to the game after finding out he couldn't play the rest of the playoffs because he had chipped a bone when he fell in Friday night's loss. The other Spurs cared enough to gather their strength from Silas' injury and redeem themselves after a poor opening game.

"Now they gonna come to San Antonio, man, and we gonna spring 10,000 mad fans on them," said Gervin. "Now they comin' to our party. Love that sweet home court."

The three ex-Nets—Larry Kenon, Billy Paultz and Mike Gale—contributed richly to the Spurs' victory and knew exactly how their former teammates felt about the non-crowd.

"It's tough to rally yourself when there's no one watching," said Kenon, who contributed 30 and 10 rebounds. "It was awful quiet out there."

"It's got to hurt them," said Paultz, who had 20 points and 18 rebounds. And Gale, who ran the offense smoothly with 14 points and 13 assists said, "I've never been able to figure it out."

All the Nets were depressed about lack of fan support but none wanted to take refuge in it as an excuse for the loss. Besides it was the first loss on their home court in 15 games.

"We shot 31 percent, that's why we lost," said Erving, whose 27 points disguised a ragged game.

Solomon Catches Ken Rosewall

Rosewall had won a thrilling three set victory over another young star, Eddie Dibbs, Saturday but he faltered Sunday under a hot Texas sun. Solomon, 23, wore down the 41-year-old Australian to win his second World Championship Tennis title of the season.

The win was worth $17,000 for Solomon and was his first pro victory in the town where he began his tennis career at Rice University.

Solomon, of Silver Spring, Md., won the WCT Washington D.C. tournament three weeks ago. His victory at River Oaks gave him an outside shot at gaining the eight-man field for the WCT finals at Dallas in two weeks.

Rosewall, teamed with Rod Laver, downed Charles Pasarell and Allan Stone, 6-4, 6-2, for the doubles crown.

After Solomon broke Rosewall's service in the seventh game of the first set and held to win 6-4, Rosewall came back to outdual his younger opponent in four long games of the second set.

Tied 1-1 in games, Rosewall won five straight to even the match at one set apiece.

Solomon allowed Rosewall to win the final game of the second set in order to begin the third with his own service. The strategy worked.

He forced Rosewall into three straight forehand errors to win the first game 40-15. Then the aggressive Solomon broke Rosewall's service 15-40 on a blistering backhand shot sent cross-court. Solomon made it 3-0 in the third set, coming from behind and forcing Rosewall into a net error.

After Rosewall held service to make it 3-1, Solomon won the key fifth game in four points by forcing two Rosewall errors on forehand shots and then watching as Rosewall committed two unforced errors.

Lehigh Upends Hawks

BETHLEHEM, Pa.—Lehigh University's powerful tennis squad ended New Paltz State College's winning streak at three here Saturday, defeating the New Yorkers 7-2, in a dual meet.

Coach Bob Durkin's Hawks were able to win only the No. 3 and No. 4 singles.

Jack Ridge of Lehigh defeated Roy Coopersmith in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3, in the No. 1 singles. In the No. 2 match, Ted Yerdon of Lehigh stopped New Paltz's Mark Chase 6-2, 6-0.

Ron Kleinberg, former Catskill High School star and State U. freshman, rallied to defeat Bill Long of Lehigh in the No. 3 singles, 2-6, 6-4 and 6-3.

Ken McGrady of New Paltz tied the match at 2-2 with a 6-4, 6-2 win over Lehigh's Kevin Kenmore but after that it was all downhill for the visitors. Lehigh swept the next two singles and all three doubles matches.

In the No. 5 singles, Lehigh's Nick Hano won over Dave Brenner 6-3, 3-6 and 6-2. Bill Siegele gave Lehigh a 4-2 edge in singles by winning over Scott Rosmarin, 6-1, 6-2.

(Doubles Results)

No. 1—Ridge and Yardon, L, defeated Coopersmith and Brenner, 6-4, 6-4.

No. 2—Long and Gary Kent, L, defeated Chase and McGrady, 6-5, 7-6.

No. 3—Siegelse and Ernie Diansato, L, won over Kleinberg and Rosmarin, 6-1, 6-4.

Artie's Set Record

KINGSTON—Led by Bill Fitzgerald's 47-point barrage, Artie's set a seasonal high for scoring in one quarter with 48 points, enroute to a 116-78 rout of Uhl's Construction in the YMCA "B" Basketball League.

In other games, Tudoroff's nipped Giustino's Market, 77-76; Dolphin Inn trounced J. Berinato's, 77-61; and Pearls rolled over Sonny's, 99-78.

Fitzgerald, the league's highest scorer, pumped 19 baskets and nine free throws for his 47 points. Ed Burns assisted with 29 and Paul Saehloff added 18. Juice Barnes of Uhl's maintained his position as No. 2 scorer with 31 points and Joe Kershawk contributed 20. Saehloff had 14 rebounds, Kershaw 14.

Gary Chambers starred for Gisutino's with 22 points and 12 rebounds. Bruce Jerry rimmed 18 points and Ben Hamilton 13. Tuduroff's won the game with a 23-22 edge in the final quarter.

Rockey Secreto led with 20 points and five other players were in double figures in the Dolphin win over Berinato's. Hugh Schrowang had 12 points and 17 rebounds, Ed McDevitt was the top performer for Berinato's with 29 points and 12 rebounds.

YMCA Tennis Lessons

KINGSTON—The YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County's Program Committee will be offering Adult Tennis Lessons under the direction of Pete Zeeh beginning April 28. The lessons are in response to a large number of requests from Y members, and will be geared toward the beginner and less skilled players.

The classes will be held for six weeks, with both an afternoon class starting at 1 p.m. and an evening class at 8.30 p.m. being offered. The classes will be coed and take place in the YMCA's Upper Gym.

Those wishing more information should call the YMCA or stop in at the main office at 507 Broadway.

The YMCA is a member of the United Wayof Kingston and Ulster County.

Frisbee Title To Princeton

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Princeton has captured the first Ivy League Frisbee Championship by defeating Cornell, 15-11.

The team members who played Saturday were not typicial "jocks." Most wore makeshift uniforms and their relaxed attitudes contrasted with the tense competitive spirit in other athletic championships.

The rules in interscholastic frisbee are simple. Players must pass the "bee" down the field past a goal line, designated by a jacket placed at each end of the 60-by-40 foot field.

Players can't run with the frisbee, so they rely on several passing styles, ranging from a stiff handoff into a teammate's gut to a field-length hurl.

Early in the second 24-minute half, the game turned into a shouting and shoving match. It ended with one bloody nose on the Cornell side of the field.

There were no referees to settle the dispute, so the match was delayed for 10 minutes while team leaders patched up their differences.

Maryland No. 1 In Lacrrosse

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Maryland, with four first place votes and a 3-0 record, remains atop the U.S. Intercollegiate Lacrosse Coaches' major college poll released today.

Cornell, with a 4-0 record and three first place votes, is number two while Navy and North Carolina tied for third.

All of the top six teams will play each other this week. Maryland hosts sixth-ranked Virginia this weekend while Cornell is at Johns Hopkins. North Carolina State goes to Navy on Wednesday.

The top 20, their first place votes, records and total points:

1. Maryland (4) 3-0 137
2. Cornell (3) 4-0 136
3. (tie) Navy 5-0 120

Was Hawks Victory too Costly

NEW PALTZ—The New Paltz State baseball Hawks are hoping their fourth win of the year Sunday won't be a costly one. New Paltz upped its record to 4-3 by pounding visiting Western New England, 11-0, but winning pitcher Tom Whitaker became a sixth inning line drive victim.

Cruising on a six run lead up to that point, Whitaker was nicked for his second hit when a visitor lined a shot back at the mound that broke Whitaker's finger. That didn't change the complexion of the game any as Paul Vasques relieved and completed the shutout, but Whitaker will be out of action indefinitely.

The Hawks jumped into command early, scoring five runs in the first in a big rally fueled by Larry Panella's two run single. That boosted Panella's RBI total to 1[illegible] through seven games.

New Paltz added solo runs in the third and seventh frames before Bill Hopkins iced the win with a two run homer in the eighth. The Hawks rapped out a total of nine hits and took advantage of five Western New England errors. They backed the shutout by Whitaker and Vasques with errorless defense.

Yale Captures Kennedy Race

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Yale University, after three days of perfect sailing weather, has won the 12th annual John F. Kennedy Memorial Regatta at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Skippered by Peter Isler, Yale edged Webb Institute of Technology to gain the trophy Sunday in the best of five of six race contest.

Webb placed second after a strong showing Sunday. In fourth place Saturday, Webb moved into the runnerup spot by capturing a first and fourth in Sunday's events. Bill Langan skippered Webb.

The Naval Academy, with Paul Van Cleve at the helm, edged Southern California for third place. Navy and USC were tied with 18 points each, but the tie was resolved in Navy's favor since the Middies had more first places.

Long Wait for Ralston

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — It has been a long six years for Dennis Ralston, but he thinks his time may have come.

Ralston, known widely for his four years as captain of the U.S. Davis Cup tennis team and for his play in doubles, couldn't remember the last singles tournament he won. All he could remember was the year — 1970.

Sunday he ended the long drought with a barrage of passing shots, untouchable lobs and soft drop shots that kept Sherwood Stewart off-balance and perplexed. Ralston, 33, destroyed Stewart, 6-2, 6-1, for the championship of the $15,000 Tennis Classic.

Ralston never lost his service throughout the three-day tournament, taking Bob Carmichael, 6-2, 6-2, in the quarterfinals and Mike Cahill, 6-3, 6-4, in the semifinals.

"This is the first time I've won a singles championship since 1970," Ralston said. "I don't think it will be another six years for the next one."

That last victory was the Los Angeles Pro Classic. He has been close since and has taken numerous doubles titles during the span.

Stewart lost his service twice in the first set, three times in the second and appeared tired throughout. He came down with a cold and sore throat Saturday.

Stewart, who teamed with Ralston to take the doubles final, 7-6, 6-3, over Mike Estep and Carmichael, had defeated Ralston last week in a tournament in Maryland. But his usually aggressive style of play faltered when he missed volleys and overheads.

Stewart, who said he was getting married today in Houston, also appeared to lose his concentration.

Tournament officials termed the event, the first pro tournament in Albuquerque, a success despite the poor attendance. Less than 3,000 persons attended the three days of play.

Yankees File Protest

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Brewers left on their first road trip of the year today feeling they should be 2-0 instead of 1-1 but for an umpire's controversial call that cost them a victory over the New York Yankees.

The Brewers have protested first base umpire Jim McKean's generally unnoticed call for time out just prior to Don Money's grand slam homer Saturday that would have given the Brewers a 10-9 victory over the Yankees. Instead, the homer was voided and the Brewers lost 9-7.

General Manager Jim Baumer conceded the protest was not filed in the usual way but he said "this is not a normal type protest. This is not covered by a rule. We're protesting the way it was handled by the umpire."

The Yankees filed a protest on Thursday over the slope of the pitching mound at County Stadium after they had lost 5-0 in the season opener behind their ace, Catfish Hunter. Temperatures in the 30s forced postponement of Sunday's series wrapup.

The Brewers were headed for the dugout Saturday when McKean told them he had called time just before Money's blast off Dave Pagan. But McKean didn't make his disclosure until challenged about it by Yankee Manager Billy Martin who raced onto the field as Money crossed the plate.

"I had my hand up," McKean said later. "I got to tell the truth, exactly what happened."

Insolo Is '250' Winner

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI) — Jimmy Insolo, who led only one of 100 laps, edged out NASCAR stock car champion L.D. Ottinger by less than a car length to win the West Coast 250 at Ontario Motor Speedway Sunday.

Insolo of Mission Hills, Calif., led only the last lap. He averaged 124.69 miles per hour to win first prize money of $5,750. Finishing second only .023 of a second later was Ottinger of Newport, Tenn., who led 78 of the 100 laps.

The race, originally scheduled for last Sunday, was delayed by rain.

Ottinger dueled alternately with Hershel McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore., and Sonny Easley of Van Nuys, Calif., until they both dropped out with mechanical failures. Insolo lost crucial seconds when he became trapped between two spinning cars early in the race, hit the wall and had to make an extra pit stop.

A yellow caution period late in the race enabled Insolo to move up on Ottinger. He found himself at Ottinger's bumper when the green flag came out for the final time on the 91st lap. Insolo and Ottinger traded the first position three times in the last lap.

Coming off the last turn on the final lap, Insolo angled to the inside, causing a disturbance in the air called a "slingshot."

The instability of the air was enough, Ottinger said after the race, to loosen the grip of his tires on the track and force him to slide into the wall. As he bumped the concrete retaining wall, Insolo pulled ahead. They crossed the finish line bumper to bumber.

SHS Netmen Win 5-0

SAUGERTIES—The Saugerties High tennis team opened its season on a winning note Friday with a 5-0 victory over non-league foe Red Hook.

Daryl Jones, Ken Rumble and Bob Vogel swept the singles for the Sawyers. Jones beat Ted Dewsnap, 12-10, Rumble downed Dan Zaloga, 10-7 and Vogel topped Gregg Hansen, 10-3. Bob Carpenter and Paul Martin teamed to whip Bill Hogan and Pat O'Farrell, 10-1 in the first doubles battle, then Vin Lucente and Bill Fricke ended the scoring with a 10-3 triumph over Raiders Greg Wiles and Harold Davis.

In exhibition matches Saugerties added two more singles victories as Carpenter beat Hogan, 10-1 and Martin defeated O'Farrell, 10-7. Red Hook scored twice in exhibition doubles as Dewsnap and Dan Miller took a 10-8 set from Tim Sheehan and Mark Knaust, and Zaloga and Hansen won another 10-8 decision from Vogel and Pat Sheehan.

Evert Opens Against Hunt

Evert is seeded No. 2 in the six-day tournament behind topseeded Evonne Goolagong, who will meet Cynthia Doerner in her first-round match Tuesday.

The eight survivors of the first-round elimination matches will begin round-robin play Wednesday.

Olga Morozova starts off Tuesday's competition against Francoise Durr, followed by Goolagong and Doerner, Martina Navratilova and Carrie Meyer and Marita Redondo against Mima Jausovec.

The 16 players made it into the championships by winning the most points in the nine-tournament Slims circuit.

Movie Newsreel . . . A Comeback

NEW YORK—(UPI)—The movie theater newsreel is coming back— this time under advertising sponsorship.

Probably only a small percentage of today's moviegoers remember what a tremendous impact the weekly newsreels had on the American public in pre-televisiom days.

The last traditional Americn newsreel made to be sold to theaters was produced in 1967. There were five big ones, Pathe, Paramount, RKO, MGM and Twentieth Century-Fox.

They showed football games, tennis matches, political speeches, riots, crime scenes, beauty pageants, disasters and scientific achievements. In some ways, they were better than much of today's television film coverage because they were not so hurriedly assembled and more footage to a subject.

Their influence on the American scene hardly could be overstated. But they couldn't compete in an era when television was emptying the neighborhood theaters and presenting the latest news nightly.

The first of the new newsreels is a monthly called "Theater Calvalcade," produced by Association Films, a subsidiary of the huge Macmillan Inc., publishing combine. This subsidiary makes sponsored shorts that are distributed free to movie theaters.

The shorts are advertising but in low key. They differ from the television commercial in that they have to stress information or entertainment rather than hardsell, otherwise the theaters just won't use them even though they are free.

Association Films have 700 clients for whom it makes these sponsored shorts, mostly commercial but including some public service institutions such as the military academy at West Point and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Robert DJ Mitchell, president of Association Films, said the shorts his firm makes will be seen by about 75 million movie goers this year.

The Hollywood studios were forced to quit making one and two-reel comedies and other shorts to sell to theaters because the market dried up just as the market for the regularly scheduled newsreels did.

Libraries of old newsreel film clips were the biggest source of background film for period and travel and location shots for the industry. Television film libraries have taken over that function for the most part.

Only a few of the hundreds of sponsored film shorts being made for showing in theaters are particularly newsworthy. Mitchell conceived the idea of collecting those that are news oriented in a new kind of newsreel. If he can't get quite enough sponsored shorts to fill up the 15-minute Theater Cavalcade, he throws in a public service or entertainment story.

The latest edition of Theater Cavalcade contains five shorts, each running four to five minutes.

They deal, in order, with the 1976 Olympics, the Viking space probe now on its way to Mars (sponsored by the National Aeronautics & Space Administration), the Alaska Pipe Line, modern railroading and the energy problem, and a feature about an amateur magician who made the big time.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date the 24th day of March, 1976, I, the under signed, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the County Court house in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster, New York, on the 7th day of May, 1976 at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of that day, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described being as follows:

Parcel I: ALL that piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the Town of Saugerties, County of Ulster and State of New York, bounded and described as follows:

BEGINNING at a point in the center of a 2 x 2 foot brick pier on the southerly side of Country Road No. 89 and in the westerly line of a parcel of land conveyed by Herman Knaust and Katharine M. Knaust, his wife, to Charles Muller and on the easterly side of a 20 foot road and runs thence along the easterly side of said 20 foot road the following three courses and distances: South 32° 44' East 42.15 feet; South 67° 20' East 95 feet; South 22° 11' East 94.95 feet to an 18 inch blazed oak tree; thence South 71° 53' East 63.15 feet to a 16 inch blazed oak tree; thence South 77° 37' East 48.25 feet to a 14 inch blazed pine tree; thence North 63° 28' East 185.75 feet to a point marked by an iron pipe driven in the ground at the most easterly corner of the parcel of land conveyed by Herman Knaust and Katheraine M. Knaust, his wife to Charles Muller; thence South 67° 51' East 123.97 feet to a 3 foot pine tree; thence South 24° 49' West 590.78 feet part way along a stone wall to a point marked by a stake and pile of stones in a fence line; thence along said fence line South 70° 01' East 440 to the high water mark of the Hudson River; thence down and along the west bank of the Hudson River at the high water line about 712 feet to a stake in the mouth of a small brook, the last described line may be described by survey purposes as South 24° 20' West 712.15 feet; thence up and along said brook as it winds and turns the following twelve courses and distances: North 65° 15' West 114.4 feet to an iron pin and North 2° 20' West 132.5 feet to an iron pin; North 61° 23' West 213.5 feet to an iron pin; South 76° 56' West 136.9 feet to an iron pin; North 86° 52' West 125.1 feet to an iron pin in the center of an old road; North 31° 16' West 243.35 feet to an iron pin; South 78° 53' West 86.6 feet to a stake; South 26° 22' West 73.2 feet to a stake; North 70° 22' West 61.75 feet to a stake; North 18° 33' West 94.3 feet to a stake in the center of another road; thence North 14° 25' East 253.65 feet to a pin; North 23° 39' West 194.25 feet to an iron pipe; thence North 33° 15' East 164.6 feet to a point marked by a concrete monument set in the ground; thence North 3° 33' West 252.59 feet to a point marked by a concrete monument set in the ground on the southerly side of the aformentioned County Road No. 89; thence along the southerly side of said road North 67° 03' East 460.6 feet passing through a 2 x 2 foot brick pier on the westerly side of the afore mentioned 20 foot road to the point and place of beginning, containing 24.224 acres of land be the same more or less..

BEING a portion of the premises conveyed to Herman Knaust and Katharine M. Knaust, his wife, the parties of the first part here, by John G. Myers Hilton, by deed bearing date April 26, 1945 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office April 27, 1945 in Book No. 650 of Deeds at page 369.

PARCEL II: ALL that lot or parcel of land situate in the Hamlet of Malden-on-Hudson, Town of Saugerties, County of Ulster, State of New York, and bounded and described as follows:

BEGINNING at a 24 inch blazed pine, said pine being the northwest corner of the parcel herein described and being the southeast corner of lands which will remain in Charles Muller after this conveyenace and runs thence South 72 degrees 28 minutes East 247.84 feet along the lands of Gilda Ferrari to a 10 inch blazed ash; thence South 28 degrees 25 minutes West 590.98 feet along lands of Blythe to a point in a northerly line of lands of Knaust marked by a 30 inch blazed elm; thence North 74 degrees 42 minutes West 183.45 feet along lands of Knaust to a 12 inch blazed buttonball sycamore at a corner in the lands of Knaust; thence North 22 degrees 31 minutes East 589.96 feet along a stone wall and the lands of Knaust to the point or place of beginning containing 2.91 acres.

BEING the same premises conveyed to Herman Knaust and Kahtarine M. Knaust, his wife, the parties of the first part hereto, by Charles Muller and Adele Muller, by deed bearing date September 23, 1947 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on September 9, 1949 in Book No. 743 of Deeds at page 453.

Parcel II above described ajoins Parcel I on the north-easterly corner and together they form one parcel of land. The seventh course of Parcel I above described as 590.78 feet is the same as the fourth course of Parcel II and is described in Parcel II as 589.96 feet. The difference in the measurement appears to arise by reason of an error in one of the surveys. The difference in bearings arises from the fact that the descriptions are taken from different surveys.

SUBJECT, however, to the rights granted to Charles Muller to the use of the aforementioned 20 foot road described in Parcel I and as set forth in a deed given by Herman Knaust and Katharine M. Knaust, his wife, to Charles Muller, bearing date September 23, 1947 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office October 4, 1949 in Book No. 746 of Deeds at page 88.

RESERVING, however, to the parties of the first part, their heirs and assigns, the right to use the 20 foot road described in Parcel I for all purposes of ingress and egress to other lands of said parties of the first part, including the right to use the same for the installation of utility services.

BEING the same premises conveyed by Herman Knaust and Katharine M. Knaust, his wife, to Herman Karl Knaust and Elizabeth L. Knaust, his wife by deed dated July 22, 1957 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on July 26, 1957 in Book 1007 of Deeds at page 596.

PARCEL III: ALL that piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the Town of Saugerties, County of Ulster and State of New York, bounded and described as follows:

COMMENCING at a point in a private road or driveway which said point of beginning is the following courses and distances from a bolt driven in the center line of the public highway known as New York State Route 9W, South 69° 27' East 47.28 feet; South 22° 30' East 143.58 feet; South 68° 40' East 111.32 feet; South 31° 35' East 60.0 feet; South 15° 03' East 126.95 feet; South 29° 19' East 70.0 feet; South 44° 59' East 60.0 feet; South 51° 07' East 212.64 feet; South 51° 07' East 181.51 feet and South 55° 08' East 100 feet to the point of beginning and running thence from said point of beginning North 31° 33' East 330.55 feet to a point; thence South 23° 17' East 35.0 feet; thence South 51° 13' East 100.0 feet; thence South 26° 44' East 50.0 feet; thence South 5° 51' East 50.0 feet; thence South 9° 27' West 50.0 feet; thence South 28° 33' West 50.0 feet; thence South 34° 47' West 123.03 feet to a point in the present private road or drive way; thence along the said private road or driveway North 67° 41' West 157.34 feet and North 60° 26' West 60.14 feet to the point and place of beginning. Containing 1.454 acres of land, more or less.

TOGETHER with a right of way 15 feet in width along the existing roadways across the property of Herman Knaust and Katharine M. Knaust, his wife, commonly known as "Stroomzeit" situate in the Town of Saugerties, Ulster County, New York, the center line of which said right of way is described as follows:

BEGINNING at a point in a private road or driveway which said point of beginning is the following courses and distances from a bolt driven in the center line of the public highway known as New York State Highway Route 9W, South 69° 27' East 47.28 feet; South 22° 30' East 143.58 feet; South 68° 40' East 111.32 feet; South 31° 35' East 60.0 feet; South 15° 03' East 126.95 feet; South 29° 19' East 70.0 feet; South 44° 59' East 60.0 feet; South 51° 07' East 212.64 feet; South 51° 07' East 181.51 feet; South 55° 08' East 100 feet; South 60° 26' East 60.14 feet and South 67° 41' East 157.34 feet to a point marking the southeasterly corner of the 1.464 acre parcel herein before described.

The parties of the first part hereto reserve the right to use so much of the private road or driveway as is located within the southerly, easterly and northerly bounds of the above described piece or parcel of land.

BEING part of the premises conveyed by John G. Myers Hilton and Marion M. Hilton, his wife, to Herman Knaust and Katharine M. Knaust, his wife, by deed dated April 26, 1945 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on April 27, 1945 in Book 650 of Deeds at page 369.

BEING the same premises conveyed by Herman Knaust and Katharine M. Knaust, his wife, to Herman Karl Knaust and Elizabeth L. Knaust, his wife, by deed dated December 1, 1960 and intended to be recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office simultaneously herewith.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, APRIL 13

Your birthday today: Impulse at odd intervals upsets all fixed schedules this year and on into the next, and reflects instinctive drives and unconscious wisdom. Long-term results are good despite passing inconveniences. Commercial efforts thrive if you invest enough energy in them. Today's motives pursue peace, are family oriented.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Thrift at work has decided benefits. Don't ask for favors or personal assistance. Avoid getting into unfamiliar business procedures or speculation.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Your comments are more cutting than yom intend. Don't be tempted to pass the buck. Be cautious when handling machinery.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Conditions are unsettled and people are restless. More is spent on young companions than you planned. Remodel your home, but spend wisely.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Try to be patient; give events time to run a normal course. Ignore the competition. Leave your reserves uncommitted for better defined opportunity.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Amid your bustle to establish and maintain schedules, find time to give a bouquet to someone who counts. Evening brings much talk but few new ideas.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You're so absorbed with comparisons you lose sight of the overall perspective. Stick with established enterprises if you fully grasp the situation.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your impulses are varied, so don't follow them now. Defer decisions until others have a chance to get over their initial reaction.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You'll get your own way, but at the expense of group support. Associates must have some say of their own to get rid of inner tensions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends' schemes are like do-it-yourself projects. No matter how you put them together, they don't work as expected. Candid remarks backfire.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A balance tips in an important venture, so you have stronger control of events. Problems aren't a topic for chitchat. Put your main efforts into your work.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Think for yourself. Consultations offer little support, particularly on technical matters. More is gained by staying near home base.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Meet others a little more than halfway, but don't expect much cooperation. If you're interested in gardening, give your green thumb a workout.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

NO. 2: (Q.) My best friend Don has a girl friend named Cindy. But I like Cindy, too, and she likes me a little.

Don knows I like her and every time I talk to her he comes over and butts in. She likes Don a lot, so when he butts in she starts to talk to him.

He is supposed to be my best friend but if he keeps this up I'm going to punch him out.

I asked Cindy for a date once and she refused. She said she likes me but she likes Don more. Please help. I'm 13, Cindy's 13, and Don is 14.—Mad in Michigan

(A.) You ars learning a big lesson: It doesn't work for two close friends to have the same girl friend. Another lesson you must learn is that when a girl prefers another boy, punching that boy in the nose doesn't help a bit.

Your answer is to find another girl. Then the four of you can have fun together, without jealousy or fighting.

WAITING: (Q.) I've liked Terry since December and he acts like he likes me. He talks to me all the time and is so nice to me. There are times when I think he is going to ask me out, but he doesn't.

A couple of weeks ago someone told him I liked him. He seemed so happy and he acted even nicer to me, but he still hasn't asked me out. I'm getting so confused. What should I do?—Ready in Rhode Island

(A.) Be patient!

Oswald: "The ruff and discard play is usually employed by declarer to get rid of a sure loser."

Jim: "Sometimes it is a last resort but when all else is going to fail you might as well try that last chance."

Oswald: "South wins the diamond lead with dummy's ace plays three rounds of trumps. (One extra since he can afford it.) Then he goes after clubs. West shows out on the second lead. He considers a squeeze, but sees that a squeeze won't work. That leaves the last resort play of getting a ruff and discard."

Jim: "It isn't as far fetched as it might be because it will work if West held seven diamonds for his preempt. He leads a heart to the ace, ruffs a heart cashes his last high club throws East in with a club and is rewarded by getting the forced heart lead to give him his contract."

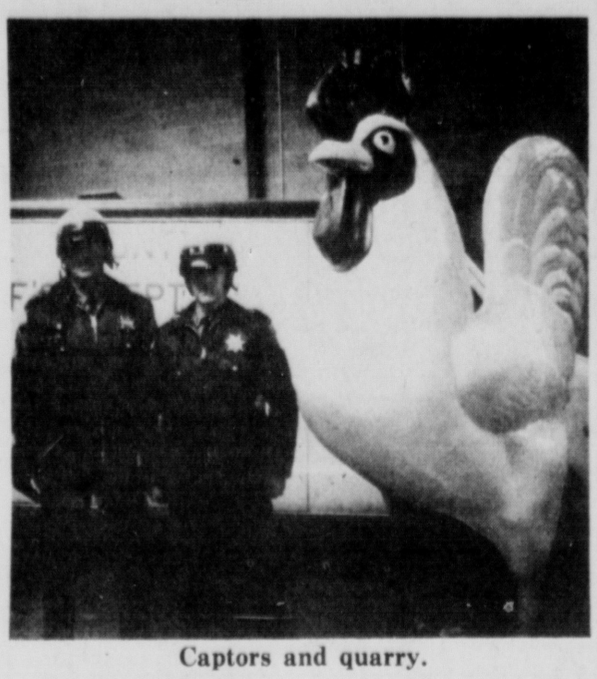
Big Bird Flies Coop With Help, and Is Cornered in Closet



Captors and quarry.

TOWN OF ULSTER—The discovery of an eight-foot tall, 250-pound chicken in a coat closet at the Ramada Inn Sunday was enough to cause the patron who stumbled upon the artificial bird to return to the bar for a glass of milk, according to Ulster County sheriff's deputies.

The discovery didn't shake up deputies, though—they'd received a report on the theft of the bird late Saturday night.

Deputies said the huge chicken— a display at Closi's Feed Store in Lake Katrine—was discovered missing Saturday night at about 11 p.m.

It wasn't until Sunday at about 6:30 p.m. that the unidentified and obviously shaken patron at the Ramada Inn came across the bird and reported his strange find.

Sgt. David Hughes and Deputy John Lima took the bird into custody, deputies said. An investigation of the theft of the $400 bird is continuing.

Gun Charges

Armed with a search warrant, Kingston Police Department detectives early today raided a room at the Stuyvesant Hotel, 37 John Street, and arrssted the occupant for possession of stolen parts to a Thompson machine gun and for possession of a handgun.

Norman Galvagni, 28, an employe of Numrich Arms Corp., West Hurley, was charged with second degree criminal possession of stolen property and fourth degree criminal possession of a weapon.

Detertices said parts to a machine gun said to be stolen from Numrich Arms Corp. and a .32 caliber revolver were confiscated in the raid.

Galvagni was schsduled to appear in court today.

Hess Burglary

Detectives said that when they arrived at the Ulster Avenue Mall service station after a burglar alarm was touched off they found a broken window and the rear door open.

Inside, detectives found that the door to the office had been forced and that cash had been taken from the safe.

No sign of the burglar or burglars was found.

A Lot of Change

The burglar or burglars gained entry through a window, pried open a pool table and a juke box, and fled with the estimated $300 in change detectives said.

Bike Crash

Margaret Zehnick, 58, of 72 Hunter Street, Kingston was listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Kingston Hospital after the bicycle she was riding reportedly slammed into the side of a building Sunday afternoon on the corner of Wurts and West Union Street.

Mrs. Zehnick was rushed from the scene of the 3:50 p.m. mishap by Fatum's Ambulance. Ambulance personnel said the woman became confused about the operation of the brakes on the bicycle she was riding and careened down the Wurts Street hill into the stone wall of a building.

Cabin Fire

Fire Sunday night which apparently started in an unattended makeshift stove in a 15-foot by 15-foot log cabin used by children off Mountain View Avenue in Hurley totally destroyed the cabin amd burned over an area of woodland surrounding the building.

Hurley firemen were called to the scene at about 7 p.m. and summoned Spring Lake fire fighters to assist in putting down the flames which were fanned by high winds and had spread into the tops of several trees.

Fire Chief Earle McLane said an area of woodland surrounding the cabin was damaged in the fire. About 30 firemen were at the scene until after 9 p.m.

No injuries were reported.

Domestic Death

A woman was shot to death in her apartment home in the Orange County community of Cornwall early today, and police charged her husband with the slaying.

State and local police identified the dead woman as Catherine Quinlan, 27. Her husband, Lee Quinlan, 29, was charged with second degree murder and held for arraignment.

Police said Mrs. Quinland was shot in the head, but they gave no further details. The couple had apparently separated.

Mason for Schwartz Probe

ALBANY—"I have asked the Attorney General and the Albany County Distric Attorney to investigate the part played by Herman Schwartz in requesting the State Parole Commission to grant parole to convicted police killer Frank Lott so he could give him a job on the Correction Commission," said State Senator Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th Dist.) in a press release.

"On Sept. 16, 1975, Schwartz, appointed by Governor Carey as Chairman of the State Correction Commission, wrote to the state parole officer at Greenhaven Correctional Facility asking that Lott be given parole. In his letter he said he had known Lott for more than four years and had found him intelligent, mature, responsible and articulate . . ."

"I'm so convinced of his abilities that I'm seriously considering offering him a position with the State Correction Commissiin," Mason quoted Schwartz as saying.

Mason said he asked for the investigation to determine whether there has been an impropriety of violation of the law.

"The man has spent a substantial portion of his life in penal institutions and in 1961 he killed a policeman during the commission of a crime, at a time when he was out on parole after being sentenced for assault and robbery," Mason said.

"This is just another chapter in the incredible story of Mr. Herman Schwartz, who was appointed by the Governor to head the important State Crime Commission," Mason said.

In a letter to Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz, Mason said: "Schwartz as chairman of the Correction Commission was obviously intervening with another state agency to exert his influence on behalf of Lott. There may well have been a violation of the State Public Officer's Law. When an official of one state department intervenes with another department on behalf of a convict who is serving a long-term sentence for killing a policeman, a serious question of ethics arises. I, therefore, request that you investigate this matter with all its implications to determine whether there has been a violation of the State Public Officers Law or any other law."

Study Expense Gives Pause

SHOKAN—The Town of Olive has been asked to spend as much as $25,000 to study the feasibility of establishing its own municipal electric company.

Town officials say they'll have to think about it.

The request was made at this week's town board meeting by representatives of Mid-Hudson Concerned Consumers, who have urged several other local municipalities to begin their own electric company in response to increasing rates imposed by Central Hudson.

Peter Ford of New Paltz, a spokesman for the group, said the Town of Olive and its residents could break away from Central Hudson and establish a municipal electric company. He noted that 47 communities in New York State have already formed their own power companies, and are able to sell electricity at rates 30 to 50 per cent lower than those charged by the major, investor-owned utilities.

The electricity would be purchased, said Ford, from the Power Authority of the State of New York. In addition to offering cheap electricity to its residents, he said, the town could provide itself, its municipal buildings and its schools with free electricity. Any profits obtained from the venture could be used to lower property taxes, said Ford.

The spokesman said the first step would be to hire a private engineering firm to conduct a feasibility study, and to determine exactly how mucy money could be saved by eliminating the town's dependence on Central Hudson. The cost of the study, said Ford, would be between $15,000 and $25,000, and could be financed with a bond issue which could be repaid with profits from the new power system.

In other matters discussed at the board meeting: • A group of citizens sent a letter to the board asking that the town study the feasibility of constructing an on-site detour around the Traver Hollow Bridge, which has been closed for repairs by New York City. • The board authorized a letter to the Public Service Commission requesting a toll-free telephone be established within the Onteora Central School District, so that calls can be made without charge between the Phoenicia Elementary School and the high school complex in Boiceville. • The board renewed its franchise with Olive Cablevision Co. and established a three-member commission to review service applications for low-density areas of the town. • Robert Howe was appointed to the Assessment Board of Review, replacing Carl Stone, who resigned in March. • Several highway changes were discussed, including lowering the speed limit to 40 miles per hour in Olivebridge from the intersection of Routes 213 and 28A to Davis Corners; installing a school bus sign on Route 28A in Shokan near the Pine View Bakery; and painting double yellow lines on Route 28 from Cold Brook Road to Route 28A. All of the recommendations must be approved by the state and county highway departments.

8 out of 10 adult residents of New York State believe that savings banks should be allowed to offer their customers the same full, unlimited checking account services commercial banks offer.

The people want checking accounts at Savings Banks. And they want them now.

All other states in the Northeast—New Jersey, Massachusetts, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut—allow savings banks to offer checking accounts. Why not New York? Legislation is needed. Write to your Assemblyman and State Senator today.

While Some Cursed, Others Played

KINGSTON — Hold on to your hats'. Today's 17-degree temperature at 5 a.m. set a new record for April 12 in Kingston, according to the City Engineer's The previous low was 26 set in 1967.

Sunday's 22-degree temperature plus 15 to mile-an-hour winds established a new record for April 11.

While gardners and fishermen might have found the cold uncomfortable, youngsters found kite flying a breeze. Sailing one aloft on Merilina Avenue, left, is nine-year-old Chris Long, assisted by four-year-old Jennifer Mannello who took advantage of gusty winds that prevailed throughout the day and night.

Shoppers who flocked to Kingston Plaza Saturday saw the sunniness as a welcome opportunity to get their cars washed. And, Edson School's Art Club seized the opportunity to do the washing and raise funds for a trip to a museum in New York City.

Meanwhile upstaters battled snow storms in the City of Rochester and the Adirondacks.

"It better not be like this next Sunday or I won't be able to wear my new Easter hat," said a Rochester woman as she swept snow from the hood of her car Sunday. "It wasn't made for snow- and neither am I when it comes in the middle of April.

Cool temperatures are promised for tonight but Tuesday's weather will be more seasonable.

Results of Freeman Survey:

They Want Able-Bodied Off Role

KINGSTON—Most of the people contacted in a recent survey by the Freeman had little to say about the Ulster County Legislature's call for a 25 per cent reduction in welfare appropriations next year, but nearly all of them were willing to talk about the people who are receiving welfare assistance.

Practically all of them felt that something should be done about able-bodied people who draw welfare assistance without working. Despite protestations from social services workers and other officials that most welfare recipeints are deserving, the majority of those contacted by the Freeman feel that welfare rolls are overloaded with people who shouldn't be there.

Mrs. William Spring of 38 McDonald Street, Saugerties, said: "People on welfare have more than lots of the people who work for a living. I think welfare could be cut. They are living higher than the people who work for a living. It's sickening to go and vote with all this going on."

Fred Zimmerman of Lake Drive, Rifton, isn't sure how he feels about the cut proposed by county legislators. "Some people need it (welfare), others don't" he said. "If we could just create some kind of public work for them, it would help."

Zimmerman suggested that welfare recipients could be used to clean up along roadways, to cut brush, and to do other public work, much along the lines of the Civilian Conservation Corps created by Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal in the 1930s.

"Let them earn some of the money they get," he said.

Mrs. Mary Jane Avery of Ashokan also feels that many people who are getting welfare assistance are not entitled to it, although she could offer no alternatives to the present system.

Bernard Simon of Mountainview Avenue, Hurley, thinks the proposed 25 per cent reduction in welfare costs next year would be a good idea.

"Welfare costs are getting out of hand, we have to start cutting back somewhere," he said.

"We should have welfare, but there has to be a limit, and I think we are reaching it. We can't throw people out on the street, but we have to call a halt somewhere."

Asked for specific suggestions for welfare reforms, Simon said he felt New York has become a "welfare paradise" for people from less affluent sections of the country.

"New York shouldn't take in people from other sections of the country," he said. "They should crack down, not make it so easy for people coming here from other places to go on welfare."

Mrs. Alice Linzey of Clarendon Avenue, interviewed as she babysat for her sister, Mrs. Frank T. Petersen of 87 West Pierpont Street, also thought that there might be merit in the legislator's suggestion for a reduction in welfare costs.

"I think it might accomplish something," she said. "It makes me mad when I see someone sitting on his or her fat butt for years, drawing welfare. If they would eliminate some of the able-bodied people from the rolls, there should be somewhere they could go to work."

Mrs. Linzey also suggested a public works program to utilize the manpower available on welfare rolls. Cleaning streets and other work on public properties could be used to get some return for welfare money, she feels.

Seek NYC $$ for Bridge Detour

OLIVE — With the desperately needed Traver Hollow Bridge reconstruction three years away, and an interim detour a "must", Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., suggested Sunday that once an alternate route is designed, "we will lean on New York City "heavy" to get the money to build it."

Failing that we will pursue other areas, Hinchey told a gathering of New York City, town, county and state officials during a bridge workshop session at Town of Olive Library.

Demands that New York City Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Robert Low level with local officials and reveal just what the city will do in the way of designing and financing the detour route met with non-committal answers laced with promises of "good neighborliness."

Low did promise however that if a design is made available to the city, he will recommend that the city fund the detour construction but he "didn't know if the city has the legal obligation to pay for it."

Two temporary alternate routes which would permit West Shokan and Boiceville residents access to each other's areas without an extra 14-mile trip, were suggested, one to the north and one to the south of the present 1911 deterioriated span which has been closed since last summer.

Hinchey called a meeting for Wednesday in Kingston with county, state and city officials to take a look at the proposed detour routes so that a proposal may be advanced to the city.

He evidenced concern for some residents who have removed barricades from the bridge and have begun to use it again. "It should not be encouraged," the assemblyman warned.

Concrete proposals for constructing a detour came from several quarters with Ulster County Acting Highway Superintendent Richard Gray offering the loan of a bridge and the use of highway department personnel to construct the bypass "if" funding were made available.

Another offer came from Paul Keller, regional forester for the Department of Environmental Conservation, who said DEC would provide the expertise if the city put up the funds.

He noted that DEC and the city has surveyors, that DEC is expert at designing forest truck trails, whose unpaved surfaces are maintained with graders. Keller suggested that a determination be made as to where to locate the detour, north or south of the bridge and that estimates be secured.

"New York City has an obligation," he said, recalling that it has $750,000 earmarked for the Traver Hollow improvement and "I can't conceive of its not being able to build a detour for a lot less."

Low and George Mekenian, deputy chief engineer for the New York City watershed, pointed out that the funds initially earmarked for the Traver Hollow Bridge replacement would not necessarily apply to the detour construction.

Gray estimated the cost of the detour at about $100,000 if the county did the job. A local contractor has also offered to build the road for about $32 a foot or $118,000.

Low agreed that an "interim road makes sense," but Olive Town Attorney John Lynch questioned the reliability of New York City when it comes to paying its bills to Ulster County and asked whether the city could pay money for the detour.

Mekenian said, "no", explaining that it would be necessary to go to the city's Board of Estimate because the scope of the bridge plans had changed, since the initial repair instead of replacement proposal was made.

"Will you present the detour plan to the Board of Estimate?, Lynch asked Low. "I will recommend it," he replied.

Other determinations were made. Gray said that under no circumstances should the temporary detour be considered for permanent status State regional construction engineer Albert J. Bauman said the state has no obligation to fund the detour but could provide expertise. Keller indicated that four weeks would be needed for a survey and Legislator Ernest J. Gardner, R-Dist. 5, said the county could build the detour in three to four months

Saying there is no question that it will be three years or more before the bridge is opened, Hinchey urged that a detour be opened up "as soon as possible." He said he felt some good points had been made at the meeting . He will meet with Keller, Gray, Department of Transportation representatives and Proper in order to expedite the detour plans. Citing the estimated $120,000 cost, Hinchey concluded that "it is reasonable; we can come up with the money somewhere."

When Low was asked to stipulate when he would be able to come back with a city offer of funds, he said that if he threw a date out, it would probably come back to haunt him. Mentioning something about "60 days," he promised to act in good faith.

The Prof Came In With a Cold

NEW PALTZ—Laurence Salomon hasn't accomplished much so far in his one-man protest against program and faculty cuts that include him at the State University College at New Paltz.

About all he has to show for a week in front of the administration building is a head cold. His lonely vigil began April 5 with a visit to the office of Peter Vukasin, academic vice president, for some information. Told that it was against the law to remain in state buildings after hours, the African studies professor spent Monday night in a sleeping bag in front of the building. The resulting head cold has moved him to confine his picketing to daylight hours when he isn't busy with classes.

Salomon carries a placard calling on Dr. Stanley Coffman Jr., the New Paltz president, to reinstate seven tenured and one untenured faculty members phased out by budget cuts, calling for "No further education for apathy," and asking Coffman to submit the matter of a five-year renewal of his post as college president to a ballot by the college community.

The placard also admonishes Coffman to do "no more stonewalling—answer the questions."

One of the questions to which he refers is one he asked in an open letter in the college paper, asking Coffman what local campus conditions must be met for him to agree to work for restoration of the African studies program. Salomon said he was told by Coffman's assistant, Gail Gallerie, that Coffman "has no plans for answering your questions."

Salomon also asked Vukasin if he would have the dean of liberal arts make available a written memorandum on his recommendations for retrenchment and his reasons for them.

"I was told he would not make the memorandum available because if lawyers got hold of it they might involve the state in litigation involving millions of dollars," Salomon claims.

He was told that the dean would speak to him on the matter and has not yet made up his mind whether he will settle for a verbal report or insist on the written memordandum, Salomon said.

Salomon is particularly incensed over the African studies cutback because Coffman did not consult with the department before giving it the axe.

"President Coffman established a committee to recommend what programs should be cut," he said. "The committee did not recommend that African studies be cut, but he cut it and did not cut others that had been recommended."

Salomon said that on March 8 he had been summoned to Coffman's office along with other colleagues scheduled to be cut. "Coffman informed us that he had decided to cut two positions in African studies and that the decision was final," Salomon said. "We had no opportunity to plead our case with him. I am trying to find out on what basis it was decided to cut African studies other than low enrollment, the only reason given to us."

Salomon said he cut in African studies is particularly harsh because of a program in which he has been involved.

"I have been working on a series of slides dealing with African history," he said. "I recently returned from 15 months in Africa and Europe, bringing back 20,000 slides. Added to the 5,000 I already had, they comprise the largest collection of still photographic material on African history anywhere in this country.

"I had just began to document the collection when the axe fell. The collection is of no value now, because they are pictures without documentation. It is sorely needed because African studies lacks the photographic background that European or American history has available."

Patty Fears Reprisals

SAN FRANCISCO—Newspaper heiress and convicted bank robber Patricia Hearst faces her sentencing, scheduled for later today, by Federal Judge Oliver Carter with more than just a normal fear of the unknown.

Her defense attorneys say Miss Hearst fears that being placed in one of California's prisons would make her an easy target for radical assassins. Albert Johnson, one of her defense attorneys, points out that there is no shortage of radicals in California's prisons.

West Bank Elections

NABLUS, Israeli-occupied Jordan — Tens of thousands of Arabs voted across the occupied West Bank of Jordan today in local elections expected to reveal new strength for militants committed to establishing a Palestinian state.

Early voters came out despite morning rain and spirits rose to a carnival-like level outside 155 polling places as the skies cleared at noon.

Occupation authorities said 18,810 ballots were cast by 11 a.m., 5,897 of them by women, who had the vote for the first time.

Hope in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Fighting that raged through Beirut and its suburbs all night died down early today, giving hope the country's latest truce might again take hold. On the eastern front, Syrian armored columns were reportedly advancing through the Bekaa Valley.

The latest battles erupted Sunday despite a leftist agreement to extend the 10-day-old cease-fire until the end of the month.

Mortar, rocket and artillery duels between leftist and rightwing militia factions left at least 35 dead and 55 wounded in Beirut. The sounds of battle, which echoed across the city all night, finally died away in the worst suburban troublespots early this morning.

One Is Forced Down

TEL AVIV, Israel — Israeli jet fighters today forced a Saudi Arabian air force plane with three American crewmen aboard to land at Ben Gurion airport near Tel Aviv, the military command said.

The plane was a Hercules C130 passenger plane carrying one Saudi Arabian pilot, the three Americans, and 23 passengers including a number of Saudi Arabian soldiers, a spokesman said.

The command said the plane was violating Israeli air space over the Mediterranean coast near Rosh Hanikra on the Lebanese border at about noon (5 a.m. EST).

Test for Candidates

NEW YORK — NBC technicians and newswriters who claim they are being locked out by the network have decided to test presidential candidates who want labor support.

The 1,700 employes, members of Local 11 of the National Association of Broadcast Employes and Technicians, Sunday sent a telegram to major candidates of both parties, asking them not to appear before NBC's cameras.

"Anything you do or say — live, on film or tape — is in fact a crossing of our picket lines and a defeat for us in our attempts to end the lockout and negotiate a contract," the telegram said.

A 'Hip' Drunken Diver

TOKYO — A drunken plumber attending a cherry blossom viewing party in Southern Japan suffered light injuries when he entered a hippopotamus cage and dived into a pool shared by two female hippos, police said today.

A police spokesman said Hideyuki Sato was hospitalized with minor cuts and bruises after he was found unconscious and wearing only his shorts in the hippo cage of an amusement park in Oita City on the southern island of Kyushu.

Cunningham to Appear

NEW YORK — State Democratic Chairman Patrick J. Cunningham and three fellow party officials, acting under a court order, were scheduled to appear today before a special grand jury probing the alleged sale of judgeships in the Bronx.

Special state anticorruption prosecutor Maurice H. Nadjari has described Cunningham in court papers as "the principal at the center of the corrupt marketplace of judgeships" in the Bronx.

Scheduled to follow Cunningham before the Nadjari panel are City Councilman Jerry Crispino of the Bronx; Gerald Esposito, a Bronx district leader, and Paul Victor, the party's law committee chairman in the borough.

Patty Believes Prison = Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst fears that a prison sentence for her bank robbery conviction would make her an easy target for revolutionary assassins behind bars.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter was to sentence the newspaper heiress today, after a plea by her attorneys to keep her out of prison.

Carter could sentence Miss Hearst under the Federal Youth Corrections Act which contains lenient punishments for first offenders under 25 years of age. Or he could merely place her on probation.

Miss Hearst, 22, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph Hearst, was convicted March 20 of being a member of a Symbionese Liberation Army holdup team which got $10,690 from a Hibernia Bank branch in San Francisco.

Maximum sentence for the bank robbery charge was 25 years and for a charge of using a firearm in the commission of the felony 10 years.

Johnson said that as a result of published reports his client would become an informer on radical activities she would be safer out of prison but "under controlled conditions of security, including bodyguards."

He said she often has expressed fears of terrorists' reprisals against herself and her family.

The seven-woman, five-man jury which convicted Miss Hearst told reporters they decided against her because of her refusal to discuss what occurred during most of her 17 months with the SLA and because she never attempted to flee from the terrorist group even though she had the opportunity.

Miss Hearst was abducted by the SLA from her apartment near the University of California campus Feb. 4, 1974. The bank robbery occurred two months later.

Federal probation officers, before making recommendations to Carter, interviewed Miss Hearst several times while she was in custody in San Mateo County Jail at nearby Redwood City.

Government investigators said Miss Hearst may have rented a garage in Sacramento, Calif., for a getaway car in a bank robbery in which a woman patron was killed.

A news report last week said she told authorities who participated in the robbery, at Carmichael, but that Steven Soliah, 27, was not involved. Soliah himself is on trial for the stickup.

Soliah was taken into custody last Sept. 9, when Miss Hearst and three other SLA members were found in San Francisco. He had been living with Miss Hearst.

On Wednesday in Los Angeles she will enter a plea on charges of robbery, kidnaping and assault as a result of a shootout at a sporting goods store.

Authorities said she fired a weapon to help SLA members William Harris and his wife, Emily, in their escape. No one was injured.

Johnson said she would plead innocent to the charges.

Only Once Is Not Enough

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The smiles vanished from the faces of White House press secretary Ron Nessen and spokesman Peter Kaye of President Ford's national campaign organization.

They turned and fled from a pack of White House reporters bunched in the rear of the West Texas State University gymnasium in Caynon, Tex., where Ford spoke Saturday night to 4,000 persons.

Their dismay sprang from the press corps' reaction when Ford, on cue, said, "Any government big enough to give you everything you want is big enough to take away everything you have." Reporters clapped, whooped and cheered.

It was something like the 60th time Ford has used the line in his presidential primary campaign. Each time it has brought cheers from the audience. And to reporters, who have heard it so often, familiarity has bred glee to relieve what otherwise might be boredom.

It is one of several oft-repeated Ford phrases which the press corps regards as old if homely friends to be greeted with the cheers that give hives to Nessen and Kaye. Another is the maxim that a politician should "promise only what he can deliver and deliver all that he promises."

Ford is at home with such wording. The "any government that is big enough etc." line dates back to his vice presidency. Any woe with words appears to stem from prepared speeches written by other hands.

No one in the White House cares to remember the moment in North Carolina when Ford rose before thousands of teenage members of the Future Homemakers of America and said they should be proud to stand up anywhere in the world and say they are future American homemakers.

The line did not gain luster when North Carolina became the only primary the president has lost to Ronald Reagan. None of the speechwriting team claimed credit.

That team has been shuffled more than any other office in the administration. A few weeks ago it again was changed, with at least four writers departing and Robert Orben becoming chief writer under Robert Hartmann, Ford's White House counselor and chief speech writer.

Striking In 'Belt'

LIBERTY (UPI) — Following a breakdown in contract negotiations, more than 200 employes of the posh Grossinger's resort hotel near this Sullivan County community voted Sunday to strike today, following a breakdown in contract negotiations.

A management spokesman said the hotel would remain open for business over the Passover weekend. He said the hotel was in the process of hiring replacements. Some 500 additional employes are not members of the union, he said.

Mark Grossinger Etess, assistant to Paul Grossinger, president of the resort, read a statement Sunday claiming the union has failed to negotiate in good faith for a contract to replace one which expired Feb. 28.

Etess said acquiescene to demands of local 76 of the hotel and restaurant workers union would have meant "economic suicide — yet the union has never budged from these demands."

The hotel's management claims the union has made into strike issues demands that "provide no benefits to our employes — insisting, for example, that we add to the bargaining unit all of our non-union personnel who, we believe, want nothing to do with this union."

The Grossingers' statement said the hotel's management had made six offers, the last of which, rejected Sunday, "was substantially better than the contract which was accepted by a 5-1 majority by the employes at the Concord," another Sullivan County resort hotel.

KYSERIKE — In the spirit of the Bicentennial year, the Continental Theatre Company will bring the musical, "1776" to Rondout Valley High School for one gala performance May 1 at 3 p.m.

Drama critic Clive Barnes of the New York Times has said of this live stage production: "On the face of it, few historic incidents seem more unlikely to spawn a Broadway musical than that solemn moment in the history of mankind, the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Yet "1776" most handsomely demonstrates that the people who merely go 'on the face of it' are occasionally outrageously wrong. For "1776" is a most striking, most gripping musical."

What Barnes recommended without reservation as a musical of "style, wit and passion," also elicited superlatives from critic Richard Watt Jr., who wrote: "In this cynical age, it requires courage as well as enterprise to do a musical that simply deals with the events leading up to the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Still, "1776" makes no attempt to be satirical or wander off into modern bypaths. The result of the courage and confidence in this conception is a brilliant and remarkably moving work of theatrical art."

those who join the audience at Rondout Valley High School can look forward to being a part of one of the area's most brilliant presentations in celebration of the Bicentennial year. Tickets for the May 1 staging are priced at only $4.50 and may be reserved by calling the District Office of the school.

DELEGATES TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS firmly state their opposition to signing the Declaration of Independence. Scene is from the lively and witty musical, "1776," coming to Rondout Valley High School the night of May 1.

HIGHLAND — In less than eight weeks as many as 300 families from a six county area of the Mid-Hudson region will begin planting the first seeds in a garden project organized by the Multi-County Community Development Corporation, a feeding and nutrition advocacy agency centered in Highland.

The project, called "Gardens For Nutrition," is the brainchild of Mrs. Anne Waldman Van Anden a 30 year old mother of two, who organized a similar "Garden For Nutrition" plot project in Rockland County a year ago, under the aegis of the Rockland County Mental Health Association.

According to Mrs. Van Anden, who is the MCCDC garden project co-ordinator, the program hopes to attract 50 families apiece from Dutchess, Orange, Rockland, Sullivan, Ulster, and Putnam counties, with June 1 targeted for seed planting. The project, Mrs. Van Anden said, is designed to supply adequate and nutritional food produce through a self-help type program for low-income families, the unemployed, and the elderly living on fixed-incomes — although participation in the project will not be restricted only to these groups.

Presently, she explained, either donated private or unused public land is being sought for use in each of the six counties, in addition to donors of tools, seeds, and other needed materials and equipment.

"We're hopeful that community involvment this year will be as good as it was last year," Mrs. Van Anden commented, crossing her fingers.

Families participating in the project will receive a plot of land to farm, tools, seeds, a "Vegetable Gardening Handbook," and the satisfaction of growing their own food to help feed themselves and their families. A 20 foot-square parcel of land can supply a real abundance of vegetables to a family of four, she pointed out — and for all this, families participating in the project will be charged the sum of $1.00.

A year ago, Mrs. Van Anden and the Rev. Edwin Barton, of the Thiells Methodist Church, organized a similar "gardens for nutrition" project in Rockland County, which saw 45 families take part in the project until its completion. The program then was conducted through the Rockland County Mental Health Association, which provided $500 in "seed" money to help start the program. Total expenses for the project came to $753.37, Mrs. Van Anden said, but the project was able to raise $702.20 through fund-raising activities, with the Mental Health Association agreeing to absorb the difference.

But community involvment and committment significantly helped to ensure the project's success, Mrs. Van Anden noted.

Anyone wishing to learn more about the gardens for nutrition project, she suggested, should contact the MCCDC Nutrition Project Co-ordinator, Ms. Susan E. Keesler, 21 Grand Street, Highland.

Bicentennial Program For KHS Reunion

KINGSTON — The Bicentennial program for Kingston High School's triple class reunion has been announced by the chairpersons: Erwin (Dutch) Craw 1925; Helen Brigham Perret 1926; Julia Cook Cloonan 1927.

The reunion will be held at Governor Clinton Hotel on Saturday, May 15, starting at 5 p.m. with a Dutch treat social hour. Dinner will be served promptly at 6:30. Masters of ceremony include Richard F. Riseley 1925, Willard H. Sahlott 1926 and William A. Kelly 1927.

At 8:30 p.m., a program of historical slides and movies will be presented. They will include: Kingston Stockade and Landmarks Area, Harry Rigby Jr. city historian; Prize Historical Doorways, Marianne Price Kent; KHS May Day Ceremonies and Events of the Times, Henry Millonig.

Benedictine Alumnae Plans May 1 Social, Patriotic Paradise'

KINGSTON — Benedictine Alumnae Association will sponsor a dance May 1 from 9:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. at Benedictine Senior Citizens auditorium. The theme will be "Patriotic Paradise."

Jeanne Bingham, president of the Association and Susan Manfro are serving as co-chairpersons. The decorating committee is headed by Mary Spader; Lonna Gambino, publicity; refreshments and reservations, Susan Manfro and Jeanne Bingham.

Attendance is limited to 150 people, so early reservations are advised.

Bruce Abram's Band will provide music. Awards will be made, and a buffet lunch served.

Gymnastics at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — Fifth and sixth graders performing their tumbling stunts, and other stunts on the bars, beam and horse. Seventh and eighth graders in the intramural group showing their gymnastic skills and abilities as they perform their routines. And the competing Gymnastic Club demonstrating their superb routines on beam, bars, vaulting and floor.

The public can see them all at the Third Annual Gymnastic Demonstration taking over the New Paltz Middle School gymnasium Tuesday, April 13 at 7:30 p.m.

The demonstration will feature an added attraction of ball, hoop and ribbon routines. Among the stellar highlights: Brenda Brooker, who was defeated only once during the entire season on the floor; Terry Ligotino's smooth balance beam routine; Karen Conally's expertise on the bars; Darlene Garcia's vaulting ski;skills.

Among other entertaining features for the entire family: the ribbon routines of Janet Yusko and Janet Hurley...and Ellen Berger floating gracefully through the performance that placed her in competition in the New York State Intersectionals.

Making final arrangements for the Fresh Flounder Fry to be held Saturday, April 24 at Port Ewen Reformed Church are: Betty Shelightner, Wilma Lemister, Dottie Bell, with owner-operator John Piccoli of the Sea Deli at 654 Broadway in Kingston. Continuous dinners featuring a homemade dessert cart will be served from 5 to 7 p.m. Other highlights will include a plant booth, food booth and fancy article booth. Public is invited. Annual Horse Show Slated

PLATTEKILL— The Ulster County 4-H Horse Leaders Association will hold its ninth annual open horse show Sunday, May 16, at 8 a.m. at the South Valley Horsemen's Center, Plattekill.

This show offers English and Western classes for horses and ponies With Junior and Senior divisions, as well as reining and a pleasure driving class. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded for each class, plus division champion, reserve and challenge trophies. The judge for this show will be Joseph McFadden. Proceeds will benefit all boys and girls in the Ulster County 4-H Horse Program.

Show regulars who attended last year are aware of the design of this beautiful outdoor ring which allows riders and their horses to perform at their best. The surrounding grounds include an area for trailers of any size, a practice area and a refreshment stand that opens at 7 a.m. Limited overnight for horses and owners are accommodations for horses and owners are available. New York State law requires proof of a negative EIA test for all horses and ponies.

Those inerested in showing or just watching horses perform are invited to attend with their family for a day in the heart of the Hudson Valley's "McIntosh Country." Special rates will be offered for full family cars. Class lists are available by April 15. Details may be had by writing South Valley Horsemen's Center, RD 2, Highland.

Stensons Observe 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stenson of 3175 Church Road, Saugerties, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary recently. A surprise party was given in their honor by their children at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Skidmore of Church Road, High Woods. Mr. and Mrs. Stenson were married March 25, 1951 at St. Mary's Church in Kingston by the Rev. John Flaherty, now deceased. They were attended by Mrs. Lillian Gunderud Larkin and Robert D/ Stenson, now deceased. They have five children: Dennis, a student at State University of New York at Morrisville; Patty, Maria, Patrick and Bridget, all at home.

Mrs Stenson is the former Dorothy Shortt, daughter of Mrs. Richard Shortt and the late Richard Shortt. Her husband is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Stenson.

Dear Abby:

Pros 'n Cons Of Past Advice

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to that wife who "prettied herself up" and laid down on the sofa with nothing on because her husband called and said he was bringing her a surprise was silly!

Husbands often bring home unexpected company. To find his wife stretched out on the sofa without a stitch on when he opens the door accompanied by two business associates would embarrass any man with an ounce of brains.

In recent years it seems that more people are obsessed with the idea of parading around naked. I guess maybe they don't realize that most folks look a lot better with something on.

Sure, I think the husband should forgive her, but maybe he has taught her a good lesson for being so vain and self-centered.

I'll bet if the situation had been reversed, and the wife came home with two of her lady friends to find her husband stretched out on the sofa naked as a jaybird, that wife would have been furious.—PUZZLED AT YOUR ANSWER

DEAR PUZZLED: You could be right, but my mail has been running 50 to one in favor of the wife. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A wife wrote that her husband had called, saying he was bringing home a "surprise" for her and asking her to fix a pitcher of martinis. She thought it was the diamond earrings she had wanted for Christmas, so she prettied herself up and stretched out (sans clothes) on the sofa as a "surprise" for him.

Abby, that husband must be crazy! How lucky can a man be to come home with two business associates to a pitcher of cold martinis and a wife stretched out naked on the sofa! He must be the envy of his entire company. I can't understand why he should be upset with her. SHE should be upset with him for putting her in that embarrassing situation. That husband should hotfoot it to his local jeweler for those diamond earrings.

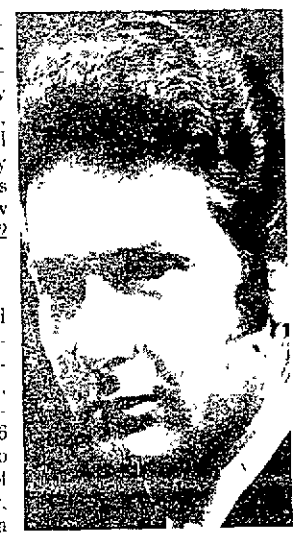
She gets my vote for being an ideal wife, and if you won't tell MY wife, I'll make her those earrings myself!—PENNSYLVANIA JEWELER

DEAR ABBY: I'm with you! That husband who came home to the wife who wanted to surprise him because he said he was bringing HER a surprise had no right to be furious with her. He owes her not only the earrings, but also a matching necklace, finger rings and a Mediterranean cruise!—R. S. M. IN COLUMBUS CONFIDENTIAL TO LUCY: It's not always better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all. It depends upon what you've lost. ——

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26 cents) envelope.

Calories? We'll walk those off in no time'." says Jim Thompson, right, a registered walker in Zonta Club's upcoming Walkathon '76. Lou Mariotti, third from left, manager of Dunkin' Donuts, and Bob Wirth, manager of Kentucky Fried Chicken, will donate some of the goodies to those who complete the walk on Saturday, May 22 from 10 a.m. until noon. Zonta members, Louise Greenwald, left, Betty Madonna and Frances Turck, sample the goodies beforehand. Louise is confident of reducing the poundage come May 22. All proceeds from the event will benefit the initial funding for the new Chronic Hemodialysis Center to be established at Kingston Hospital. Those wishing to participate should contact Mickey Duncan, Kay Sullivan or any Zontian. (Freeman photo)

HVP's New Music Director Will Conduct 'Lizzie Borden'



NEW YORK— Pallo, Hungarian conductor who was recently appointed music director of Hudson Valley Philharmonic (effective July 1, 1976 through July 1, 1979), will conduct the New York City Opera's revival performances of Lizzie Borden at the New York State Theater, April 22 and 25.

This production is directed by Nikos Psacharopoulos designed by Peter Wexler, costumed by Patton Campbell, with lighting by Hans Sondheimer. During the 1976 spring season, Mr. Pallo also conducted performances of Carmen, Die Meistersinger, Die Fledermaus and Lucrezia Borgia. On April 20, he will conduct The Masked Ball with the New York City Opera

By O. Lincion Igou

KINGSTON—This past weekend the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra gave its final program of the season, concluding with a Kingston performance tonight in the Community Theatre. Your reviewer attended the concert in the Community Theatre. Your reviewer attended the concert in Newburgh where the orchestra received and enthusiastic welcome after Concertmaster Edward Simon discoursed on some of the financial problems facing the Philharmonic.

There were indeed several visable and auditory evidences of difficulties confronting the orchestra and the society which directs its activities. The "Society gratefully acknowledges the generosity of the musicians who are donating their services to this concert," read the program. For whatever reason, of forty-seven string players listed, a fairly accurate count showed only twenty-six actually on the stage. This reduction in the body of string tone available does not make for an effective presentation of a work of the proportions of the programmed Beethoven piano concerto. Of course, the orchestra does not heve on its roster sufficient woodwind players ever to follow the custom of doubling on those parts in a large share of the orchestral repertoire from Beethoven on, a common practice even a century and a half ago.

Still further evidence of the state of the budget was the programming, which called for a solo performance of Schumann's Symphonic Etudes by a pianist who normally would have played only a concerto with the orchestra, improbably followed with a short, popular, solo encore. Thanks to the major assistance of the soloist, the orchestra presumably had to donate less time to preparing for its share of this concert, which consisted of a short Suite of Stravinsky (arranged by the composer from a group of earlier four-hand piano works), the Beethoven concerto, and Prokofieff's Classical Symphony. Unfortunately it must be reported that all of the factors cited above affected the quality of the performance.

The Stravinsky Suite by any other composer might have been termed inconsequential, but his rhythmic involvement, especially in the third movement, the parade of solo timbres in the second (a remote intimation of the much more compact scoring to come in the later Le Histoire du Soldat), the repeated ostriato figure in the last movement, and the unexpected, abrupt endings—all of these present a series of reminders of the remarkable versatility of this musical Picasso.

Misha Dichter, soloist in the G-Major Piano Concerto of Beethoven, proved himself to be a technically facile young artist, although there was all too little persuasive dialog between soloist and orchestra, especially in the first and last movement. Yet this dialog is at the necessary core of a concerto, even if a true and exciting rapport is established in all too few performances of works of this kind. It is not clear who was at fault. Mr. Dichter appeared to be pitching his playing at the level of a full symphony orchestra which, one must admit, is really necessary for a proper performance of this, the most difficult of Beethoven's five piano concertos. Nevertheless, the soloist seemed either unable or uninterested in trying to scale his playing to the level of this particular orchestral ensemble. On the other hand, the vast share of the orchestra's comments on matters of musical moment were lost, most often in the woodwinds, but also in the strings: for which the orchestra's leader must also assume a share situation of the responsibility.

The slow movement was from an entirely different piece of cloth. True, the orchestra did not have to be concerned with many of the problems posed in the first movement, but this relatively short movement, scored only for piano and strings, was noteworthy in demonstrating that the soloist and orchestra could indeed converse together successfully. Actually, the scoring is such that dialog is inevitable, but all the same, it was a happy exchange and a highlight of the performance.

The third movement which moves along at a good clip was paced at a minimally acceptable tempo, but again, lost string and woodwin lines greatly diminished the hoped-for effectiveness of an exchange of musical ideas. Nevertheless, the audience found Mr. Dichter's and director Luis Garcia-Renart's performance impressive and applauded enthusiastically

The high-light of the evening, without any question in your reviewer's mind, was Mr. Dichter's solo performance of the Schumann Symphonic Etudes. Here, on his own, one was aware from beginning to end of this young artist's command of all the resources of his instrument, and of his innate sensitivity in combination with a proper understanding of the organization and intent of the music, to the maximum use of those technical resources. Scarcely an eye moved from the stage as he painted a musical canvas which ranged from pastels, at times close to an impressionistic delicacy, to the dramatically intense primary colors of a rich Lisztian keyboard orchestra. Lines moved in and out, back and forth, with noteworthy and consistent clarity, yet the whole performance was so effectively knit into one unit that one was not torn and pulled, exhausted, by the end of the work. How many universes away from the composer's popular Traumerie this is, and what demands it makes! Mr. Dichter responded to them admirably, and the standing ovation which he received at the work's conclusion was totally deserved.

The final selection, Prokofieff's Classical Symphony, was not a happy choice at this time. The symphony is a fragile, transparent one, as its title suggests, but the orchestra was not up to the precision required. Violin bowings were frequently uncoordinated; their high notes were uncertain; and again the woodwinds often failed to cut through the strings—at times the result of failure to observe dynamic marks in the strings as opposed to those called for in the winds. At other times the absence of a true pianissimo in the stings (a situation which prevailed throughout the entire evening) was especially unfortunate, since this work thrives on just such delicate nuances. At one point near the end of the symphony, for example, there was almost no perceptible distinction between a string pianissimo and a forte immediately following. Mr. Garcia-Renard obviously is not unfamiliar with the composition but he did not yet have it ready for a professional presentation on Saturday evening. Hopefully, the fall season will bring a return to better days in many respects.

Growing Disbelief

Dear Editor:

I have read with much interest and growing disbelief the letters sent to you from out of the county by Stanley Christman and John Smigel, representatives of an organization calling itself the "Constitutional Rights Associates Inc."

The organization's name is in itself a mockery, for what could be more in keeping with our constitutional rights and heritage than preserving that great land and its resources, and that is exactly the purpose of the proposed Catskill Park Commission. The Commission would be authorized to develop a land-use plan and an economic development program which would preserve the natural beauty of the area and guide development in a coordinated manner.

One can argue against doing anything for the Catskills, for maintaining the status quo. Recognize, then, that you are arguing to maintain factors which support the highest unemployment rate in the state — 13 per cent in Ulster County, 17 per cent in neighboring Sullivan County. Translate that into human terms, and you have one-fourth of the available work force unemployed.

What we are trying to do is focus attention on the Catskills and the west side of the Hudson River, an area which has never received recognition from the state government. We have potentially the best recreational facilities in the state; ironically, people from the Catskills travel to vacation in the Adirondacks, because our own areas have not been adequately developed.

The only developers who would be hurt by such planning will be those who want to gouge the earth, the unscrupulous, the greedy. The only people who will be helped by such planning will be all of us and our posterity.

Sincerely yours,
MAURICE D. HINCHEY

Dear Editor:

Everbody has to do their part by helping your state and local government. Promises is no good. There is all kinds of garbage along the railroad tracks in Kingston. Have those who are on welfare and on SSI, pick up the garbage along the railroad tracks. Give them some work to do. That would save tax money. I know a lot of people who are on welfare and SSI who won't work as long as they get a free handout. This is a hazard to our community.

We the people of Ulster County must do something to save our tax dollars. I don't think we need, a new high school.

What I think we need, is dedication to save the tax dollar so the working man and woman or our Ulster County can help the poor. That is what our government is all about.

Build camp sites in the city parks, have Bible gospel parks, have a Billy Graham Evangelistic Association come to Kingston.

We need a vocational school to teach a trade. The old vocational school on Grand Street, Kingston, would be just right for us, all. The old Kingston Police Department on Broadway, use that for the police. Let them repair the building. Repair the high school, the same. No wonder our taxes are so high in Ulster County because they want to build all the time. That is not saving money.

We need to bring money into our city. The mayor of Kingston uses too much money to fix the city up. What we need is somebody better than Mr. Koenig to run our local government. We need somebody like myself or somebody else who can run a city.

I think Mr. Nelson Rockefeller could do a better job than Mr. Koenig and also the police in Kinston are not doing their job. They are sleeping half the time in back of the hotel. People tell me this.

Grossly Uninformed

Dear Editor:

This is in response to a letter from Ms. Gail Zeig in which she attempts to "restate a few basic facts" about the abortion issue. Unfortunately Ms. Zeig, like millions, is grossly uninformed.

This safe and simple operation she is speaking of is butchering millions of women who are ignorant of what an abortion can do to them. Of course the worst complication from a legal abortion is death. The mortality rates per 100,000 for several countries: Finland, 66; Denmark, 41.4; Sweden, 39.2; Great Britain, 30. It is important to realize that these figures are for legal abortions done by doctors in hospitals or clinics. Of course statistics done in the U.S. are not valid because women travel from state to state to have abortions, return home and are then treated for complications. These are rarely reported. Other major complications from abortions are sterility, subsequent habitual miscarriage, tubal pregnancy increase, post abortion infection, perforated utereus and abdominal pain. Post abortion infection is one of the common causes of death in criminal abortions and yet 27 per cent occurs in legal abortion. Ms. Zeig so proudly and so wrongly states that in 100,000 abortions only two deaths occur. And yet, of course, she is speaking of maternal deaths not of the innocent unborn.

She says the Supreme Court "upheld the basic constitutional right of individual liberty upon which this nation was founded." Our country is in poor shape if it was founded based on the liberty to kill its young.

Sincerely,
Ms. Margaret Whelan

On Gun Control

Dear Governor Carey:

I read with horror of your latest intentions to restrict the constitutional right to bear arms and defend one's business and family.

Automobiles kill thirty times as many people in a given year as do firearms. Does this mean that automobiles should be outlawed?

Experience has proven that gun control does not reduce crime; but strong crime penalties and strict enforcement do. Gun control does not keep guns out of the hands of criminals; it merely disarms the decent and upstanding citizenry.

Government interference with personal freedoms, and ever-encroaching bureaucracy, have merely served to prove its (Governments') own incompetence and impotency time after time, at the cost of personal freedoms. I respect the office of Governor of the State of New York very highly; but I also regard the United States Constitution more highly than I regard any politician. No amount of liberal rhetoric or biased media scare campaigns will give you the moral right or the political ability to ignore our constitutional right to bear arms.

Government interference with personal freedoms, and ever-encroaching bureaucracy, have merely served to prove its (Governments') own incompetence and impotency time after time, at the cost of personal freedoms. I respect the office of Governor of the State of New York very highly; but I also regard the United States tuition more highly than I regard any politician. No amount of liberal rhetoric or biased media scare campaigns will give you the moral right or the political ability to ignore our constitutional right to bear arms.

THEREFORE, I hereby urge you to abandon this and all other efforts at implementing the unrealistic, utopian idea of gun control. This is America, not a police state (so far). Kindly inform me as soon as possible as to whether or not you intend to continue in your efforts along these lines. If so, my many interested friends and myself will let you know our reply at the polls. There are many of us who cherish our God-given rights as guaranteed by the Constitution which you have sworn to uphold.

To: THE HURLEY TOWN BOARD

As a concerned mother, I look around this town to see what is available in recreation for our children. The more I look, the less I find. The only accessible place to meet or to congregate has hardly any resemblence to being a park. It is the potholed ball field situated on Wall Street next to the firehouse. Before sending my children there, however, I always make sure that they have had a drink before leaving. You see, there isn't even a water fountain there. As for a basketball hoop, there is none. Outrageous'. Because of this, teenagers are bored and restless looking for something exciting to do. Can you blame them'. Have you the Town Board ever thought of our children or are you selfishly thinking of just yourselves. Is it too much to ask that we have a modest recreational facility for our children to be able to congregate and socialize in a healthy manner? Why should all the towns surrounding us have what any normal, healthy town should have, and not us'. We in West Hurley, who are heavily taxed, have nothing to show for it. Please reconsider this badly needed recreational facility being offered at Oehlers. It's time that we stop being so conservative and cheap and start being more progressive. As parents of young children, we feel that the time is now'. Let's put it up for referendum.

Victim of IRS

WASHINGTON—In Karl Bray's last letter smuggled out of a Federal penitentiary a couple of weeks ago, he said he had no hope of getting out on his appeal bond before April 15th, tax day - his enemy, the IRS, would see to that. At this writing, his whereabouts in the Federal prison system is unknown to his friends and sympathizers, who incline toward being angry, honest and ineffectual right-wingers of a Whig or Libertarian persuasion.

Bray seems to be of that sort, insofar as one can tell by reading the clippings on his case from The Salt Lake City Tribune and by intuiting: a literal-minded Libertarian who can't get it . through his head that the Constitution does not mean what it says.

The man's troubles began in June 1973, when he put full-page ads in the Salt Lake City newspapers disputing the government's right to impose wage and price controls and daring the authorities to take after him for saying so. The IRS, which had the responsibility of administering the control program, immediately demanded to see Bray's books.

If Bray had any sense he would have quietly capitulated, produced his books and records and apologized to the IRS. They can wreck you so easily. They can take your car, your bank account, everything you own without even going to court.

Honesty is no defense either. They can always show you did your taxes wrong, because it is almost impossible to do them right. The IRS's own figures show that 74 percent of middle-income returns prepared by outfits like H&R Block are incorrect, but the greater the expertise of the tax preparer the more likely the possibility of mistakes. Thus 75 percent of middle-income returns prepared by accountants are wrong, 78 percent prepared by lawyers, and, get this, 79 percent prepared by the IRS itself are incorrect.

Which is but another way of saying there is no right way of preparing your taxes. You are always wrong. How can it be other? If nobody understands the regulations, nobody can obey them. When a law is violated daily by millions of people or a law is so complicated that millions of people can't obey it, the way is open for selective enforcement. Since the authorities can't hope to prosecute all the violators, as with marijuana or prostitution, selected lawbreakers are picked out. Wherever there is selective enforcement there is corruption, there is using law enforcement to get somebody for some other extraneous reason.

Bray ought to have known that, but there is a certain type of right-winger who doesn't realize that in a Democracy you do what the officials tell you to do. Instead he wrote a book called "Taxation and Tyranny" (impudent title) and got into more trouble. According to a UPI dispatch from Salt Lake City printed in "The Los Angeles Times" (all we've got is press clips on this fellow), the IRS subpoenaed Bray's bank account to get a list of all those who paid for a copy of the book by check.

The next year, 1974, we find Bray being convicted of a Federal misdemeanor charge of "illegal possession of Internal Revenue Service seizure stickers." The judge gives him the maximum six-month sentence after an IRS undercover agent testifies he heard Bray say, "Seizure notices would be put on cars and property in the local (Salt Lake City) area and it would be good publicity and would cause irate citizens to call the IRS." Bray's supporters contend that the stickers were Xeroxes that anyone could tell weren't genuine, but don't you sleep better for knowing the IRS has undercover agents to spare for infiltrating minuscule right-wing meetings in Salt Lake City? What chance does anybody have and why won't one of these 10,000 rampaging, vote-maddened politicians tell us if elected he will bridle the IRS? So what if he's lying?

Bray apparently is immune to that emotion. The following year, 1975, finds him defiantly back in the prisoner's dock. This time they have him up for claiming 15 dependents on his W-4 form, 14 of whom are largely imaginary. They also have him for refusing to fill out his income tax form. Like a lot of right-wingers, Bray believes that being compelled to fill out the form is a violation of his Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination. He does not understand that the Federal bench has recently ruled that the only unconstitutional act the rest of the government has committed in the last 100 years is to fail to give the judges large enough and timely enough pay raises.

In this trial the prosecution also accuses Bray of writing irritable irreverencies on his tax return like, "Go straight to hell... Do not pass Go... Do not collect $200." Poor boy, he didn't understand that the IRS considers $200 an insultingly low figure.

After the jury convicted him, the judge denounced him, saying Bray "comes awfully close to preaching insurrection against the government... That is lawlessness." It'll also get you a two-year sentence and a $10,000 fine. On top of which the judge, one Willis W. Ritter, said he was going to have criminal contempt charges filed against Bray for accusing his honor of accepting a $20,000 bribe.

You'll always get a stiffer sentence for trying to make the government live by its own laws than for trying to overthrow it. So we cannot expect to see Karl Bray and question him out of prison walls for some time. Still, if the Salt Lake papers have it right, he is a minor hero in Utah where, evidently, tax defiance is slowly gaining the respectability that draft defiance had a few years ago.

The Mystery Remains

WASHINGTON — The aura of mystery which surrounded Howard Hughes while he was alive still lingers after his death.

We have determined that the famous recluse, rich beyond comprehension, died of the symptoms of a neglected pauper. He spent his last days in the penthouse of one of Acapulco's most fashionable hotels. Yet he lived in unbelievable filth.

He commanded a $2 billion financial empire. Yet he refused to let aides attend him, shunned human contact, neglected his own physical needs. Most of the time, he was in a catatonic stupor.

Last week, he turned up in Houston, a "shriveled" and "emaciated" corpse. Sources privy to his condition say his frail, 90-pound body was dehydrated and covered with sores.

The Internal Revenue Service has started an investigation to determine whether this shrunken hulk of a man controlled his own affairs. There is evidence that he may have been incompetent and incapacitated.

Should this be established, the authorities will demand to know why a guardian wasn't appointed to manage his affairs' Every last dollar will be traced to determine whether his associates siphoned off any of his fortune.

In an attempt to unravel the Howard Hughes mystery, we have sent reporters to Acapulco, Houston and Los Angeles. We have spoken to every source we could find who might have had contact with Hughes.

We have pieced together the portraits, strangely, of two quite different Howard Hughes. The contrasting descriptions have been furnished, moreover, by equally reliable sources.

The first Howard Hughes began to emerge in the 1960s. Most of the time, he was rational, even brilliant. But he had irrational periods, which began to last longer and longer. He also developed a strange phobia against microbes.

Once, he contemplated purchasing a house in the Los Angeles area. He ordered his security forces to seal off six prospective homes, permitting no one, not even the owners, to enter. Not until these houses had been free of human contamination for three months would Hughes inspect them'

By 1964, his aides already had started to worry about his mental and physical deterioration. Sometimes, they couldn't get him to sign papers that were vital to his own interests' In a sworn statement, former aide Robert Maheu has told about discussing the problem with Hughes' chief of staff, Frank W. Gay, at Los Angeles' Bel Air Hotel'

"Frank W. Gay discussed with attorney Edward Morgan of Washington, D.C., and myself the advisability of initiating a plan whereby effectual control of the Hughes Tool Company might be worked out by a very selective group of a few individuals," Maheu attests, "in the event certain physical or mental problems should arise insofar as Mr. Hughes was concerned."

Gay stated, according to Maheu, "that he feared Mr. Hughes' mental condition might cause him to crack up at any moment and he wanted to be in a position so as to take advantage of such an eventuality."

Morgan recalled the discussion but not in any "sinister context." According to Morgan's recollection, Gay wanted to protect Hughes from himself and insure stable management of his interests.

Not long afterward, the eccentric billionaire disappeared into a Las Vegas penthouse. He would permit no one to come near him nor to clean his immediate surroundings. Thus the man who feared germs was soon wallowing in his own filth'

Witnesses report that Hughes became "an emaciated invalid with white hair down to his shoulders, shaggy eyebrows, a straggly beard and grotesquely long fingernails and toenails."

Dr' Harold L. Feikes, who was summoned to the penthouse to give Hughes blood transfusions in October 1974, reported to the sheriff that Hughes was in a catatonic state with a dangerously low hemoglobin count.

Yet the following month, the phantom billionaire vanished from Las Vegas. He was reported thereafter to be lodged in a series of penthousss in Nassau, Managua, Vancouver, London and Acapulco.

On Feb' 17, 1972, Hughes was hauled aboard a boat in the Bahamas in a stretcher-like wheelchair. The skipper, Bob Rehak, said Hughes had hair down to his shoulders, a stringy beard and yellowed, curling toenails about two inches long. Other witnesses have given similar descriptions.

Yet astonishingly, a different Howard Hughes was seen by reputable witnesses during this same period. U.S. Ambassador Turner Shelton, invited to meet Hughes aboard his executive jet, described him as "about six feet, three inches tall, very thin, weighing from 140-150 pounds, graying hair and neatly trimmed Van Dyke-type beard."

Apparently the same trim, distinguished man with the Van Dyke beard was seen in London by Nevada's Gov. Mike O'Callaghan and Gaming Board Chairman Phil Hanniflin. They had made a detailed study of Hughes, so they would be sure they were dealing directly with him. He answered every question with precise accuracy, recalling obscure, trivial details from his past.

This second Hughes was clean, alert, affable. He shook hands firmly, with no apparent fear of human contact. Was he the same man, with unkempt hair and toenails, who had become a hermit in his own luxurious penthouse? Or was he a double, who had been carefully coached on Hughes' background?

We have established this much. In the 1960s, a movie actor named Brooks Randall was hired occasionally to impersonate Hughes. This began as a ruse to deceive process servers. We have been unable, however, to locate Randall who was last reported in Colorado.

With Cool Vengeance ...

This spring the U.S. Supreme Court will tell five Southern states whether they may reinstate capital punishment as fitting punishment for murder. It is not a simple issue. Be assured that the High Court will be criticized no matter which way its judgment falls.

Capital punishment was struck down by the Court in 1972. Opponents of legal death hoped that the nine Justices would denounce it as "cruel and unusual punishment." The black-robed men sidestepped that phrase by claiming that death sentences were unevenly applied in the several states.

As an example, coercive rape might be punished in New York State with a one- or two-year sentence; in Florida the same crime could mean death in the electric chair.

Since 1972, the attorney generals of Texas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and North Carolina - each of whom want a death penalty on the books - have reached common agreement on an "even" law. Other states are watching the battle unfold before the Supreme Court, and if the new statutes are upheld, it will be copied in the East and Midwest.

GROUNDS FOR OPPOSITION

I have been opposed to capital punishment on two grounds: I was assigned to watch many executions; statistics tend to show that the threat of death does not inhibit potential murderers.

Two thousand years ago, man had no jails. The punishment for all crimes was death. In Rome, a citizen driving a chariot from the Alban Hills to the Senate would see, along the roadside, about 600 men dying on crosses.

In Palestine, all serious violations of God's law were punishable by stoning to death. In the Orient, heads were chopped off. At one time, Great Britain punished pickpockets with public hanging. More pockets were picked during the execution than on other occasions.

And yet, I waver in my belief. Crime in our streets is out of control. Our prisons are jammed. Criminals out on bail for one violent crime commit another. Some filling stations and bars sustain three and four holdups each year.

The big fight against capital punishment is not coming from liberals this time. Lawyers for the NAACP are in the forefront. They claim that a disproportionate number of blacks are sentenced to die.

Disproportionate to what? Blacks represent 11 per cent of our population. FBI statistics show that blacks are arrested for 41 per cent of all cases of aggravated assault, 57 per cent of all murders, and 62 per cent of robberies.

It is not racist to point to the inarguable fact that 11 per cent of the population perpetrates more than half the murders. Nor is it out of order to note that a great deal of black crime is directed against black people.

The U.S. Solicitor General, Robert H. Bork, has filed a brief in support of the Southern contention that the electric chair and hanging should be a part of our culture. New statistics, he says, prove that the death penalty is a deterrent to murder. The old ones never proved it.

LIMITS TOO NARROW!

If death stops crime, why limit it to murder? There are plenty of precedents in common law depicting hanging as fit punishment for all crimes of violence.

Armed robbery, assault with a deadly weapon, breaking and entering with threats to the lives of occupants - why not? If we must kill legally to stop illegal killing, let us protect our citizens from knives, guns, lead pipes, baseball bats and other barbarous attacks.

Kill them with cool vengeance. Let us deter all criminals from scaring us to death Hold all executions in the big dining halls of our state prisons. Attendance by convicts must be mandatory.

Let them see what lies ahead on their road. Why go part of the way? If my opposition to capital punishment must melt against the heat of the majority of citizens - so be it. But go all the way.

Why not mandatory life terms for three-time recidivists? I can forgive one crime. Maybe two. Nothing can persuade me that a convict who has been found guilty three times will reform.

Put him away permanently. Abolish the parole commissions, which are in business to undo the work of juries and judges. Put the criminal to work behind bars so that he is not a burden to the taxpayers.

Reluctantly, I concede that I was wrong. Toughen the laws and allow them to apply equally to all malefactors. These days, it's them or us . . .

John Chamberlain

Kissinger's Wrigglings

Henry Kissinger has been doing a powerful lot of wriggling lately. His State Department has accused Ronald Reagan of departing from the facts when he said Kissinger was willing to settle with the Soviet Union on a "second best" basis, which would inevitably result in the Communists taking over most of the strategic spots on the globe.

The question of veracity, of course, is not between Reagan and Kissinger; it is between Kissinger and Adm. Elmo R. Zumalt Jr., who claims to have heard it from Kissinger's own lips that the U.S. was a declining power that could not hope to wrestle world leadership from the Communists

The wriggle on Zumwalt might be convincing if there weren't wriggles about a lot of other things. Currently Kissinger is trying to get out from under on ths so-called Sonnenfeldt doctrine. Helmut Sonnenfeldt, a State Department counselor, had allegedly let it be known to the West Europeans that the best way of avoiding war in Europe is to promote an "organic" relationship between Poles, Czechs, Hungarians and the Soviet Union itself. Kissinger has made light of Sonnenfeldt's defeatist briefing of U.S. European ambassadors, saying it has all been misconstrued by a junior foreign service officer.

Storm Signals

The Kissinger wriggles are a diversion: they fudge the fact that Ronald Reagan is exactly right when he says that the U.S. has slipped to Number Two in its military capabilities. Speaking before the House Committee on Armed Services recently, Eugene Rostow, the Yale law professor and former State Department official who represents the Coalition for a Democratic Majority, made it plain that the Soviets are far outdistancing this country in the crucial matter of atomic missile throw-weight Citing Paul Nitze's doubts about the Vladivostok Salt II understanding, Rostow told the Congressmen that the new Soviet SS-19s have three times the throw-weight of the U.S. Minuteman III, and the new SS-18s seven times. With at least a three-to-one superiority over the U.S. in throw-weight, the Soviets may be tempted to doubt the Americans have a second-strike capacity capable of remaining in being to reply to a devastating surprise attack on the military installations of the continental U.S. Big wars, in the past, have always resulted from such uncertainties, and Rostow is rightly perturbed by the picture of a U.S. that dawdles about the B-1 bomber, which could make up for some of the missile throw-weight that Kissinger has given away.

Rostow's Coalition for a Democratic Majority is, of course, presumed to be in Sen. Henry Jackson's corner, but there is no reason why Ronald Reagan can't make use of the Rostow figures.

Rostow is appalled by the inability of the U.S. to do anything more than remain mum about Lebanon and Libya, which seem to him more important than Angola.

On the same day that Rostow was testifying in Washington, Dr. Uri Ra'anan of the Fletcher School of Diplomacy at Tufts was complaining to Senators Humphrey and Case that the latest Sadat "break" with the Soviet Union could be pure window dressing Sadat has said the failure of the Soviets to supply him with arms replacements means that the Egyptian armaments will soon be "junk."

Red Reality

but from Cairo published press sources that the New York Times could read if it would, Dr Ra'anan has learned that the Russians have sent 1,000 tanks, including 500 of the most advanced T-628, to Egypt since 1973.

Moreover, 30 Soviet MIG 23s went to Egypt last year, along with some advanced SU 20 swing-wing planes SCUD missiles capable of hitting Tel Aviv from the Suez Canal forward area have also been sent to Cairo. All of this equipment is new, it won't be "junk" for a long time to come.

Once before, in 1972, Sadat "broke" with the Soviet Union It was all a hoax, as was later revealed by Abdul al-Satar al-Tawilla, editor of Rose al-Yusuf, the official organ of the Arab Socialist Union Sadat himself gave his blessing to the book in which the Cairo editor boasted of the way the Egyptians camouflaged their preparations for the Yom Kippur War of 1973.

Could it be that we are being hoaxed all over again by the "departure" of the Russians from Cairo?

Ralph Ingersoll

Angola May Be New 'China' for Soviet

It is possible but highly improbable that the fate of Angola will be all settled by the time these ruminations on the subject reach print. Our so often confused and ill informed government seems to have been singularly disinterested when it all began, while the Russians apparently saw clearly and promptly the immense importance of this so long ignored, big and potentially big rich chunk of Africa and its coast. Angola (it came as a surprise when I looked it up) is twice the size of Texas and has a thousand miles of coast land—and was, when its liberation came, totally unprepared for becoming its own boss and is almost totally undeveloped Now, suddenly it is up for grabs in the major power world

The stake of the Russians in turning it into a colony under its control and our stake in developing it into a truly liberated Western oriented democracy would seem to me to have been self-evident to any thoughtful internationalist.The Russians' experts certainly recognized the opportunity but our Kissenger-led State Department appears to have been bemused by the Middle-East muddle—and hypnotized by the illusion of detente—that it hadn't taken the time to do its homework. All it could think of was approving the covert operations which Congress so promptly stepped on What else could Congress do—so late in the game and with all of us still in shock from the catastrophy that the originally covert operations in Indochina turned into?

As a betting man, I see no choice now but to put my wager on local factions backed by the Russians—whose military equipment I can't see the still primitive majority of Angolans being able to counter A John F Kennedy, for better of worse, might have called the Russian's hand, as he did in the Cuban missile crisis, with a "stay out or else . . ." ultimatum. But would an uninformed and unsophisticated American electorate have backed him up? Again after Vietnam I doubt it

So where do we stand now? All I can see, looking over the international chess board, is to recognize the fact that the Russians have taken another piece and then to reanalyze our game with them in the light of this fact.

If you'd like a cheery note, remember that the Russians once appeared to have captured the queen-size piece of Asia, which is China—only to find that it is still on the board playing against them.

To have a military dictatorship of the minority swallowing Angola, to change the metaphors, is not to have to accept the fact that they will be able to digest it International politics is not quite like chess. When you capture a chess man, you remove him from the board. Angola isn't transplantable to Russia's border and the Russians may find, as they found in China, that they are not as welcome as "liberators" as they expected to be.

So if we won't be so silly as to turn all black Africa against us by a-lying ourselves with white power in South Africa, things may not turn out so badly after all.

The Campaign Answer Man

By Arnold Sawislak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Campaign Answer Man is back in town and we've asked him to drop by to give us an analysis of the issues that have dominated the 1976 presidential primaries so far

Question: Sir, we've heard a great deal about detente during the last few weeks. Would you define detente for us and tell us just what the controversy is about?

Answer Man: Delighted. Detente refers to Dr. Kissinger's dental work. The big issue is whether the secretary of state was in violation of the Buy America Act when he had a cavity filled in Smolensk.

Answer Man: As you might imagine, Gov. Carter is most vitally interested in the issue of dental health He has pledged to reduce the secretary's teeth from 32 to 11, but declines to say whether Kissinger's incisors or molars would be the first to go.

Sen. Jackson takes a hard line on the issue. He pledges to bite the Russians if they remain recalcitrant. Rep. Udall has a joke he tells about dentists. Gov. Reagan has come out firmly against electric tooth brushes and the President has called in an orthodontist from Grand Rapids to advise him on the matter.

Question: The economy seems to be a major issue. What are the candidates saying about jobs?

Answer Man: Well, each has his own program. Sen. Jackson plans to put the unemployed to work building airplanes. Rep. Udall would have them filling strip mines. Gov. Reagan would hire 200,000 unemployed people to investigate welfare chiseling.

Gov. Wallace would institute a program hiring welfare mothers to shred guidelines and dump them into the Potomac Gov. Carter promises to tell the truth about the issue And the President says he, for one, isn't going to panic.

Question: Is there much concern about mass transit?

Answer Man: This could become a hot issue The President is preparing a program to provide subway cars to Dalhart, Tex., Anaheim, Calif., and cities in other states with late primaries by repossessing the Pelham line in New York City

Sen. Jackson favors a new technology — moving commuters to their jobs on airplanes, while Gov. Carter leans toward submarines Gov Wallace plans to take the bicycles away from the college professors and giving them to steel workers in Gary, Ind., and other people who can park them straight

Question: Well, how important will these issues be in determining the nominations and the election? We hear all the time that image and personalities are dominating the campaign.

Answer Man. Not so. Rep Udall, for one, denied that both in New York and Milwaukee, after his one-on-one matches with local professional basketball stars And Gov. Carter simply dismisses the issue with a smile

Question: So we won't be hearing about charisma in this campaign? Answer Man. Now that Gov Shapp is out of it, we've seen the last of charisma.

Predictions a Bad Mistake

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although not a veteran practioner of the trade, Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina is an astute politician.

He proved that to President Ford's chagrin and Ronald Reagan's surprise when he delivered North Carolina for the former California governor in the state's GOP presidential primary.

So his views on Reagan's campaign strategy are worth noting.

"The worst mistake the Reagan strategists have made," Helms said shortly beforethe North Carolina primary, "has been the expansiveness of their predictions."

At the outset of the campaign, the Reagan public policy was to claim a victory if he could run 40 per cent in New Hampshire against an incumbent President. This was the figure duly put forth by former Rep. Hugh Gregg, his Granite State campaign manager.

But when the soundings started sounding better, Gregg could not resist and started predicting 45 per cent. And then Meldrim Thompson, the irascible governor and Reagan backer, jumped that and made it 55 per cent.

So when Ford narrowly edged Reagan in New Hampshire, it was scored as a victory for the President rather than a good showing by a candidate challenging a sitting chief executive.

He started off by predicting that Reagan would beat Ford by a 2-1 margin and jumped that to 3-1. Even after Reagan lost in New Hampshire, the ebullient Thomas was promising a "landslide" 55 per cent and adding — for good measure — that Reagan would sweep all but perhaps one congressional district.

Reagan, of course, is not the first political candidate to suffer from great expectations that wind up unfulfilled.

Edmund S. Muskie decisively beat George S. McGovern in the 1972 New Hampshire presidential primary But Muskie was perceived as a loser because he fell short of the percentages his campaign aides predicted and McGovern was seen as a winner because he topped the figures he was putting out for public print.

And there are people today who think they remember that Eugene J. McCarthy beat Lyndon B. Johnson in the 1968 New Hampshire primary. He didn't but he ran so strongly against an incumbent, the impression was that McCarthy thrashed Johnson.

For all practical purposes, McGovern ended Muskie's candidacy and McCarthy chased Johnson into retirement on the basis of those New Hampshire results.

Neither McGovern nor McCarthy even reached 40 per cent of the vote but Reagan who took 48 per cent of the vote and came within less than 1,000 votes of winning inflicted no damage on Ford.

Having failed to stop Ford anywhere and perhaps at Helms' insistence, there were no victory predictions in North Carolina

Helms said it would be a "tough pull" and expressed concern about the "great masses" of undecideds.

For his part, Reagan said he would settle for a close second and talked about winning primaries down the road where "our chances for victory are greater."

As a result, when Reagan beat Ford in North Carolina, it was recorded as an upset and an important victory for a faltering campaign.

Divying Slices Of Budget's Pie

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., wants to cut $500 million in defense spending from next year's budget and add $100 million for juvenile justice.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., wants to add $2.5 billion for jobs, health, meals for the elderly, community development and rural water and sewer projects.

Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., wants to slice $6.8 billion from funds for natural resources, community development, education, health and welfare.

Those were among the proposals being made today as the Senate debated a $412.6 billion 1977 federal budget recommended by the Senate Budget Committee. It is $17 billion more than President Ford requested.

This year for the first time Congress is voting on how national priorities should be divided among broad categories in the overall budget. Though its decisions will be targets only, they will carry much weight when specific appropriation bills come to the floor.

President Ford asked Congress to increase defense spending next year but to slow down the growth of many social welfare programs.

The Senate Budget Committee approved nearly all his defense request. It recommended social welfare spending higher than Ford proposed but still below the level of current programs plus inflation.

JFK Loves Arousing Guesswork

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Times said today disclosures that President Kennedy and two major Mafia figures had close friendships with the same woman had aroused extensive speculation.

In the first of a series of three articles on the subject, the newspaper said the speculation had been stimulated because mafia figures John Roselli and Sam Giancana maintained the relationship with Judith Campbell (now Mrs. Judith Exener) "at the very time she was having an affair with the president."

Though both men were involved in the Central Intelligence Agency's abortive plots to assassinate Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro, the Times said a report on the plots by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence referred only briefly — slightly more than a page in the 349 page report — to Mrs. Campbell.

In interviews with current and former Justice Department officials, participants in the CIA plots and underworld figures, the Times had found:

— "Several recommendations were made within the Justice Department in 1962 for a thorough investigation of Mrs. Campbell's Mafia ties, but no inquiry was ever conducted.

— "Sam Giancona and John Roselli boasted to fellow gangsters about sharing the affections of a woman who was seeing the president.

— "While the Senate committee found no evidence that President Kennedy knew about the CIA-Mafia plots to kill Mr. Castro, the possibility appears high to some former Justice officials that Robert F. Kennedy, the Attorney General, told his brother about the plots in view of what he learned about the relationships of Mr. Giancana, Mr. Roselli and Mrs. Campbell in 1962 and early 1963."

Riggs' Son Found Dead

MANOR HAVEN — (UPI) — The unemployed son of Bobby Riggs, the flamboyant tennis hustler, has been found dead in a Long Island rooming house, authorities reported.

Nassau County police said James Riggs, 22, was found dead in his bed at a Long Island address by his roommate Saturday evening.

Police said a "narcotic implement" was found nearby the body. But they would not say if Riggs' death was caused by drug use. Homicide detectives said there was no indication Riggs was slain.

The spokesman for the county medical examiner's office said the body was identified Sunday by James' brother, John. An autopsy had been completed, the spokesman said, but the cause of death was "pending until toxicological and microscopic examinations could be made."

Shotgun Ambush

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two armored car guards making a cash pickup at a Times Square movie theater today were shot and critically wounded by four masked gunmen who were waiting in ambush for them, police reported.

Police said the guards, members of the Purolator Security Inc. armored car company, were rushed to St. Clare's Hospital for emergency treatment of shotgun wounds.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Ray Floyd knew he had the Masters won, but he wanted to wrap it all up in a neat, tidy package.

"I knew the tournament was mine Saturday night," said Floyd after his runaway eightstrike victory Sunday. "I didn't believe anyone else could catch me. But, I didn't want to do it sloppily."

He didn't.

Floyd had a steady 2-under-par 70 in the final round, good enough for a four-day total of 17-under-par 271 that tied the Masters record Jack Nicklaus set back in 1965.

"I honestly wasn't thinking about the record at first," he said. "But I did start thinking about it when I went 17 under with my birdie at the 15th hole.

"I knew I had the tournament won, providing I didn't break a leg or something, so I figured why not go for the record, I had my chances. I had a chance at 16, hit the ball right at the flag at 17, and, although I hit a squibbler at 18, I had a shot at a birdie putt there, too."

Floyd parred the last three holes and thus missed setting a new 72-hole mark. But he already had a good four-days work in the bag. He set 36 (131) and 54-hole (201) records and his 14 under par showing for the par fives at Augusta National was a stroke better than Jimmy Demaret's next-best showing back in 1950.

"My play on the par fives was the secret of my success this week," said Floyd. "I figured the way the course was playing that if I hit the ball well I'd have a chance to birdie all of them."

He did better than that the first three days, getting 11 birdies and an eagle in 12 chances, but birdied only one of the four par-fives Sunday.

"I didn't really have very good chances for birdies on the two par-fives on the front nine," he said. "But, I thought I had one at 13 where I lipped out."

Floyd, who raised his earnings for the year to nearly $55,000 by picking up $40,000 in the Masters, had three birdies and a bogey in Sunday's round.

The bogey came at the parthree fourth hole where he missed the green. He got that shot back on the fifth hole by placing a three-iron shot three feet from the pin; ran home a 20-footer at No. 12; then sank a 15-footer at No. 15.

"I was very pleased with my round, of course," said Floyd. "My goal was to have a good round. Under the circumstances, considering my lead and the wind, I feel it was as good a round as I had all week."

Floyd shot a 7-under-par 65 in Thursday's opening round to take a one-stroke lead, widened that to five strokes with a 66 on Friday, and then moved eight strokes ahead on Saturday when he birdied the fina l hole for a 70.

"That's when I knew I had the tournament won," he said. "I'm a human being, I get nervous. But, I felt I handled it pretty well."

Young Ben Crenshaw, winner of two back-to-back tournaments earlier this year, had a 67 Sunday, the best score in the final round, for a 9-under-par 279 that earned him $25,000 second-place money.

"I didn't have that much pressure," said Crenshaw. "I was so far back, I was playing for second place. I'm tickled to be second. It was the first time I ever broke 70 at the Masters."

"There was no denying Ray," said Ziegler. "At the start of the round there was always the chance that he might play badly and someone else might play good. But nobody had a chance to catch him after nine holes."

Ziegler said Floyd "showed his confidence" at the first hole when he drove behind a pine tree, hooked a seven-iron to the fringe of the green and got his par.

Former U.S. Open champ Hale Irwin, former Masters champ Charles Coody and Tom Kite all had 285s and former Masters champ Billy Casper had a 287 as only eight golfers from the original Masters field of 72 were able to beat par for the full four rounds.

Sunday's victory was the seventh in 13 years on the pro tour for the 33-year-old Floyd, who used to have more of a reputation as a playboy than as a golfer.

It also was his second major victory. He won the PGA Championship in 1969, the year he also won the American Golf Classic and the Greater Jacksonville Open, then he didn't win again until last year's Kemper Open.

"I didn't use to take my golf seriously," said Floyd. "Frankly, I didn't like golf. it was just a way to make money. But, that's behind me now. I'm married and the father of two and I'm now determined to become a good golfer.

"I'm tired of being a mediocre player. I want to win a lot of tournaments, especially the majors."

French Connection Reconnects

By UPI

The French Connection has reconnected.

So much trouble that the "French Connection" line only scored twice in the three games, two of which went into overtime, and had but three assists. Last year, the three forwards scored 18 goals in 17 Stanley Cup playoff games and added 25 assists.

Sunday night, however, the trio could do no wrong. Robert scored his first two playoff goals this year and Perreault and Martin each scored once and had two assists for an eight-point spree as the Sabres won 5-3 over the New York Islanders in the first game of their best-of-seven quarterfinal series.

"Some nights it seems everything is going your way," said Robert. "You can't make a mistake. I guess tonight was just one of those nights."

Sabres Coach Floyd Smith noted his team "had a little something to prove. The Islanders had beaten us the last two times in our building and we wanted to go out out and play a real solid game. That's what we did."

Robert and Perreault scored in the first period and Don Luce tallied 19 seconds into the second period against Glenn Resch, who compiled the NHL's second-best goals-against average during the regular season.

"I think the one that really broke their back was the third one," said Robert. "They seemed to give up after that."

"The goal Luce got at the start of the second period was a big factor," agreed Smith. "Before they could even get going they were three down instead of two down."

Buffalo goalie Gerry Desjardins made a bad clearing pass to New York's Billy Harris in the second period for the Islanders' first goal but Martin increased the margin to 4-1 less than four minutes later on a power play goal.

Resch was replaced by Bill Smith after the second period and New York's Bob Nystr9m cut the score to 4-2 on a power play goal 6:19 into the final period. But Robert's goal 67 seconds later insured the Sabres' win.

"When we play physical, we make things happen," said New York Coach Al Arbour. "When we don't, we just don't operate at all. We didn't play physical. That's our game and they took it away from us. The two overtime games they won certainly gave them a lift."

In the other quarterfinal round games, both home teams won 4-0--Montreal blanking Chicago and Boston beating Los Angeles. Defending champion Philadelphia begins play tonight at home against Toronto.

In World Hockey Association playoffs, New England edged Cleveland 3-2, Calgary outlasted Quebec 8-4 and Winnipeg overtimed Edmonton 5-4.

Canadiens 4, Black Hawks 0

Montreal's Larry Robinson and Peter Mahovlich each had a goal and an assist as Ken Dryden chalked up his fourth career playoff shutout. Dryden made only 22 saves, the hardest against Ivan Boldirev early in the game. Rookie Doug Jarvis and Jim Roberts also scored for Montreal.

Bruins 4, Kings 0

Jean Ratelle, who scored twice while Boston had a man advantage and also had an assist, and Ken Hodge hit power play goals 23 seconds apart in the first period to aid Gilles Gilbert's second career playoff shutout. Gilbert stopped 21 shots in the second period.

WHA

New England advanced to the East Division final round with its third straight win in the best-of-five first round series after trailing 2-0 ... Calgary scored six goals in the third period in a game halted for more than an hour by a benchclearing brawl in which Marc Tardif was carried off the ice unconscious and a Cowboy player will be charged with criminal assault .. and Ulf Nilsson stole the puck from an Edmonton player to score an unassisted overtime goal for Winnipeg.

Case of The Helpless Goalie

By United Press International

The Seattle Sonics will be just where they want to be when the National Basketball Association playoffs open this week—at home.

The Sonics overcame a determined Portland effort in their regular season finale Sunday 132-131 to finish in second place in the Pacific Division and earn the home court advantage in their best-of-seven quarterfinal showdown with the Phoenix Suns.

The Sonics will thus shoot for their 17th consecutive home court win Tuesday in their opening confrontation with the Suns. The Sonics, who own a 31-10 home record compared with a 12-29 road mark, were last defeated here by the Suns on Feb. 8.

"It couldn't happen to a better team," announced irrepressible Slick Watts following his club's critical victory over Portland. "They really played well. That's the best I've ever seen Bill Walton play."

It was Watts, along with backcourt mate Fred Brown, who ignited a fourth quarter rally which saw the Sonics erase an 11-point Blazer lead in the final seven minutes. Brown, who equaled Walton's game-high 33 points, scored 12 in the fourth period and Watts added 15.

Seattle went ahead to stay on Tommy Burleson's two free throws with 53 seconds left but needed a free throws from Burleson and Watts to secure the win.

Walton staked the Blazers to a 34-26 first quarter lead with 15 points, five rebounds and four assists. But with Walton sidelined with three fouls in the second quarter, the Sonics struck for 40 points and a 66-61 halftime lead.

Walton added 12 points in the third quarter as the Blazers went back in front 94-92 and overall hit 14-of-17 shots, grabbed 14 rebounds and added six assists before fouling out in the final minute.

Celtics 103, Bullets 99

John Havlicek scored a season-high 38 points in Boston's last regular season contest to break a four-game losing streak. Paul Silas added 17 and Charlie Scott and JoJo White 15. Elvin Hayes led Washington with 24. Boston draws a first-round playoff bye while Washington plays Cleveland Tuesday.

Braves 99, Kings 98

Bob McAdoo garnered his third straight scoring crown, scoring 34 points to complete the season with a 31.1 average. McAdoo also grabbed 12 rebounds while Ken Charles added 20 points and John Shumate 17 points and 15 rebounds. Nate Archibald topped Kansas City with 27 points and Scott Wedman had 22. The Braves' playoff opener is in Philadelphia Thursday.

Bulls 111, Bucks 77

Tom Boerwinkle, Mickey Johnson and Cliff Pondexter combined for 75 Chicago points to end a three-game losing streak. Midwest Division champion Milwauke meets Detroit in its first playoff game Tuesday.

Rockets 122, Hawks 111

Joe Meriweather scored 25 points and Rudy Tomjanovich added 24 for Houston in a battle of two non-playoff teams. Dean Meminger had 24 for Atlanta, which fell behind by as many as 20 points several times in the second half.

Knicks 103, Cavs 78

Butch Beard led a balanced New York attack with 16 points. Dick Snyder led Cleveland, which meets Washington Tuesday in its first playoff contest, with 13 points.

Jazz 112, Pistons 105

Pete Maravich scored 31 points and added nine assists to carry New Orleans past Detroit. The Pistons had seven men in double figures, led by 15 points each by Bob Lanier and Curtis Rowe.

Take It From Pete Rose, Reds Are Awesome

By UPI

Awesome.

That's the word Pete Rose uses to describe the Cincinnati Reds and it would be difficult to think of a better one.

How else would you describe a team that has won three straight games, is averaging 11 runs per game and has two players in its lineup batting .636 and .563, respectively?

The Reds made it three wins in a row Sunday when they whipped the Houston Astros, 93, with Pete Rose going 4-for-6 and Joe Morgan 2-for-4. The Reds scored a total of 33 runs in the three games; Rose has a .563 batting average, and Morgan is hitting .636.

The Reds scored two runs in the first inning on a single by Rose, a walk to Ken Griffey, a double by Morgan and Tony Perez' infield out. They routed Joe Niekro with a four-run burst in the fourth inning when they built their lead to 6-0.

Pat Darcy pitched perfect ball for five innings, but was relieved by Pat Zachary in the sixth after yielding two hits and a walk. Zachary retired the last two batters in the sixth and Will McEnaney pitched the ninth.

The San Francisco Giants defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers, 6-4; the Atlanta Braves beat the San Diego Padres, 4-2; the Pittsburgh Pirates topped the Philadelphia Phillies, 8-3; the Chicago Cubs downed the St. Louis Cardinals, 8-5; and the Montreal Expos nipped the New York Mets, 7-6.

In the American League, it was Boston 6 Baltimore 2, Minnesota 4 Texas 3, and Oakland 10 California 7. Kansas City at Chicago, Detroit at Cleveland and New York at Milwaukee were postponed due to poor weather conditions.

Giants 6, Dodgers 4

Pinch-hitter Dave Rader's pinch-hit double climaxed a four-run eighth inning rally which lifted the Giants to their victory over the Dodgers. Mike Marshall was the victim of the rally aided when leftfielder Bill Buckner and rightfielder Joe Ferguson lost wind-blown flies. Reliever Randy Moffit, who pitched one inning of hitless relief, was the winner.

Braves 4, Padres 2

Pitcher Dick Ruthven drove in three runs with two singles and received credit for the Braves' win with relief help from Roger Moret and Pablo Torrealba. Ruthven singled in Atlanta's first two runs in the second inning and drove in a third run as the Braves went ahead 4-0 in the fourth.

Pirates 8, Phillies 3

Richie Zisk and Rennie Stennett knocked in two runs each as the Pirates kayoed Steve Carlton in the fifth and went on to beat the Phillies. Carlton retired the first 10 batters, but the Pirates took a 2-0 lead when Manny Sanguillen singled, Al Oliver walked and Zisk doubled. Bruce Kison went five innings for the win, with Bob Moose pitching the last four innings.

Cubs 8, Cardinals 5

Bill Madlock singled in the tie-breaking run and Andy Thornton and Steve Swisher followed with sacrifice flies as the Cubs rallied for three runs in the ninth to beat the Cardinals. Manny Trillo had three hits for the Cubs and Bake McBride, Mike Anderson and Vic Harris had three each for the Cardinals.

Expos 7, Mets 6

Nate Colbert, who always seems at his best against the Mets, drove in two runs with a homer and a single as the Expos dealt former American League great Mickey Lolich a loss in his National League debut. Lolich, acquired from Detroit for Rusty Staub, allowed three runs in two innings and committed a damaging error. Jerry Grote drove in two runs for the Mets.

Johnson's Hunch Paid Dividends

By UPI

Call it intuition or call it luck, manager Darrell Johnson's decision Sunday to overlook the law of averages resulted in the Boston Red Sox netting their first victory of the season.

Denny Doyle's three-run double climaxed a five-run third inning and Fred Lynn belted his first home run of the year as the Red Sox defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 6-2, behind the pitching of veteran Luis Tiant and reliever Reggie Cleveland.

The victory enabled the Red Sox, the defending American League champions, to salvage the final game of the three-game series.

"Cuellar throws that screwball to the right-handed batters so I assume that's why I was in the lineup today," said Doyle. "Not being in the starting lineup every day is out of my hands."

Lynn, named the AL's "Rookie of the Year" and "Most Valuable Player" last season, continued his hot-hitting with a home run and a double. Lynn now has six hits in his last nine at-bats.

Lynn doubled to open the explosive third inning. After Jim Rice singled Lynn to third base, Carlton Fisk's single scored Lynn and a single by Carl Yastrzemski scored Rice. After Rico Petrocelli coaxed a two-out walk to load the bases, southpaw Mike Flanagan replaced Cuellar and was greeted by Doyle's double, which barely eluded first baseman Lee May, scoring Carlton Fisk, Yastrzemski and Rico Petrocelli.

In other games Minnesota edged Texas 4-3 and Oakland outslugged California 10-7. Detroit at Cleveland, New York at Milwaukee, and a doubleheader between Kansas City City and Chicago were all postponed due to adverse weather conditions.

Twins 4, Rangers 3

Dan Ford's solo home run in the ninth inning broke a 3-3 tie and gave the Twins their first victory of the season. The Rangers had battled back from a 3-0 deficit before Ford's blast off Jeff Terpko, the fourth Ranger pitcher, snapped a two-game losing streak. Five-time American League batting champion Rod Carew also doubled twice and scored twice for the

Twins. A's 10, Angels 7

Sal Bando ripped a two-run homer to highlight a four-run first inning Oakland outburst and Bill North singled in two runs in the eighth frame as the A's outlasted California for a sweep of the three-game series.

After surrendering eight runs in the first three innings, the Angels battled back, scoring three times in the fifth, twice more on Orlando Ramirez's two-run single in the sixth and two more on Bill Melton's homer in the seventh. But Oakland came back with two runs in the eighth inning to decide the contest.

Pearson Just Stayed In Front

Baker's Ford had grabbed the lead with 255 miles gone in the race and, except for pit stops, had dominated the race. But Benny Parsons spun out coming out of the fourth turn late in the race and the drivers had only 17 laps to go when racing resumed.

The caution allowed Pearson to close on Baker. Pearson passed him with 16 miles to go in the race and then kept his Wood Brothers Mercury just far enough ahead to win.

"I felt like I might could have caught him without the caution, but I don't know that I would have passed him," Pearson said. "I was running as hard as I felt like I could run and hold the car.

"The left front fender got crumpled and created what amounted to an air pocket between the fender and the hood," Baker said. "When I hit top speed the drag created by that air pocket was like putting on brakes.

Finishing third was Parsons in a Chevrolet, followed by Lennie Pond in a Chevrolet and Dave Marcis in a Dodge.

Kevin Loughery, veteran of 11 seasons with four teams in the National Basketball Association, a "basketball junkie," who "would go to high school games if there was no college or pro game around," was disgusted, almost beaten.

"If I was a player, I'd prefer to go down there and play against 10,000 screaming fans, even if they're all cheering against me, rather than 5,000 of our fans at home. There's no homecourt advantage here. This is the worst playoff crowd I've ever seen."

There was an announced attendance of 5,769 at the game.

There is a franchise dying here. Loughery was not so upset about New York Nets losing to the San Antonio Spurs, 105-79, Sunday—the worst loss by the Nets all year. That was only a playoff game. The first round American Basketball Association series is now 1-1 and there will be at least three more games. Loughery was talking about his job, his mainline interest: basketball.

"I'm totally disappointed," Loughery said, the thin whine of disgust in his voice. "Sometimes when a team isn't as sharp as you'd like them to be, a crowd can give you a lift. But the ABA has lost a lot of credibility and we're suffering. We've got the most exciting player in the game and one of the best teams and we get crowds like this on a Sunday, our best day.

"Maybe we should stop making excuses. Maybe they don't want us. Maybe we should stop fooling ourselves. But it's really too bad nobody cares."

San Antonio's George Gervin cared enought to play with a soft cast on his broken shooting hand and score 22 points. James Silas cared enough to leave his bed on crutches and come to the game after finding out he couldn't play the rest of the playoffs because he had chipped a bone when he fell in Friday night's loss. The other Spurs cared enough to gather their strength from Silas' injury and redeem themselves after a poor opening game.

"Now they gonna come to San Antonio, man, and we gonna spring 10,000 mad fans on them," said Gervin. "Now they comin' to our party. Love that sweet home court."

The three ex-Nets—Larry Kenon, Billy Paultz and Mike Gale—contributed richly to the Spurs' victory and knew exactly how their former teammates felt about the non-crowd.

"It's tough to rally yourself when there's no one watching," said Kenon, who contributed 30 and 10 rebounds. "It was awful quiet out there."

"It's got to hurt them," said Paultz, who had 20 points and 18 rebounds. And Gale, who ran the offense smoothly with 14 points and 13 assists said, "I've never been able to figure it out."

All the Nets were depressed about lack of fan support but none wanted to take refuge in it as an excuse for the loss. Besides it was the first loss on their home court in 15 games.

"We shot 31 percent, that's why we lost," said Erving, whose 27 points disguised a ragged game.

Solomon Catches Ken Rosewall

Rosewall had won a thrilling three set victory over another young star, Eddie Dibbs, Saturday but he faltered Sunday under a hot Texas sun. Solomon, 23, wore down the 41-year-old Australian to win his second World Championship Tennis title of the season.

The win was worth $17,000 for Solomon and was his first pro victory in the town where he began his tennis career at Rice University.

Solomon, of Silver Spring, Md., won the WCT Washington D.C. tournament three weeks ago. His victory at River Oaks gave him an outside shot at gaining the eight-man field for the WCT finals at Dallas in two weeks.

Rosewall, teamed with Rod Laver, downed Charles Pasarell and Allan Stone, 6-4, 6-2, for the doubles crown.

After Solomon broke Rosewall's service in the seventh game of the first set and held to win 6-4, Rosewall came back to outdual his younger opponent in four long games of the second set.

Tied 1-1 in games, Rosewall won five straight to even the match at one set apiece.

Solomon allowed Rosewall to win the final game of the second set in order to begin the third with his own service. The strategy worked.

He forced Rosewall into three straight forehand errors to win the first game 40-15. Then the aggressive Solomon broke Rosewall's service 15-40 on a blistering backhand shot sent cross-court. Solomon made it 3-0 in the third set, coming from behind and forcing Rosewall into a net error.

After Rosewall held service to make it 3-1, Solomon won the key fifth game in four points by forcing two Rosewall errors on forehand shots and then watching as Rosewall committed two unforced errors.

Lehigh Upends Hawks

Coach Bob Durkin's Hawks were able to win only the No. 3 and No. 4 singles.

Jack Ridge of Lehigh defeated Roy Coopersmith in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3, in the No. 1 singles. In the No. 2 match, Ted Yerdon of Lehigh stopped New Paltz's Mark Chase 6-2, 6-0.

Ron Kleinberg, former Catskill High School star and State U. freshman, rallied to defeat Bill Long of Lehigh in the No. 3 singles, 2-6, 6-4 and 6-3.

Ken McGrady of New Paltz tied the match at 2-2 with a 6-4, 6-2 win over Lehigh's Kevin Kenmore but after that it was all downhill for the visitors. Lehigh swept the next two singles and all three doubles matches.

In the No. 5 singles, Lehigh's Nick Hano won over Dave Brenner 6-3, 3-6 and 6-2. Bill Siegele gave Lehigh a 4-2 edge in singles by winning over Scott Rosmarin, 6-1, 6-2

(Doubles Results)

No. 1—Ridge and Yardon, L, defeated Coopersmith and Brenner, 6-4, 6-4.

No. 2—Long and Gary Kent, L, defeated Chase and McGrady, 6-5, 7-6.

No. 3—Siegelse and Ernie Diansato, L, won over Kleinberg and Rosmarin, 6-1, 6-4.

Artie's Set Record

KINGSTON—Led by Bill Fitzgerald's 47-point barrage. Artie's set a seasonal high for scoring in one quarter with 48 points, enroute to a 116-78 rout of Uhl's Construction in the YMCA "B" Basketball League.

In other games, Tudoroff's nipped Giustino's Market, 77-76; Dolphin Inn trounced J. Berinato's, 77-61; and Pearls rolled over Sonny's, 99-78.

Fitzgerald, the league's highest scorer, pumped 19 baskets and nine free throws for his 47 points. Ed Burns assisted with 29 and Paul Saehloff added 18. Juice Barnes of Uhl's maintained his position as No. 2 scorer with 31 points and Joe Kershawk contributed 20. Saehloff had 14 rebounds, Kershaw 14.

Gary Chambers starred for Gisutino's with 22 points and 12 rebounds. Bruce Jerry rimmed 18 points and Ben Hamilton 13. Tuduroff's won the game with a 23-22 edge in the final quarter.

Rockey Secreto led with 20 points and five other players were in double figures in the Dolphin win over Berinato's. Hugh Schrowang had 12 points and 17 rebounds. Ed McDevitt was the top performer for Berinato's with 29 points and 12 rebounds.

YMCA Tennis Lessons

KINGSTON—The YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County's Program Committee will be offering Adult Tennis Lessons under the direction of Pete Zeeh beginning April 28. The lessons are in response to a large number of requests from Y members, and will be geared toward the beginner and less skilled players.

The classes will be held for six weeks, with both an afternoon class starting at 1 p.m. and an evening class at 8.30 p.m. being offered. The classes will be coed and take place in the YMCA's Upper Gym.

Those wishing more information should call the YMCA or stop in at the main office at 507 Broadway.

Frisbee Title To Princeton

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Princeton has captured the first Ivy League Frisbee Championship by defeating Cornell, 15-11.

The team members who played Saturday were not typicial "jocks." Most wore makeshift uniforms and their relaxed attitudes contrasted with the tense competitive spirit in other athletic championships.

The rules in interscholastic frisbee are simple. Players must pass the "bee" down the field past a goal line, designated by a jacket placed at each end of the 60-by-40 foot field.

Players can't run with the frisbee, so they rely on several passing styles, ranging from a stiff handoff into a teammate's gut to a field-length hurl.

Early in the second 24-minute half, the game turned into a shouting and shoving match. It ended with one bloody nose on the Cornell side of the field.

There were no referees to settle the dispute, so the match was delayed for 10 minutes while team leaders patched up their differences.

Maryland No. 1 In Lacrrosse

Cornell, with a 4-0 record and three first place votes, is number two while Navy and North Carolina tied for third.

All of the top six teams will play each other this week. Maryland hosts sixth-ranked Virginia this weekend while Cornell is at Johns Hopkins. North Carolina State goes to Navy on Wednesday.

The top 20, their first place votes, records and total points:

1. Maryland (4) 3-0 137
2. Cornell (3) 4-0 136
3. (tie) Navy 5-0 120

Was Hawks Victory too Costly

NEW PALTZ—The New Paltz State baseball Hawks are hoping their fourth win of the year Sunday won't be a costly one. New Paltz upped its record to 4-3 by pounding visiting Western New England, 11-0, but winning pitcher Tom Whitaker became a sixth inning line drive victim.

Cruising on a six run lead up to that point, Whitaker was nicked for his second hit when a visitor lined a shot back at the mound that broke Whitaker's finger. That didn't change the complexion of the game any as Paul Vasques relieved and completed the shutout, but Whitaker will be out of action indefinitely.

The Hawks jumped into command early, scoring five runs in the first in a big rally fueled by Larry Panella's two run single. That boosted Panella's RBI total to 1F through seven games.

New Paltz added solo runs in the third and seventh frames before Bill Hopkins iced the win with a two run homer in the eighth. The Hawks rapped out a total of nine hits and took advantage of five Western New England errors. They backed the shutout by Whitaker and Vasques with errorless defense.

Yale Captures Kennedy Race

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Yale University, after three days of perfect sailing weather, has won the 12th annual John F. Kennedy Memorial Regatta at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Skippered by Peter Isler, Yale edged Webb Institute of Technology to gain the trophy Sunday in the best of five of six race contest.

Webb placed second after a strong showing Sunday. In fourth place Saturday, Webb moved into the runnerup spot by capturing a first and fourth in Sunday's events. Bill Langan skippered Webb.

The Naval Academy, with Paul Van Cleve at the helm, edged Southern California for third place. Navy and USC were tied with 18 points each, but the tie was resolved in Navy's favor since the Middies had more first places.

Long Wait for Ralston

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — It has been a long six years for Dennis Ralston, but he thinks his time may have come.

Ralston, known widely for his four years as captain of the U.S. Davis Cup tennis team and for his play in doubles, couldn't remember the last singles tournament he won. All he could remember was the year — 1970.

Sunday he ended the long drought with a barrage of passing shots, untouchable lobs and soft drop shots that kept Sherwood Stewart off-balance and perplexed Ralston, 33, destroyed Stewart, 6-2, 6-1, for the championship of the $15,000 Tennis Classic.

Ralston never lost his service throughout the three-day tournament, taking Bob Carmichael, 6-2, 6-2, in the quarterfinals and Mike Cahill, 6-3, 6-4, in the semifinals.

"This is the first time I've won a singles championship since 1970," Ralston said. "I don't think it will be another six years for the next one."

That last victory was the Los Angeles Pro Classic. He has been close since and has taken numerous doubles titles during the span.

Stewart lost his service twice in the first set, three times in the second and appeared tired throughout. He came down with a cold and sore throat Saturday.

Stewart, who teamed with Ralston to take the doubles final, 7-6, 6-3, over Mike Estep and Carmichael, had defeated Ralston last week in a tournament in Maryland. But his usually aggressive style of play faltered when he missed volleys and overheads.

Stewart, who said he was getting married today in Houston, also appeared to lose his concentration.

Yankees File Protest

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Brewers left on their first road trip of the year today feeling they should be 2-0 instead of 1-1 but for an umpire's controversial call that cost them a victory over the New York Yankees.

The Brewers have protested first base umpire Jim McKean's generally unnoticed call for time out just prior to Don Money's grand slam homer Saturday that would have given the Brewers a 10-9 victory over the Yankees. Instead, the homer was voided and the Brewers lost 9-7.

General Manager Jim Baumer conceded the protest was not filed in the usual way but he said "this is not a normal type protest. This is not covered by a rule. We're protesting the way it was handled by the umpire."

The Yankees filed a protest on Thursday over the slope of the pitching mound at County Stadium after they had lost 5-0 in the season opener behind their ace, Catfish Hunter. Temperatures in the 30s forced postponement of Sunday's series wrapup.

The Brewers were headed for the dugout Saturday when McKean told them he had called time just before Money's blast off Dave Pagan. But McKean didn't make his disclosure until challenged about it by Yankee Manager Billy Martin who raced onto the field as Money crossed the plate.

Insolo Is '250' Winner

Insolo of Mission Hills, Calif., led only the last lap. He averaged 124.69 miles per hour to win first prize money of $5,750. Finishing second only .023 of a second later was Ottinger of Newport, Tenn., who led 78 of the 100 laps.

The race, originally scheduled for last Sunday, was delayed by rain

Ottinger dueled alternately with Hershel McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore., and Sonny Easley of Van Nuys, Calif., until they both dropped out with mechanical failures. Insolo lost crucial seconds when he became trapped between two spinning cars early in the race, hit the wall and had to make an extra pit stop.

A yellow caution period late in the race enabled Insolo to move up on Ottinger. He found himself at Ottinger's bumper when the green flag came out for the final time on the 91st lap. Insolo and Ottinger traded the first position three times in the last lap.

Coming off the last turn on the final lap, Insolo angled to the inside, causing a disturbance in the air called a "slingshot."

The instability of the air was enough, Ottinger said after the race, to loosen the grip of his tires on the track and force him to slide into the wall As he bumped the concrete retaining wall, Insolo pulled ahead. They crossed the finish line bumper to bumper.

SHS Netmen Win 5-0

SAUGERTIES—The Saugerties High tennis team opened its season on a winning note Friday with a 5-0 victory over non-league foe Red Hook.

Daryl Jones, Ken Rumble and Bob Vogel swept the singles for the Sawyers. Jones beat Ted Dewsnap, 12-10, Rumble downed Dan Zaloga, 10-7 and Vogel topped Gregg Hansen, 10-3. Bob Carpenter and Paul Martin teamed to whip Bill Hogan and Pat O'Farrell, 10-1 in the first doubles battle, then Vin Lucente and Bill Fricke ended the scoring with a 10-3 triumph over Raiders Greg Wiles and Harold Davis.

In exhibition matches Saugerties added two more singles victories as Carpenter beat Hogan, 10-1 and Martin defeated O'Farrell, 10-7. Red Hook scored twice in exhibition doubles as Dewsnap and Dan Miller took a 10-8 set from Tim Sheehan and Mark Knaust, and Zaloga and Hansen won another 10-8 decision from Vogel and Pat Sheehan.

Evert Opens Against Hunt

Evert is seeded No. 2 in the six-day tournament behind topseeded Evonne Goolagong, who will meet Cynthia Doerner in her first-round match Tuesday.

Olga Morozova starts off Tuesday's competition against Francoise Durr, followed by Goolagong and Doerner, Martina Navratilova and Carrie Meyer and Marita Redondo against Mima Jausovec.

The 16 players made it into the championships by winning the most points in the nine-tournament Slims circuit.

Movie Newsreel . . . A Comeback

NEW YORK—(UPI)—The movie theater newsreel is coming back— this time under advertising sponsorship.

Probably only a small percentage of today's moviegoers remember what a tremendous impact the weekly newsreels had on the American public in pre-televisiom days.

The last traditional Americn newsreel made to be sold to theaters was produced in 1967. There were five big ones, Pathe, Paramount, RKO, MGM and Twentieth Century-Fox.

They showed football games, tennis matches, political speeches, riots, crime scenes, beauty pageants, disasters and scientific achievements. In some ways, they were better than much of today's television film coverage because they were not so hurriedly assembled and more footage to a subject.

Their influence on the American scene hardly could be overstated. But they couldn't compete in an era when television was emptying the neighborhood theaters and presenting the latest news nightly.

The first of the new newsreels is a monthly called "Theater Calvalcade," produced by Association Films, a subsidiary of the huge Macmillan Inc., publishing combine. This subsidiary makes sponsored shorts that are distributed free to movie theaters.

The shorts are advertising but in low key. They differ from the television commercial in that they have to stress information or entertainment rather than hardsell, otherwise the theaters just won't use them even though they are free.

Association Films have 700 clients for whom it makes these sponsored shorts, mostly commercial but including some public service institutions such as the military academy at West Point and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Robert DJ Mitchell, president of Association Films, said the shorts his firm makes will be seen by about 75 million movie goers this year.

The Hollywood studios were forced to quit making one and two-reel comedies and other shorts to sell to theaters because the market dried up just as the market for the regularly scheduled newsreels did.

Libraries of old newsreel film clips were the biggest source of background film for period and travel and location shots for the industry. Television film libraries have taken over that function for the most part.

Only a few of the hundreds of sponsored film shorts being made for showing in theaters are particularly newsworthy. Mitchell conceived the idea of collecting those that are news oriented in a new kind of newsreel. If he can't get quite enough sponsored shorts to fill up the 15-minute Theater Cavalcade, he throws in a public service or entertainment story.

The latest edition of Theater Cavalcade contains five shorts, each running four to five minutes.

They deal, in order, with the 1976 Olympics, the Viking space probe now on its way to Mars (sponsored by the National Aeronautics & Space Administration), the Alaska Pipe Line, modern railroading and the energy problem, and a feature about an amateur magician who made the big time.

Now's the time to make your move to Sawyer! Let us put tomorrow on your side. There is no better way to make your money work for you today. The money you put to work at Sawyer Savings Bank is insured up to $40,000.00 by the F.D.I.C. . . . and that's a comfort—knowing that your money is growing safely.

We have a variety of savings plans designed to fill the needs of individuals . . . like you, and it will earn maximum interest allowed by law.

Compare our interest rates with your present bank and be sure you're getting the most for your money.

Passbook Savings Accounts

Time Accounts: (Certificates of Deposit)
6.00% effective annual yield on 5.75% a year.
1 year to 2½ years. Minimum: $1,000
2½ years to 4 years. Minimum: $1,000
7.90% effective annual yield on 7.50% a year.
Full 4 years. Minimum $1,000

On all accounts interest and dividends are compounded daily and credited quarterly. To earn annual yields shown, interest/dividends must remain on deposit for a full year. F.D.I.C. regulations require that premature withdrawals from Saving Certificates may be made only with the consent of the bank and are subject to a substantial penalty. The rate of interest must be reduced to the regular savings account rate at that time and three month's interest forfeited. Interest may be withdrawn at any time.

For your added convenience ask about our bank by mail service. Sawyer Savings Bank pays postage both ways. And we will also transfer your funds from any bank in the United States free of charge. Simply bring in your passbook, sign the transfer authorization form . . . and relax. We'll handle all the details without any fuss or bother on your part.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, APRIL 13

Your birthday today: Impulse at odd intervals upsets all fixed schedules this year and on into the next, and reflects instinctive drives and unconscious wisdom. Long-term results are good despite passing inconveniences. Commercial efforts thrive if you invest enough energy in them. Today's motives pursue peace, are family oriented.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Thrift at work has decided benefits. Don't ask for favors or personal assistance. Avoid getting into unfamiliar business procedures or speculation.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Your comments are more cutting than you intend. Don't be tempted to pass the buck. Be cautious when handling machinery.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Conditions are unsettled and people are restless. More is spent on young companions than you planned. Remodel your home, but spend wisely.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Try to be patient, give events time to run a normal course. Ignore the competition. Leave your reserves uncommitted for better defined opportunity.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Amid your bustle to establish and maintain schedules, find time to give a bouquet to someone who counts. Evening brings much talk but few new ideas.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You're so absorbed with comparisons you lose sight of the overall perspective. Stick with established enterprises if you fully grasp the situation.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your impulses are varied, so don't follow them now. Defer decisions until others have a chance to get over their initial reaction.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You'll get your own way, but at the expense of group support. Associates must have some say of their own to get rid of inner tensions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends' schemes are like do-it-yourself projects. No matter how you put them together, they don't work as expected. Candid remarks backfire.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A balance tips in an important venture, so you have stronger control of events. Problems aren't a topic for chitchat. Put your main efforts into your work.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Think for yourself. Consultations offer little support, particularly on technical matters. More is gained by staying near home base.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Meet others a little more than halfway, but don't expect much cooperation. If you're interested in gardening, give your green thumb a workout.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

NO 2- (Q.) My best friend Don has a girl friend named Cindy. But I like Cindy, too, and she likes me a little.

Don knows I like her and every time I talk to her he comes over and butts in. She likes Don a lot, so when he butts in she starts to talk to him.

He is supposed to be my best friend but if he keeps this up I'm going to punch him out.

I asked Cindy for a date once and she refused. She said she likes me but she likes Don more. Please help. I'm 13, Cindy's 13, and Don is 14.—Mad in Michigan

(A.) You ars learning a big lesson: It doesn't work for two close friends to have the same girl friend. Another lesson you must learn is that when a girl prefers another boy, punching that boy in the nose doesn't help a bit.

Your answer is to find another girl. Then the four of you can have fun together, without jealousy or fighting.

WAITING. (Q.) I've liked Terry since December and he acts like he likes me. He talks to me all the time and is so nice to me. There are times when I think he is going to ask me out, but he doesn't.

A couple of weeks ago someone told him I liked him. He seemed so happy and he acted even nicer to me, but he still hasn't asked me out. I'm getting so confused. What should I do?—Ready in Rhode Island

Jim. "Sometimes it is a last resort but when all else is going to fail you might as well try that last chance."

Oswald. "South wins the diamond lead with dummy's ace plays three rounds of trumps. (One extra since he can afford it.) Then he goes after clubs. West shows out on the second lead. He considers a squeeze, but sees that a squeeze won't work. That leaves the last resort play of getting a ruff and discard."

Jim. "It isn't as far fetched as it might be because it will work if West held seven diamonds for his preempt. He leads a heart to the ace, ruffs a heart, cashes his last high club, throws East in with a club and is rewarded by getting the forced heart lead to give him his contract."

TOWN OF ULSTER—The discovery of an eight-foot tall, 250-pound chicken in a coat closet at the Ramada Inn Sunday was enough to cause the patron who stumbled upon the artificial bird to return to the bar for a glass of milk, according to Ulster County sheriff's deputies.

The discovery didn't shake up deputies, though—they'd received a report on the theft of the bird late Saturday night.

Deputies said the huge chicken— a display at Closi's Feed Store in Lake Katrine— was discovered missing Saturday night at about 11 p.m.

It wasn't until Sunday at about 6:30 p.m. that the unidentified and obviously shaken patron at the Ramada Inn came across the bird and reported his strange find.

Sgt. David Hughes and Deputy John Lima took the bird into custody, deputies said. An investigation of the theft of the $400 bird is continuing.

Gun Charges

Armed with a search warrant, Kingston Police Department detectives early today raided a room at the Stuyvesant Hotel, 37 John Street, and arrsted the occupant for possession of stolen parts to a Thompson machine gun and for possession of a handgun.

Norman Galvagni, 28, an employe of Numrich Arms Corp., West Hurley, was charged with second degree criminal possession of stolen property and fourth degree criminal possession of a weapon.

Detertices said parts to a machine gun said to be stolen from Numrich Arms Corp. and a .32 caliber revolver were confiscated in the raid.

Hess Burglary

Detectives said that when they arrived at the Ulster Avenue Mall service station after a burglar alarm was touched off they found a broken window and the rear door open.

Inside, detectives found that the door to the oltice had been forced and that cash had been taken from the safe.

No sign of the burglar or burglars was found.

A Lot of Change

The burglar or burglars gained entry through a window, pried open a pool table and a juke box, and fled with the estimated $300 in change detectives said.

Bike Crash

Margaret Zehnick, 58, of 72 Hunter Street, Kingston was listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Kingston Hospital after the bicycle she was riding reportedly slammed into the side of a building Sunday afternoon on the corner of Wurts and West Union Street.

Mrs. Zehnick was rushed from the scene of the 3:50 p.m. mishap by Fatum's Ambulance. Ambulance personnel said the woman became confused about the operation of the brakes on the bicycle she was riding and careened down the Wurts Street hill into the stone wall of a building.

Cabin Fire

Fire Sunday night which apparently started in an unattended makeshift stove in a 15-foot by 15-foot log cabin used by children off Mountain View Avenue in Hurley totally destroyed the cabin amd burned over an area of woodland surrounding the building.

Hurley firemen were called to the scene at about 7 p.m. and summoned Spring Lake fire fighters to assist in putting down the flames which were fanned by high winds and had spread into the tops of several trees.

Fire Chief Earle McLane said an area of woodland surrounding the cabin was damaged in the fire. About 30 firemen were at the scene until after 9 p.m.

No injuries were reported.

Domestic Death

A woman was shot to death in her apartment home in the Orange County community of Cornwall early today, and police charged her husband with the slaying.

State and local police identified the dead woman as Catherine Quinlan, 27. Her husband, Lee Quinlan, 29, was charged with second degree murder and held for arraignment.

Police said Mrs. Quinland was shot in the head, but they gave no further details. The couple had apparently separated.

Mason for Schwartz Probe

ALBANY—"I have asked the Attorney General and the Albany County Distric Attorney to investigate the part played by Herman Schwartz in requesting the State Parole Commission to grant parole to convicted police killer Frank Lott so he could give him a job on the Correction Commission," said State Senator Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th Dist.) in a press release.

"On Sept. 16, 1975, Schwartz, appointed by Governor Carey as Chairman of the State Correction Commission, wrote to the state parole officer at Greenhaven Correctional Facility asking that Lott be given parole. In his letter he said he had known Lott for more than four years and had found him intelligent, mature, responsible and articulate . . ."

"I'm so convinced of his abilities that I'm seriously considering offering him a position with the State Correction Commission," Mason quoted Schwartz as saying.

Mason said he asked for the investigation to determine whether there has been an impropriety of violation of the law.

"The man has spent a substantial portion of his life in penal institutions and in 1961 he killed a policeman during the commission of a crime, at a time when he was out on parole after being sentenced for assault and robbery," Mason said.

"This is just another chapter in the incredible story of Mr. Herman Schwartz, who was appointed by the Governor to head the important State Crime Commission," Mason said.

In a letter to Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz, Mason said: "Schwartz as chairman of the Correction Commission was obviously intervening with another state agency to exert his influence on behalf of Lott. There may well have been a violation of the State Public Officer's Law. When an official of one state department intervenes with another department on behalf of a convict who is serving a long-term sentence for killing a policeman, a serious question of ethics arises. I, therefore, request that you investigate this matter with all its implications to determine whether there has been a violation of the State Public Officers Law or any other law."

Study Expense Gives Pause

SHOKAN—The Town of Olive has been asked to spend as much as $25,000 to study the feasibility of establishing its own municipal electric company.

Town officials say they'll have to think about it.

The request was made at this week's town board meeting by representatives of Mid-Hudson Concerned Consumers, who have urged several other local municipalities to begin their own electric company in response to increasing rates imposed by Central Hudson.

Peter Ford of New Paltz, a spokesman for the group, said the Town of Olive and its residents could break away from Central Hudson and establish a municipal electric company. He noted that 47 communities in New York State have already formed their own power companies, and are able to sell electricity at rates 30 to 50 per cent lower than those charged by the major, investor-owned utilities.

The electricity would be purchased, said Ford, from the Power Authority of the State of New York. In addition to offering cheap electricity to its residents, he said, the town could provide itself, its municipal buildings and its schools with free electricity. Any profits obtained from the venture could be used to lower property taxes, said Ford.

The spokesman said the first step would be to hire a private engineering firm to conduct a feasibility study, and to determine exactly how mucy money could be saved by eliminating the town's dependence on Central Hudson. The cost of the study, said Ford, would be between $15,000 and $25,000, and could be financed with a bond issue which could be repaid with profits from the new power system.

In other matters discussed at the board meeting: • A group of citizens sent a letter to the board asking that the town study the feasibility of constructing an on-site detour around the Traver Hollow Bridge, which has been closed for repairs by New York City. • The board authorized a letter to the Public Service Commission requesting a toll-free telephone be established within the Onteora Central School District, so that calls can be made without charge between the Phoenicia Elementary School and the high school complex in Boiceville. • The board renewed its franchise with Olive Cablevision Co. and established a three-member commission to review service applications for low-density areas of the town. • Robert Howe was appointed to the Assessment Board of Review, replacing Carl Stone, who resigned in March. • Several highway changes were discussed, including lowering the speed limit to 40 miles per hour in Olivebridge from the intersection of Routes 213 and 28A to Davis Corners; installing a school bus sign on Route 28A in Shokan near the Pine View Bakery; and painting double yellow lines on Route 28 from Cold Brook Road to Route 28A. All of the recommendations must be approved by the state and county highway departments.

Listen to The People

8 out of 10 adult residents of New York State believe that savings banks should be allowed to offer their customers the same full, unlimited checking account services commercial banks offer.

All other states in the Northeast—New Jersey, Massachusetts, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut—allow savings banks to offer checking accounts. Why not New York? Legislation is needed. Write to your Assemblyman and State Senator today.
